General Ignorance Held One Cause of Social Evils

Medical Needs, Especially for Children Outlined at Social Workers' Round Table

General ignorance as to community needs, lack of sex education and the absence of fundamental Christian principles which would bring help to the needy were blamed for present day social evils, here, Thursday.

The indictment came from Mrs. Dorothy F. Banton, head of the Krut Training School for Girls in Delaware, who spoke at the dinner meeting of the Social Workers Round Table, held at the Madison Avenue YWCA.

Mrs. Banton told the group that the past year saw 25,000 children run away from their homes, and that the 1945 census listed 83,000 unwed mothers between the ages of 14 and 19 years.

Much of this resulted from the wide gap between human interest and the manner in which human needs are met in communities, she said.

Health Needs Great

Health facilities for children in the Baltimore area are sadly lacking, the social workers were also told.

Miss Helen Balbernie, who is connected with the social service department of the Harriet Lane Hospital for Children, said that the greatest need of the local community was medical care for chronic cases.

She pointed out that there was a 7 to 8% tuberculosis rate among children in the 5 to 12 age group, yet Baltimore provided only 12 hospital beds for children under 5 years, these at Henryton.

She added that the Henryton situation was also undesirable because of its distance from Baltimore. Parents, she said, were apt to feel that their babies were too far away.

There are no provisions for treatment of diabetic children, she said, and only Crownsville has facilities for treatment of epileptics.

Mr. Ray Speaks

Other speakers at the conference included:

Melvin Roy of the Employment Bureau, who urged an adequate guidance program for young people which would lead to proper preparation for jobs; Ellis Ash, who talked of the housing situation;

Andrew R. Johnson, president of the Round Table, who gave a report of the organization's activities; and Wayman Holley, who told of recreation needs for Baltimore youths.

Mrs. Muriel Johnson, of Maryland Training School for Girls, presided.

Attending the meeting were:

C. C. Atkinson, Ellis Ash, Miss Ovalia S. Adkins, Mrs. Vivian G. Alleyne, Mrs. Alice Arrington, Mrs. Dorothy F. Banton, Miss Helen Balbernie;

Benjamin Brown, Clarence Burrow, Mrs. Bernice W. Brandon, Carlos Bryant, Miss Eunice Brooks, Mrs. Minnie B. Cesar, Mrs. Margaret Carrington, Miss Olive Cauley;
