Matron, 27, Beaten by Footpad in Purse-Snatching Episode

A 27-year-old married woman is in critical condition as a result of a purse-snatching attack under the care of a private physician for treatment of injuries received when she was assaulted by in the 700 block of Fulton Ave., when the attack occurred.

She said that while walking West on Lanvale St., a man slipped up from behind and began beating her in the face and over her head with brass knuckles. At the same time, the thug tugged at her purse which contained only a small amount of change.

Screams Bring Help

In the tussle, the matron fell to the ground, but her screams routed the attacker who fled when nearby residents arrived on the scene.

The only description of the assailant was that he wore a slouched hat and the collar of his topcoat was turned up around his neck. At least one other attack of a purse-snatching nature has occurred in the neighborhood. This information was submitted to police who have initiated an investigation.

Why did Aunt Hallie wrap the ice in paper?

It made the ice melt slower, so she figured she'd save money.

You don't see today's Aunt Hallie rustling around trying to turn off her electric refrigerator. Housekeeping economy is just as important, but there's a difference . . .

It costs so very little to run a modern refrigerator with electricity! For an average family—less than three cents a day.

You've helped make electricity so low in price by using it for more and more jobs.

And the sound business methods of the electric companies have made it more and more of a bargain, in spite of the rising costs of making and delivering electricity.

Exhibit Shows Racial Injustice

To bring about a more informed public opinion of "interracial justice," the Baltimore Catholic Students' Interracial Council is currently sponsoring an exhibit at the central building of the Enoch Pratt Library.

With the co-operation of the library, the exhibit, which began Monday, presents material explaining the Catholic stand on the race question and demonstrates why and how equal rights and opportunities must be extended to all.

Discrepancy Illustrated

Members of the Interracial Council state:

"The importance of this subject is evident to people concerned with the discrepancy between the Christian, democratic principles we uphold, and the reality of racial injustice in many parts of the country as publicized by the President's Committees on Education and Civil Rights."

The exhibit is being displayed in the department of civics and sociology.

Injured Passenger Gets $2,000 Award

A verdict of $2,750 was awarded, this week by a Superior Court jury, to Alphonso Bailey of 1136 N. Monroe St., for injuries he received in a trolley-taxicab accident last June 27.

Motions for a new trial were immediately filed by the Baltimore Transit Co. and representatives of the Greyhound Cab Co. against whom the verdict was returned.

Mr. Bailey listed a head injury and the loss of five front teeth among his damages. The litigation held that he sustained the injuries when the cab in which he was riding collided with a trackless trolley at Baker and Gilmor Sts.

Fatal Shot in Back Ends Tavern Fight

During a fight in a tavern at 521 N. Fremont Ave., Thursday, Marion Giles, 36, of 1315 W. Lexington St. was fatally shot in the back.

Charged with the slaying, George Spain, 37, of 1214 Park Ave. was held without bail for a further hearing, this morning, at Northwestern police station.

Appreciation a la Dixie

Miss Marie Morton of 1816 Perkwood Ave., Richmond, receives gifts from James E. Segear, principal of Maggie Walker High School, where she is a senior, for risking her own life to save that of her white woman employer. Mrs. Walter B. Jones, white, beneficiary of her heroic act, sits in the school auditorium while the presentation is made. She admits that Miss Morton probably saved her (Mrs. Jones's) life after her coat caught fire from a kitchen stove, but she still writes the girl's name "Marie." Miss Morton received a Betsy Ross bracelet and corsage of gardenias.

'Mother' to White Infant Finds Responsibility Great

Twenty-year-old Miss Dorothy Sharp "didn't like it so much"—the idea of being "mother" to a white infant for 11 days.

When the baby's mother, Mrs. Theresa Blanchfield first approached young Miss Sharp in a bus station and asked her to care for the baby for two days at $3 a day—that wasn't so bad.

But when the mother didn't show up for nearly two weeks, and the baby became ill, the substitute "mama" started out for the nearest police station.

Mother Acquitted

That is how 25-year-old Mrs. Blanchfield who comes from Bethlehem, Pa., landed in Criminal Court last Friday.

But when the evidence showed that she did not willfully abandon the child, and had telephoned Miss Sharp telling her that she was detained in New York where she was seeking her husband, Judge Emory Niles acquitted the woman.

Washed and Fed Child

"I had to wash his little pants every day because she only left one pair, and I had to feed him on time," Miss Sharp told the AFRO in explaining how other members of her family helped her to care for the child since she is unmarried and has no children of her own.

Besides, it was revealed, Mrs. Blanchfield paid Miss Sharp only $3.50 of the promised fee for board and lodging, but she insisted, Friday, that she would repay the child's temporary benefactor the balance owed for the extra days' care.

