Victim Snares One of Five Attackers

Five men assaulted Ernest Chance, Saturday night and robbed him of his money, wallet and shoes, but only four escaped. Chance held the fifth until police arrived.

At a preliminary hearing in Northeastern police court, Sunday, the suspect, Edward Hood, 22, 1707 E. Chase St., was held for court in $1200 bail.

Arresting officers testified that they answered a call to find Chance, barefooted and somewhat roughed-up, holding Hood on the ground. They arrested him on Chance's complaint.

Chance, who lives at 1535 E. Madison St., told police he was not sure whether four or five men grabbed him, but he knew they took his shoes, wallet and eight dollars in cash.

A court-appointed attorney explained that "money was no hard to get in Southern Maryland" that these men readily accepted job work on the stills.

Needs Blood Donors

Doctors at the Baltimore City Hospitals are seeking blood donors for 35-year-old Louis Posey, a patient in the tuberculosis ward who is in critical need of a chest operation.

Persons interested in performing this service should report immediately to the accident room of the institution on Eastern Ave. near Ponca St.

Graduates Urged to Build Upon Democratic Forces

62 Dunbar Pupils Get Diplomas From Mayor; Carrington L. Davis Announces Awards

In brief remarks to the 62 graduates of Dunbar High School at commencement exercises Friday night, Dr. Williams H. Lemmel, public school superintendent, recalled the place of religion, democracy and education in the development of race, city, state and nation.

The school officials urged the graduates to build upon these forces to be able to make significant contributions in the world to which they were going.

Carrington L. Davis, principal, announced the following awards:

Lorraine Manigault, valedictory, received a Morgan State College Scholarship, the Sarah W. Mitchell Memorial Medal for the highest general average and shared the Dunbar Golden Masque Guild award with Betty Harrison, salutatorian, who also garnered the Grider award for character and influence, as did William Wooden.

One hundred dollar scholarship tuitions from Alpha Kappa Alpha Epsilon Omega Chapter, went to Sadie Tillery; and from Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Eulleon Sigma Chapter, to Evelyn Gaddy.

Other awards were:

Good Citizenship Medal of the Maryland Society, Sons of the American Revolution, Esther McCready; Morgan State College Scholarship, Samuel Stokes; Physics award, Johnnie M. Moore and Irvin Locust;

Dunbar Alumni Association award, Elaine Taylor; Dunbar Choral Society, Sadie Tillery and Elaine Taylor; Dunbar Faculty Medal, Mary Webster.

Diplomas were awarded by Mayor D'Alesandro, who urged the graduates to build their lives upon the teachings received at the school.

Dunbar High School's band, organized in September under Richard Harrison, gave its first public performance at the commencement. The invocation and benediction were by the Rev. C. Dewey Robinson.

Disney's 'Fun and Fancy Free,' Vibrant Musical at New Albert

Presenting a glamorous new musical feature, with color by technicolor, Walt Disney has neatly blended the performances of live stars and animated characters in "Fun and Fancy Free," currently showing at the New Albert Theatre.

The picture embraces two leading sequences in animation, knitted together with action and comments by Edgar Bergen flanked by little Luana Patten, who was born in "Song of the South," Bergen's famous dolls, Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd, also perform.

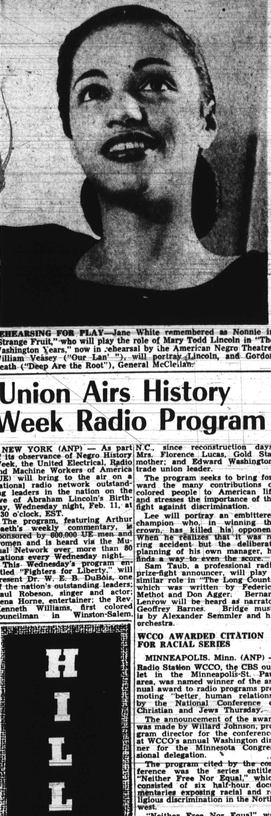
Battle Above Clouds

Bergan and his group now enter the proceedings, their histrionics leading up to cartoon sequences, the first of which is "Mickey and the Beanstalk," performed by Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Goofy, in an encounter above the clouds with Willie, red-headed and gigantic caf.

Another spectacular sequence presents "Bongo," a little runaway circus bear, who encounters a woodland serenade, Lulubelle, their hectic courtship being menaced by a great grizzly, Lumpjaw. A cast of dancing, singing bears, and many other sylvan creatures, is in support. Dinah Shore is heard as the narrator and sings three new songs in the picture: "Say It With a Slap," "Too Good to Be True" and "Lazy Countryside."

Thrill Western

Action, thrills and suspense are the theme of Allan Lane's western, "Bandits of Dark Canyon," on the same program, with Lane playing the role of a Texas Ranger rounding up a real murderer.



REHEARSING FOR PLAY—Jane White remembered as Nonnie in "Strange Fruit," who will play the role of Mary Todd Lincoln in "The Washington Years," now in rehearsal by the American Negro Theatre. William Venroy (Gus "Last Ta"), wife, Ruby Dee, and Frederick Heath ("Deep Are the Root"), General McClellan.

Union Airs History Week Radio Program

NEW YORK (ANP) — As part of the observance of Negro History Week, the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (UE) will bring to the air on a national radio network outstanding leaders in the nation on the eve of Abraham Lincoln's Birthday, Wednesday night, Feb. 11, at 7:30 o'clock, EST.

The program, featuring Arthur Gaeth's weekly commentary, is sponsored by 600,000 UE men and women and is heard via the Mutual Network over more than 80 stations every Wednesday night.

