Students Urged to Study History

Dr. Holmes Terms Life an Evolution

Dr. D. O. W. Holmes urged Morgan State College students, Tuesday, to gain a working knowledge of the ways of humanity by simply "reading the history of mankind."

Making his last official Negro History Week appearance before the student body, President Holmes, who will retire in June, said that the study of history leaves these important deductions:

That the people of the world are so mixed up because nations have swept back and forth over the earth's territory, anyone who argues about a "pure" race is either "dumb or crazy."

That exploitation, slavery, and cruelty have been characteristic of human beings as long as history has been written, and:

That humanity does not like to be exploited. It is this last deduction which causes people to realize that if they do not want to be exploited, they must fight back.

"Life is an evolution politically as well as biologically. It is a constant struggle," the college president went on as he encouraged the students to seek a "consolidation" of facts by reading of the "human drama" which has preceded their time of life.

"Enter the great realm of reading, through a gate that is pleasant," the president cautioned. He recommended the historical novel as the medium for easier and more interesting history study.

In introducing the speaker, Joseph Durham of the Social Science Club, which sponsored the History Week program, referred to Dr. Holmes as a "great American and our sincere friend."

The program, presented in the Morgan Christian Center, included a short history of the Social Science Club by McNeal Brockington presented by Miss Dorothy Boone. Music was by the Morgan State College Choir, directed by J. O. B. Moseley.

Other members of the social science group are:

Jean Batts, Constance Bivins, Alease Brown, Richard Burns, Faye Cannon, Glascoe Catlin, Evelyn Chandler.

Retiring Soldier to Work at Hobby

Retiring after 30 years in the Army, 1st Sgt. Cornelius O. Bridgeforth of Junction City, Kan., plans to make a profession out of his hobby, photography. Discharged from the service at Mitchell Field, N.Y., Sergeant Bridgeforth spent a recent vacation in Baltimore with his nieces, Mrs. Mary Pegram of 847 W. Lexington St., and Mrs. Evelyn Pride of 417 W. Monument St.

Inducted Nov. 19, 1917, Sergeant Bridgeforth spent 20 years with the 24th Infantry, 9th U.S. Cavalry. He spent a year in France during World War I.

In the last war, he served at Aberdeen, Md., Tuskegee, Selfridge Field, Mich., Walter Boro, S.C., the Richmond Air Base and Mitchell Field.

HISTORY WEEK EXHIBIT — Pupils from the Lockerman School No. 100 prepared the History Week exhibit at the Pratt Library realize that if they do not want to be exploited, they must fight back. Left to right, holding their works, are Andrew McCrorey, Robert Torrence and Charles Braxton.

Mayor, Police Chief Urge Aid for Boys' Club Drive

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro and Police Commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson, this week, urged public support of the financial campaign being conducted by the Variety Club for the benefit of various Police Boys Clubs.

The Variety Club is a unit of a national organization composed of motion picture industry magnates whose sole purpose is to aid underprivileged children through combatting juvenile delinquency.

Among other activities, the local Tent No. 19 contributes heavily to the support and operation of the four Police Boys Clubs, one of which is Northwestern.

Clubs Aid 2,000 Boys

Nearly 2,000 boys are members of the four clubs which are equipped with libraries, woodworking shops, ping-pong and pool tables and small gymnasiums.

The clubs are also quite active in local and nearby athletic circles, entering teams in boxing, baseball, football and basketball contests.

The Northwestern Police Boys Club, organized in May, 1946, is directed by Officer Harry Scott.

Icy Streets Spell Danger to Pedestrians

The man slid awkwardly, scrambled gracelessly, soared into the air, hung in midair briefly, then hit the icy ground with a thud.

He is one of a colony of "Johnny-Come-Lately's" who have waited until the streets and sidewalks are nearly devoid of ice and snow before they have fallen.

But falling is no joke. Many children, housewives and other persons who find it necessary to tread the icy pavements have suffered unfortunate and painful experiences as a result of the slippery streets and sidewalks.

Most recent reports from hospitals throughout the city are that nearly 80 persons suffered injuries ranging from broken arms to minor bruises during the past three days.