Stole Corn (Liquor) for Hay, Man Says

Pleading guilty to the theft of $24 worth of liquor from the drug store where he was employed, Irvin Dodson, 19, of 1307 Edmondson Ave., Thursday, was given 30 days in jail.

Dodson was arrested on Wednesday night, when observed carrying a burlap bag containing the liquor, admittedly taken from a store at 1401 Edmondson Ave.

The accused youth said he needed money with which to buy feed for the dray horses he hires out.

3 Research Aides Named at Morgan

Board Also Appoints 7 to Faculty, Staff

Three assistants in education, to serve until June 30, for work on a research problem on agriculture were approved by the Morgan State College Board of Trustees on Thursday.

They are Mrs. Janie E. Fore, Mrs. Louise M. Hyde and James J. Whalley.

Granted leaves of absence until June 30 because of illness, Miss Ileene B. Jordan, instructor in physical education, will be replaced by Mrs. Gwendolyn Feggans as a substitute.

Miss Iva G. Jones, assistant professor of English, was granted sabbatical leave from September, 1948, to June, 1949, to complete work for her doctorate degree.

Appointments Made

Temporary appointments were made to:

John Herculson as part-time teacher in chemistry; Mrs. Gwendolyn P. Hunter, senior account clerk; Miss Esther B. Perry, junior account clerk; Miss Lillie G. Patterson, assistant librarian; Miss Beatrice E. Mayo, principal account clerk; I. Miss Margaret N. Young, senior assistant librarian; and Mrs. Mabel E. Gordon, director of residence halls.

Permission was granted the Epworth League Institute of the Washington Conference and the School of Methods for Town and Rural Pastors, both Methodist organizations, to hold sessions at Morgan this summer.

Patrolmen Instructed on Ruling Covering Pedestrians' Welfare

Traffic patrolmen are being warned of a recent Court of Appeals ruling which gives pedestrians the right of way on green lights at intersections.

According to Police Commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson, a motorist turning on a green light forfeits his right of way because he turns into a red light.

Traffic officers are being urged to see that pedestrians are out of the way before permitting vehicles to turn, but they should be careful not to dart across the intersection without looking.

Stevedore Awarded $3,000 for Injuries

An award of $2,750 was made through the State Industrial Accident Commission, this week, to Luther Powell, of 614 N. Mount St., for injuries he received as a stevedore.

Amos I. Meyers, attorney for Mr. Powell, presented that worker injured his ankle and hip when he fell from a box car while working for the Atlantic and Gulf Stevedore Co. on May 19, 1947.

To Riders of No. 6 Curtis Bay...

Fairfield . . . Monument St. Line:

This line was converted Sunday, March 21st to

BUSES

That's good news to you riders of the #6 line! No longer will you have to ride on those old trolley cars. They'll be gone . . . taken out of service . . . starting Sunday, March 21st!

Instead you'll travel in new, handsome and modern buses. Each bus has modern ventilation. There's a change of air every 1½ minutes. In winter there's constant heat from floor to ceiling. There are no drafts . . . even when the doors are opened. And the "Koroseal" upholstered seats are designed to give you a Pullman-car ride. Double springs make sure you get the most comfortable ride any modern bus can give you.

You'll get a better ride . . . because these modern, new 45-seat buses will steer around traffic delays. They'll detour around fires and accidents that have always stopped cars in their tracks.

Armistead Gardens Helped

This changeover adds two additional services by your Transit Company. During the peak hours, those of you who live in Armistead Gardens will have direct service to and from downtown. No more changing, during the rush, at Monument and Kresson Streets.

Service to Maryland Drydock

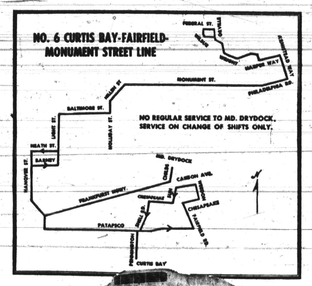
Maryland Drydock workers will be taken right to the door of the yard. No more long walks from the old trolley car. This is not an all-day service but will operate on change of shifts. You'll get the same direct service when your day's work is done.

Another Step Forward

After long and costly delays, this go-ahead on the #6 line is another step forward in the Modernization Plan. The old #6 cars, veterans of years of public service, will be retired. The newer cars on the line will be switched to other routes so that still other obsolete cars can be taken off the streets.

This doesn't mean that everybody will sail through midtown traffic with the greatest of ease. But if ever the Baltimore traffic problem is to be licked . . . the Modernization Plan is certainly a key cog in the program.