This Wednesday's program entitled "Fighters for Liberty," will present Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, one of the nation's outstanding leaders; Paul Robeson, singer and actor; Lena Horne, entertainer; the Rev. Kenneth Williams, first colored councilman in Winston-Salem, N.C., since reconstruction days; Mrs. Florence Lucas, Gold Star mother; and Edward Washington, trade union leader.

The program seeks to bring forward the many contributions of colored people to American life and stresses the importance of the fight against discrimination.

Lee will portray an embittered champion who, in winning the crown, has killed his opponent. When he realizes that it was no ring accident but the deliberate planning of his own manager, he finds a way to even the score.

Sam Taub, a professional radio prize-fight announcer, will play a similar role in "The Long Count," which was written by Federick Methot and Don Ager. Bernard Lenrow will be heard as narrator of Geoffrey Barnes. Bridge music is by Alexander Semmler and his orchestra.

WCCO AWARDED CITATION FOR RACIAL SERIES

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (ANP) — Radio Station WCCO, the CBS outlet in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, was named winner of the annual award to radio programs promoting "better human relations" by the National Conference of Christian and Jews Thursday.

The announcement of the award was made by Willard Johnson, program director for the conference, at WCCO's annual Washington dinner for the Minnesota Congressional delegation.

The program cited by the conference was the series entitled "Neither Free Nor Equal," which consisted of six half-hour documentaries exposing racial and religious discrimination in the Northwest.

"Neither Free Nor Equal" was followed by a series dealing with juvenile delinquency, "As the Twig Is Bent", and WCCO has pending a network documentary on the Indian problem.

BENNETT COLLEGE PLAYERS PRESENTED AT LIVINGSTONE

GREENSBORO, N.C. — The Bennett College Players supported by actors from A. and T. College, will be presented by the Gamma Mu Chapter, AFA Fraternity, in Henrik Ibsen's famous play, "Hedda Gabler," Thursday at Livingstone College in Salisbury.

NOT 500 YEARS HENCE:

"Concerto for Slam" Is Now Forthcoming

By MARK HYMAN

CHESTER, Pa. —(ANP)— Slam Stewart, America's No. 1 bass playing bass player, and third placing trio leader, let down his hair after a "set" at the Circle Bar in Chester, Thursday night, and told of his fondest dream of playing symphonic style, supported by an orchestra of 100 pieces.

The number? A composition in the writing of Dave Campbell of Washington, called "Concerto for Slam."

Wife Who Threw Lye Gets 5 Years

Sentence of not more than five years in the Women's Reformatory, was imposed Tuesday upon a 27-year-old housewife who flung a panful of hot lye she said was intended for her husband into the face of an innocent high school pupil.

Judge Emory Niles, commenting in Criminal Court that the case was one of the "most depraved instances of lye throwing" of which he has heard, indicated that he would deal equally as severely with other such offenders.

Boy Opened Bedroom Door

The woman, Mrs. Lucile Lyons of 410 N. Carey St., related that she had prepared the hot lye for her husband, Frank, after he had beaten her nearly senseless on Thanksgiving Day.

As fate would have it, young James Boyd, third-year pupil at Douglass High, opened the couple's bedroom door and received the lye. Mrs. Lyons hurled from the hallway full in the face.

The youth's eyes, face and neck were badly burned, although a doctor's opinion was that he would not lose his sight.

Creeping Up Hall

According to Mrs. Lyons, she had poured the lye into a pan of hot water as a precautionary measure and was creeping up the hall when the bedroom door was opened.

She thought is was her husband coming after her again and hurled the lye at the figure, she said.

Although Frank Lyons denied it, she was charged that he had kicked and beaten her with a club during before "he went into the bedroom to get his knife."

Science Wars On Heart Disease

Although Heart disease is America's No. 1 killer, science has made great strides in combatting it during the past quarter of a century, Irvin M. Cook, local campaign chairman for Heart Week, Feb. 8-14, said:

"According to the Maryland Rheumatic Fever Association, which is sponsoring Heart Week, Mr. Cook added, "much more needs to be done before any major victory can be claimed in the fight against the leading cause of death in the United States. That is why the public is being asked to contribute generously to provide the necessary funds for the care and treatment of Rheumatic Fever."

Contributions should be sent to the Maryland Rheumatic Fever Association, 10 E. Lafayette Ave., Baltimore 2, Maryland.

"Slam" was born Leroy Elliot Stewart in Englewood, N.J., 33 years ago. He finished Dwight Morrow High School there and went to the Boston Conservatory of Music. While studying, he played at the local clubs to earn tuition. The bright light fever rushed Slam into New York prematurely. While working and jamming there, his first real break came as a surprise.

Teamed by Chance

While Slam was sawing and humming away at an after-show jam session, a tall, lanky guitar player came in and said: "My name's Slim. Move over, man, and let's operate."

The duet clicked as Slim and Slam. Then immortal history was made. Their record, "Flat Foot Floogie," was buried in a copper box for posterity at the New York World's Fair along with one of John Philip Sousa's march recordings.

According to Slam, when the records are unearthed and played 500 years from now: "I'll bet that'll be something."

Separated by War

The war separated Slim and Slam. They never reunited, but both have gone to the top separately. Since the war, Slam played with Benny Goodman, climaxing his stay with Goodman by making the platter, "Gotta Be This or That."

From Chester, Slam and his trio head West, stopping at Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago. So until Slokowski, Bruno Walter, Eugene Ormandy, or some other renowned conductor raises his baton to an silent symphony orchestra before a hushed audience—with Slam's trio ensemble in the center of the stage—it will be worth waiting to see and hear "Concerto for Slam."