Providence Hospital reported Thursday that a half-dozen patients had received treatment there, though none had suffered any serious fractures.

Watch your step, Mister, it's slippery underfoot.

Fuel Shortage Closes 2 Recreation Centers

The fuel oil shortage has closed down the Chick Webb and Lexington St. recreation centers indefinitely.

All activities including basketball, Red Cross, dancing, music and craft classes have been suspended. Both centers are expected to reopen in about two weeks if and when heating fuel is obtained.

Mrs. Whyte Rated No. 1 Baltimorean by Pupils

Carver Survey Ties in With History Week; AFRO President, Cab, Chuck Richards Popular

Mrs. Violet Hill Whyte, policewoman, ranked first choice of a group of Carver Vocational High School pupils who were asked by the AFRO this week to name the outstanding living colored Baltimorean.

This brief informal survey was made as a tie-in with the culmination of the 22nd annual observance of Negro History Week.

AFRO Head Popular

Next in popularity with Carver pupils were Carl Murphy, president of the AFRO-AMERICAN COMPANY; Chuck Richards, WITH radio announcer; and Cab Callaway, orchestra leader, who spent the greater part of his youth in this city.

Among the pupils selecting Mrs. Whyte who has worked 11 years in Northwest Baltimore, was Clarence Cooper of 568 Wilson St., who declared,

"I selected Mrs. Whyte because she helps her own people and tries to keep teen-agers out of trouble."

To See Right Side of Life

Said Doris Williams, 304 Reek St., "Mrs. Whyte is doing a great work in helping to reduce juvenile delinquency;" while Pauline Dorsey of 1209 W. Mosher St., opined:

"I think Mrs. Whyte's aim in life is not only to help people overcome their troubles, but to help them see the right side of life."

"She has worked with teen-agers to show them the best way to live and how to better community conditions," stated Lucille Dial of Wilson St.

Supporting Mr. Murphy, Doretha Taylor of 2468 Woodbrook Ave., avowed, "He is not afraid to speak the truth about anything when it is wrong. Alice A. Brown, 809 McDonogh St., voiced a similar opinion adding, "He writes strong editorials, and his paper helps fight for our race."

For Cab's Contribution

Lillian Deeden, 1315 Mosher St., selected Cab Callaway because he has broken down racial barriers through his unusual "hi-de-ho" type of singing and popular band.

Chuck Richards was the choice of Sophronia Sydnor of 507 Mosher St., and Ross Hayes of 254 W. Biddle St., because of his job as local light-weight fighter.

Doris Gwynn, 1613 Westwood Ave., Elmer A. Henderson, who has not let race, creed or color affect his work to improve our schools;

Marion Wilson, 1730 Chesapeake Ave., Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson, for her fight for equal rights as president of the Baltimore NAACP;

Mildred James, 454 N. Carrollton Ave., William (Bill) Kenny as the outstanding singer of the popular Ink Spots quartet which has become known both here and abroad;

Luther H. Johnson, 729 W. Franklin St., W. Llewelly Wilson as one of Baltimore's leading musicians for many years.

In support of one of Carver's most popular students, Evelyn Harper of 1537 N. Chapel St., named 19-year-old Terry Moore, local light-weight fighter, who someday may well warrent the confidence placed in him.

Check them off. Three vital victories in the highest courts—for a fair trial by jury, for the right to vote, for equal educational opportunities.

All were won by NAACP lawyers, by NAACP staff research, by the strength and support of organized NAACP members throughout the nation. NAACP lawyers are awaiting the Supreme Court decision on Jim Crow restrictive housing covenants, following their argument on January 15.

But victories cost money. Freedom costs money.

A people that will work and pay and fight and pray will win victories, will smash barriers, will forge ahead, will one day be truly free.

What are YOU doing to win more victories?

We are farther along than in 1928. But what about 1968?

The answer is up to you. We can't win civil rights each man to himself. Only through organized effort —continued organized effort through the years— can we be effective.

The oldest, the best, the biggest, the most experienced, the hardest-hitting organization that has continued for 39 years to get results is the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (the NAACP).

