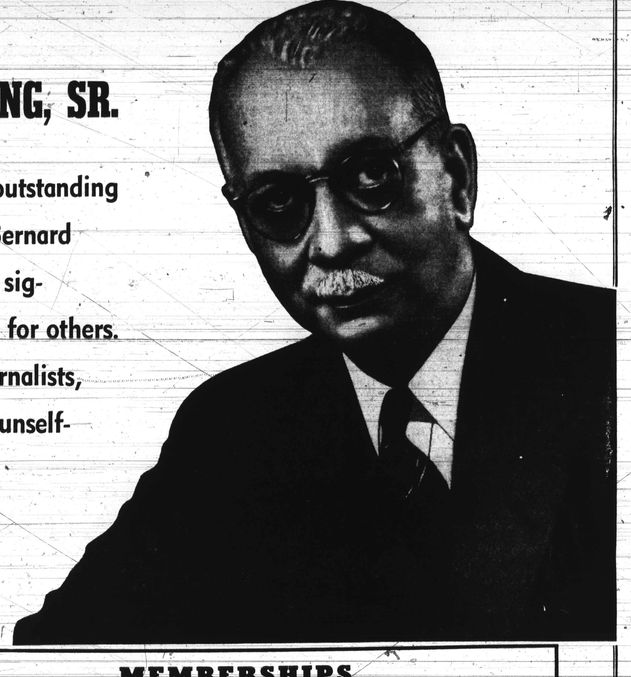
JOURNALIST CRUSADER HUMANITARIAN

PLUMMER BERNARD YOUNG, SR.

Few men of any race have achieved such outstanding success in their chosen field as Plummer Bernard Young. Still less have used their success so significantly to provide an equal opportunity for others. In peace and in war, this dean of Negro journalists, has served his people and his country with unselfish devotion. He has been publicly recognized as an American in the truest and highest sense of the word.



IN THE BEGINNING

On a blustery January day, over forty years ago, a young Negro left his home in North Carolina. He arrived in Norfolk, Virginia, with only six dollars in his pocket, but with a million dollar's worth of determination in his heart to better himself and his people.

To young P. B. Young, the newspaper world seemed to offer the best outlet for his twin ambitions. Soon we find him working diligently for the JOURNAL AND GUIDE of Norfolk, at a salary of twelve dollars per week. He soon proved himself an outstanding newsman, for within three years, at the age of twenty-six, Mr. Young was owner and publisher of the paper which had given him his start.

"ABOVE AND BEYOND WHAT IS EXPECTED"

No finer tribute can be paid P. B. Young than a quotation from the Richmond TIMES-DISPATCH, December, 1939.

"This newspaper salutes at the end of each year a limited number of persons who have reflected credit upon the State through the display of courage, ability, intelligence, tenacity, generosity or unselfishness . . . . A place on the TIMES-DISPATCH Honor Roll goes only to those who achieve above and beyond what is expected of them. It is not sufficient to do a job well. It must be done superlatively well."

On that year's Virginia Honor Roll was the name of P. B.Young, Homer L. Ferguson, John D. Rockefeller Jr. and others.

HE'S SERVICE IN WAR AND PEACE

Beyond the age of military duty, P. B. Young still served his country well. He was a member of Selective Service Board No. 1 and a member of the Defense Council of Norfolk, Virginia. His paper, the Norfolk JOURNAL AND GUIDE was commended by Elmer Davis, head of the Office of War Information and cited by General George A. Horkan, Commanding Officer at Camp Lee, Virginia, for its signal aid to the war effort. His paper's three war correspondents in African and European theatres were cited by the War Department for exceptionally noteworthy war reporting.

Three-Day Exhibition Held by Business, Professional Women

A gala fashion show, starring creations of member modistes, highlighted the opening of the business exhibit sponsored by the Baltimore Club of the National Association of Business and Professional Women, last week, at Elks' Hall.

A style display dramatizing the "new look" was the first feature of three nights of entertainment and presented creations in hats, gowns, suits and hair styles.

The fashion artists, mostly from the club roster, included Mesdames Catherine Torrence, Georgia Dorsey, Nola Chatmon and Mattie Smith, showing gowns and suits.

Mrs. Clay Jolley added her specially designed hats to her ensembles and Rose Marie Davis featured hair styles for business, afternoon and evening.

Among the participants were the Tabbs, who recently celebrated their 25th anniversary, two "brides," one with a three-yard brocaded satin train, and identical twins. Mrs. Delores Hunt was narrator. Mesdames Nola Chatmon and Mattie Smith were chairmen.

The Carver Glee Club under the direction of Simeo Swann and the Coppin Players under the direction of Mrs. Flossie Dedmon, presented a musical and dramatic program Friday night with Mrs. Ethel J. Day as chairman. The Saturday program featured Miss Margaret Franklin and students of Dunbar High School, accompanied by Miss Mildred Williams. Miss Elizabeth Anthony was mistress of ceremonies. Mrs. Pearl W. Jackson was general chairman of entertainment.

Exhibits included the famous Jon Kay hats, personalized stationery and gifts by Normal Wallace, Easter gifts baskets and other goodies by the Jack and Jill Club, Rose Meta Products, Crayton sausage demonstration, country store, Grieg's grocery store, Apex Beauty School, the Gwynn Print Shop.

Chairmen sponsoring the affair included: Miss Elizabeth Anthony, steering committee; Mrs. Virgie Waters and Miss Jeanette Spriggs, exhibits; Miss Alma Francis, tickets; Mrs. Laurie Parker, finance; Miss Miriam E. Gwynn, directory; Mrs. Edna Thrower, refreshments. Mrs. Daisy B. Jones is president of the Baltimore chapter.

INDEPENDENT ROYAL—The club met at the home of Mrs. Annie Mae Brown, 1615 Monroe St., Tuesday.

The hostess was Miss Alice Macon.

The next meeting will be at 313 N. Carrollton Ave. Miss Blanche Brown will entertain.

JOLLY SENORITAS—The club met at the home of Mrs. Margaret Robinson, 544 Baker St. Plans were made for a supper in the spring.

Pokeno was played and Mrs. Hazel Curtis was the winner of the prize.

Mrs. Mary Lee Duvall is president; Mrs. Grace Franklin, acting recording secretary, and Mrs. Margaret Robinson, business manager.