Your Transit Company is going ahead with its part just as fast as it can.



This is one of the new, modern, flexible vehicles that will soon replace many old trolley cars. Now there's all set to help do their share of lessening Baltimore's traffic problem.

The Baltimore Transit Co.

Inability of Nations to Make Changes Without War Called Very Unfortunate

Competing with the ideal Palm Sunday weather which kept thousands on the go, and the outside din of a fraternal parade, the NAACP shared its monthly membership meeting with the YWCA before the smallest audience it has ever had.

Fewer than 125 persons were present at Sharp Street Methodist Church where the two organizations joined to celebrate YWCA Day. Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson, local NAACP president, remarked that never again would the NAACP conduct a mass meeting on Palm Sunday.

Usually, up to 1000 and 1200 persons overflow the church for these meetings.

Speaks About Crisis

Sunday's speaker was Miss Marion Cuthbert of the faculty of Brooklyn College in New York, who fortunately, presented her subject, "Significance in Crisis," after the blare of drums and bugles by the paraders had died away.

Miss Cuthbert, who is a member of the national boards of both the YWCA and NAACP, labeled these two organizations as examples of "vanguards against the tide" of thinking people.

Depend Upon War

Remarking that it is unfortunate that the world cannot bring about major changes without war, she pointed out that two main periods of crisis "blew up the bits" of the world, and re-arranged them in better pattern of living for colored people.

The first period she named was the depression of 1929 which contended suffering to the point where it was no longer peculiar to colored Americans, and was therefore better understood by all.

The second period embraced World War II, during which America utilized the power of every man, woman and child for survival.

Miss Cuthbert reasoned that the world has enough persons with power of intellect to sit down and decide on peace for all times, but emphasized, "we are not emotionally prepared to do this."

Our Problem Solved

The speaker said she is convinced that the problem of the American colored man is solved, for he has measured up in every way to what the intellectual needs of a person in this type of culture.

Miss Cuthbert had her chief concern was whether this country "can meet the world-wide trends in living."

She listed three main points in the significance of crisis, the change in patterns of living; the need to' stay ready for change and keep pace with the changes; and the need to view these changes in their entirety with objectivness.

Mrs. Alice Arrington, director of the Madison Ave. YWCA Branch, introduced the speaker, after the purpose of the YWCA was outlined by Mrs. Edna Over Gray, chairman of the board of Management.

Color Unimportant

The meeting opened with a dramatic reading centered about the theme, "No one asked if he were black or white, Catholic or Protestant or Jew . . . Only the sick in mind."

Mrs. George V. Lottier, chairman of the board of Management Madison YWCA, and Miss Esther C. Stamats, executive director, YWCA, collaborated upon the presentation.

Jesse O. Thomas, of the Red Cross, spoke briefly about the activities of that organization.

The NAACP's section of the meeting included the taking of new membership by Gentry McDonald, membership secretary; and a resume of local activities by Milton P. Brown, executive secretary. Mrs. Jackson presided for this period.

Music was by the Y-Teen Choral Group and Verse Choir under the direction of Mrs. Ruth R. Freeman. The latter group closed the meeting with a reading of the dramatic "Freedom Road."

Democrats Elect 20-Man Board

Drive for 500 Members Launched at Meeting

Further steps toward strong reorganization of leading Democrats in the State were taken Thursday evening, with the election of a new 20-man board of governors for the Monumental Democratic Club at 1422 Pennsylvania Ave.

The meeting launched a concentrated membership drive with a goal at 500 new members. There were 208 members during 1947.

First action in the rebuilding of this 20-year old organization, which has been dormant for several months, occurred March 15, when William B. Dixon, insurance executive, was named president; J. Gene Payne, former club president, elected secretary, and Courtlandt Brown, businessman, treasurer.

47 Key Men Attend

The meeting Thursday was the first general membership meeting with 47 key Democrats in attendance, and the following were named to the board of governors: Messrs. Dixon, who is chairman, Payne and Brown, Calvin Douglas, Nicholas Rice, Dr. Joseph H. Thomas, Arthur Bragg, T. Randolph Waters, Donald Murray, W. C. Flippen, George Williams, Joseph Flannagan, Oscar J. Mason, Mack Savoy, Aubrey A. Briscoe, Lonnie Glenn, J. Howard Payne, Dr. George Pendleton, Albert Whittington and Elroy Wilson.

Other business transacted included the establishment of a club house committee, with William A. Haynes, manager of the Banneker Homes in Fairfield, as chairman, and some plans toward the setting up of a women's auxiliary.

