Ace Afro Newsie Saves for Future

Plans to Go to College, Likes Music, Boxing

George Whyte, 17-year-old local AFRO newsboy who won a trip to Florida last week by being thrifty, plans to finish college and then go into business for himself. He returned from the Florida trip on Sunday.

The slender soft-spoken Douglass High School senior has saved several hundred dollars from his newspaper earnings. He is a music lover and intends to invest this money in a record shop when he has completed his education.

Whyte and James Slaughter, 13, of Washington, returned from Florida on Monday. They were selected because of their outstanding sales and thrift records in selling AFRO's.

Boxing Fan

A native of Baltimore, he is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Whyte Sr. of 463 Cummings Ct. Whyte is an avid boxing fan and a strong supporter of Terry Moore. (His father is Moore's manager).

The young newsie spends his after-school hours boxing at Joe Gans Athletic Club, reading or listening to records.

"I like all kinds of music," he said, then quickly added, "that is all kinds except bebop. I don't care much for that . . . just can't understand it."

Likes Sport Clothes

Though reluctant to admit it, young Whyte also likes sport clothes. When interviewed he was wearing a neatly-pressed double-breasted gabardine suit, a blue sport shirt and tan shoes.

In answer to the question, "Where did you learn to save?" Whyte said:

"I guess I learned that at home. My mother and father always taught me to spend a little and save a little."

He has one sister, Myrna, 14, who attends School No. 130.

Field trips will be made throughout the country by national members to assist the local chapters during the campaign.

New Cheltenham Board to Give Report on Tour

The new Cheltenham board of managers, at its meeting March 30 at the Barrdynine, Md. institution, will submit written reports based upon its recent tour of the building and grounds, Dr. William E. Henry, chairman, declares.

Successor Not on Agenda

The selection of a successor to Calvin L. Kiah, former superintendent of the institution, will not be discussed at this meeting, Dr. Lewis said.

Since the rejection of Mr. Kiah by the retiring board on Feb. 26, Cheltenham has been in charge of Hiawatha R. Harris, assistant superintendent.

The new school official must be selected by the board from among the eligible persons on the list at the office of the State Employment Service, a spokesman from that office told the AFRO Wednesday.