On February 12 the NAACP had its 39th birthday. It won its first victory in the U. S. Supreme Court in 1915. Its latest victory — the 23rd in the highest court — was on January 12, 1948. A great Freedom March.

Join the March! Count yourself in on this Crusade!

Mad Leap Into Snow Just One of Mate's Acts, Says Wife

Exclaiming to the judge, "he came in like a lion!" a young wife described Friday, how her husband leaped through a broken window pane and chased her barefooted into the snow.

"He's been acting like that ever since we got married. I'm tired of it, too!" Mrs. Eleanor Watson declared, as she added that her husband, Major, also chased her six-year-old son into the street, and set fire to the room where an infant baby was sleeping by knocking over the oil heater.

Recently Married

"You two are newlyweds, aren't you?" asked Anthony Federico, attorney for Watson.

"Well, yes," answered the wife, explaining that the two children were not her present husband's. "Didn't you throw a bottle of lye at him once?" prompted the attorney.

"No," she replied," he threw alcohol at me, and I threw a bottle of bleach at him."

No Witnesses

Judge Emory Niles, considering the fact that there were no witnesses to support the wife's charges, or the husband's denial, acquitted the man with a warning.

Watson, 25, testified that he had left the home at 289 N. Exeter St. three days before he returned to get his clothing. He charged that his wife threw a chair at him, and insisted that he simply pushed the back door open with his knee when she refused to let him in.

"Well, I don't know who threw a chair, but the next time you go there to get your clothes, take a policeman or two, if you have a witness," Judge Niles advised him.

Lad Shot as Boys Toy With Rifle

Irvin Thomas, 15, of 1303 N. Carey St., was admitted to Provident Hospital, Monday, with a bullet wound of the abdomen accidentally inflicted by his half-brother, Donald Tobey, 17, police said.

According to Northwestern District police, the pair were toying with a .22-calibre rifle in their kitchen when the trigger was accidentally pulled. With a pellet in his stomach, Irvin dropped to the floor and was rushed in an ambulance to the hospital.

That afternoon, Magistrate Thomas L. Fitzpatrick ordered the older boy held under nominal bail for a hearing tentatively set for March 9.

Germs Rampant in Restaurant

Jurist Declares War on Pa. Ave. Filth

Walter glasses, the rims of which were teaming with 1,200 germs, were found during a routine inspection of a restaurant at 1527 Pennsylvania Ave., it was testified in Northwestern police court, Wednesday.

The charge was part of the testimony offered by a Health Department analyst and an inspector against John Taylor, operator of the lunchroom.

Rodent Infestation

The inspector said that he found rat hairs and insect fragmentation in the cracker and corn meal on the premises and that the proprietor had failed to abate a nuisance consisting of rodent infestation on the premises and improper garbage and trash disposal."

"Kitchen equipment unclean, and dirty cats were there and the place was generally unsanitary," the inspector said.

Taylor told Magistrate Thomas L. Fitzpatrick he made a practice of sifting the meal before using same and that the unsanitary conditions had been corrected.

Fines Suspended

On this premise and with a threat of severe punishment should there be a recurrence, the magistrate imposed two $25 suspended fines.

The jurist declared, however, that he was forthwith declaring a war against unsanitary conditions in restaurants and other places along Pennsylvania Ave. and elsewhere in Northwest Baltimore.

"The persons who visit these establishments are entitled to the greatest protection against germs and disease as are other Baltimoreans, and I shall see to it that the provisions of the law are carried out," he stated.

SUSPECT IN SLAYING RETURNED TO S.C.

Suspected of being involved in a slaying in South Carolina, Robert Suber, 37, of 1548 Argyle Ave. was arrested by city detectives, this week, and surrendered to authorities from Spartanburg.

Tot, 2, Dropped to Safety; 3 Women, a Heroine, Leap From Burning House

Friend Grabs Son From Mother Climbing to Window and Tosses Him Into Man's Arms

Charred ruins of the house at 1039 N. Central Ave., house from which three women leaped, and a wee-year-old tot was dropped three stories to safety, Tuesday, stand skeleton-like and gutted against the haze of winter sleet.

A few leftover Christmas cards, an old shoe and a felt glove can be spotted through the sockettless windows, on the floor on the first floor room where one of Baltimore's thousands of deadly oil stoves, vomited forth the explosion which cause this tragedy.