It was statement that, though situ-

More Votes Can Resolve Problems, Douglass Says

"More of our problems would be given effective consideration if more colored citizens voted," Calvin A. Douglass, newly-appointed assistant city solicitor, told an NAACP meeting this week.

Mr. Douglass was guest speaker at the fourth session of the Civil Rights Clinic, sponsored by the organization's membership.

He emphasized that registering and voting are part of an American heritage and should be exercised by every eligible individual.

Explains Court System

Mr. Douglass also explained the Baltimore court system, and reviewed his experiences at the University of Maryland Law School.

E. Everett Lane, attorney, will speak at the next Civil Rights Clinic which will be held Tuesday at the NAACP office, 402 Dolphin St.

Delegates to Washington

Misses Mary and Thelma Watson will represent the NAACP Youth Council at the Second Legislative and Lobbying Conference which will meet in Washington next Wednesday through Saturday, sponsored by the Youth Division of the association.

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, will deliver the opening address to the delegates who will also visit Congress.

Essay Awards Coming

The local NAACP has announced that winners will be named and awards made for essays on the subject "Why Vote?" on April 23 at the Intercollegiate Oratorical and Vocal Contest.

This affair will be held at Sharp St. Methodist Church, and competing will be students from Howard, Hampton Institute, and Lincoln universities, Morgan and Virginia State colleges, and

Gov. Lane Urges Eligible Voters to Register Now

With the spring primary election slightly more than one month off, Governor Lane urged all eligible Marylanders to register to vote.

He based his appeal for greater participation in the May and November elections this year on what he termed the "critical issues facing the country."

Extra Registration Day

Except in Baltimore City, Montgomery and Washington Counties, which have permanent registration systems, additional registration will be taken on Apr. 27, an extra day.

Maryland residents of at least one year, who will be 21 before Nov. 2, may register and vote in the May primaries.

In Other Counties

Wicomico County residents must register next month. A 1947 Legislative act made registration necessary. Designated days are Apr. 5, 6, 19 and 20.

In Baltimore County, a new general registration will take place after the May primaries.

All prospective voters who registered previously and those now eligible in this county must sign up with the election officials in Towson on Sept. 27 or 28, and Oct. 4 or 5 to participate in the fall election.

Residents of Baltimore and Wicomico and Washington Counties may sign at the office of registry any day up to Apr. 2.

Registration After Primary

After Apr. 2, Baltimore County will suspend registration until 10 days after the primary then resume until 45 days before the general election.

Montgomery and Washington Counties will reopen at the same time and continue until 30 days before the November election.

In addition to the supplemental registration day required by law on Apr. 27, supervisors of elections may record prospective voters on any days they select at their county seats.

MR. LEROY CRAYTON

Mr. Leroy Crayton, President of Crayton's Southern Sausage Co. Inc. of Cleveland, Ohio recently visited the Baltimore Branch of the Fuller Products Company, 1841 Pennsylvania Avenue and spoke briefly to the Company's sales force. Mr. Crayton, a personal friend of Mr. Fuller, told the sales people that the future of the Negro people is directly related to the extent of their participation in the commerce of the United States. Mr. Crayton recently opened a branch of his company in Baltimore.

AFRO Aid Sought in Locating Man

The AFRO has been asked to aid police in locating Julius Smith, 40, longshoreman of 317 S. Vincent St., who disappeared from his place of employment on Tuesday.

Mr. Smith, employed by the Old Bay Line Company on Light St., was last seen Tuesday morning, inspecting a large tid ud at a dock at Locust Point.

He was scheduled to make the Locust Point inspection then go to a pier in Canton for a similar inspection before returning to the company's offices on Light St.

The sleeveless's wife, Mrs. Georgie Smith did not become alarmed when her husband failed to come home late last night as she thought he probably was working overtime.

Harbor Dragged in Vain

The following morning, a fellow worker phoned her when he noticed that Smith had not checked out at the time clock. It was then that an investigation was begun and police informed.

It is believed that the worker accidentally fell in the harbor, but through Thursday evening his body had not been found although the harbor had been dragged by policemen.

Description Published

The missing steveiore was about five feet eight inches tall and weighed 165 pounds. He is of medium brown complexion and has a scar on the back of his head.

When last seen, Smith was wearing GI trousers and combat jacket, over a red and green plaid shirt, along with tan shoes and a gray cap attached to which was a union button bearing his picture.

snatched the kitchen knife he was using to cut the meat and stabbed him in the arm.

He wrested the weapon from her, and "being angry," slashed her about the body. "I don't know how many times," Miles testified.

The man was himself treated for the arm wound, it was said, required a blood transfusion. He was hospitalized for some time. The four-month sentence was imposed upon a conviction of manslaughter.