Infant Unscarred

And while his mother lies with in St. Joseph's Hospital with the two other injured women, cribbby, two-year-old Jerome Rice toddles about, unscarred from his plunge into the waiting arms of William Jones, 22, who miraculously escaped from the raging inferno.

Nineteen-year-old Mrs. Edna Bruce was desperately climbing to the window to jump with her son when Mrs. Louise Smith snatched the child from her arms, and dropped him out to Jones, her cousin.

Jumped In Nightclothes

Mrs. Bruce then leaped, followed by Mrs. Smith and her 17-year-old daughter, Dorothy West, all of whom were in their nightclothes. The younger women suffered injuries to their backs, while Mrs. Smith received a fractured leg.

The blaze originated in the first-floor apartment of Cornelius Smith, who was not at home. A visitor there attempted to light the oil stove around 7:20 a.m., and when the flames poured forth, she ran for Jones who was on the third floor with the three women and the child.

Seeing that the blaze was out of control, Jones called to the women upstairs, and rushed out of the front door in time to catch the falling baby boy.

2nd Floor Untouched

Ironically, the flames seemed to rush directly up the stairway to the top of the house, by passing the second floor apartment of Mrs. Edith Powell whose furniture was practically untouched by the fire.

Mrs. Powell, whose husband escaped by a side door when the flames awakened him, was at work that morning. Explaining that they also used an oil stove, Mrs. Powell lamented the fact that there was no other way of heating the house.

Managing to salvage all of their clothing, the Powell, nevertheless had their furniture drenched by firemen who fought the blaze.

Glad To Be Alive

Meanwhile, at St. Joseph's, the two younger injured women rested in their beds, bandaged, and say thankfully, "We were lucky to get out of there alive!"

Little Jerome is quite unconcerned about the whole thing, however, as he plays with his tiny friend, Andre Jose Jackson, in the home of the lad's mother.

2 Police Calls to Home Yield Three Bodies

For the second time within eight days, sudden death, claiming a total of three lives, struck in what police termed a disease-ridden bandbox house at 1100 Carson Ct.

Early Monday, Northwestern District police found the body of James Lassiter, 52, who died in the Carson Ct. house. The man was taken to Provident Hospital, pronounced dead and his body removed to the morgue.

2 Found Week Ago

Exactly one week before, police had found the bodies of Mrs. Jennie Smith, 76, and Mrs. Mary Prather, 81-year-old deaf mute, in the same house with life ebbing from them.

An examining physician diagnosed both those deaths as natural.

Judge Acquits Two Here of Christmas Eve Slayings

Aftermath of two Christmas Eve killings was the acquittal of the slayers, Wednesday, at Criminal Court.

In one instance, Judge Edwin T. Dickerson advised the attorney of the accused man to change his plea of manslaughter to "not guilty" after facts indicated that 22-year-old Ullysea Hawthorne sent a bullet through James Simms's head in self-defense. The jurist acquitted followed.

Judge Dickerson also freed elderly Mrs. Ella Ringgold in the pre-Christmas fatal stabbing of a tenant who, she said, attacked her over an argument about a glass of beer.

Shooting in Alley

Simms, 25, of 924 Payson St., had fired several shots into Hawthorne's home before Hawthorne went into the alley and fired back. Simms then shot at him, it was revealed.

No one witnessed the paring-knife killing of Bernard Williams at Mrs. Ringold's home, 104 York St., testimony disclosed.

The woman, stating that she did not know her age, said that Williams asked for a glass of beer, then struck her several times. She struck back with the knife which entered his chest.

there are a lot more than two ways
...of being simply beautiful, attractive, nice to behold. Women whose good looks are admired—which men adore—are attained by the loving care given their hair. Your hair is easily managed, readily styled the way you want it when you apply My Knight regularly. After finger-tip massaging of My Knight into hair and scalp you'll be delighted with the luxurious softness—the silken sheen which My Knight adds to normally dull, coarse hair. My Knight gives your hair natural radiance so becoming to lovely looking, charming women. Buy a package today. At toilet goods counters everywhere.
