Morgan Gets $38,000 for Out-of-State Scholarships; Total May Pass $100,000

The sum of $38,000 for out-of-State scholarships was granted to the Morgan State College Scholarship Committee for the first semester.

Scholarships worth $27,609 have already been awarded for summer work, and if the second semester grants likewise total $38,000, the grand total for the year will, for the first time, exceed $100,000.

Scholarships are granted to students who wish to take undergraduate, graduate or professional courses available at the University of Maryland but not offered at Morgan, Bowie or Princess Anne.

129 Go to NYU

The largest number of students, 129, were granted scholarships at the rate of $7 per point, to take New York University extension courses on a part-time basis.

Miss Charlene Hodges was granted $500 to specialize in modern languages and Russian at Connecticut College.

59 Select Howard

Some 59 students asked for scholarships totaling $5,600 to study at Howard University. Twelve of them selected engineering and architecture.

The sum of $150 dollars is the usual award to attend Howard undergraduate classes, and $400 in medicine.

5 Hopkins Applicants

Five students were applicants for grants to study at Johns Hopkins University which, heretofore, has accepted students only in engineering and chemistry. With the coming of a new dean at this famous institution, colored graduate students are now accepted there in education, too.

There were three applicants for Catholic University in Washington; and 26 for Hampton Institute, chiefly in commerce, accounting, bookkeeping and shorthand, which courses are taught at the University of Maryland but not at Morgan.

25 More to NYU

In addition to the 129 part-time students at New York University, 25, mostly teachers in the public schools, applied for full-time or part-time scholarships.

Those who study part-time will go up to New York on week-ends.

In music, applications to enter the Baltimore Institute of Musical Arts were withheld temporarily to determine whether this institution is accredited within the meaning of the State scholarship law.

The commission set up the policy that veterans would be entitled to a scholarship if they could show a true differential.

For instance, a Baltimore veteran, who should be entitled to attend the University of Maryland Institute, can live at home without extra cost for board and lodging.

If he is required to go out of town to Washington or Nashville for his medical training, the commission declared he should be reimbursed as the law provides for a goodly share of his board and lodging.

The Rev. John Wise and the Rev. C. C. Coleman officiated at the services, which were held in Sharp St. Methodist Church where Mr. Ross had been a trustee for many years.

More than 1000 persons visited the Ross home during the week and some 200 attended the funeral services. Miss Claudina Smith was soloist at the funeral.

Mr. Ross is survived by his wife, Mrs. Edna P. Ross, and four children, Elaine, Elliott, Everrett and William Jr.

Nearly 5 Million Asked for Buildings at Morgan

Part of Increase Due to Delay in Construction; New Salary Scale Would Create $6,300 Top

Appropriations totaling $4,737,000 for new buildings in the years 1950-51 were asked for Morgan State College in the budget requested with the State Budget Bureau this week.

This is an increase of $700,000 over architects estimates for the same buildings two years ago. All of these buildings could have been constructed for $1,500,000 eight years ago and would have been if the State had not delayed in erecting the buildings requested for Morgan.

The present request includes buildings which were approved during the Governor O'Conor administration, but never built because the State did not provide the money or because the funds appropriated were not sufficient.

Gym to Be Most Costly

The present requests include two dormitories for men and one for women at $4,439,000 each. Five years ago, Morgan built the same kind of dormitory, Tubman House, for $152,000.

The new buildings requested include:

A gymnasium, $970,000; residence for classified workers, $121,000; residences for faculty and administration workers, $443,000; auditorium, $795,000; home economics practice house, $106,000; addition to Spencer Hall, $450,000; Addition to Carnegie Hall, $402,000; twelve garages, $18,000; infirmary, $124,000; deficiency appropriation for equipment for the new dining hall, $118,000; and money to complete the new classroom building, $305,000.

Half-Million More for Salaries

Another $448,000 more is asked for salaries in the next two years.

Under the new scale, top salary for professors would be $5,100 to $6,300; for associate professors, $4,000 to $4,900; instructors, $3,000 to $3,900; assistant instructors, $2,700 to $3,100.

The new salary scale for instructors below the rank of professor is the same as that now being paid at Bowie State Teachers College and other State teachers colleges.

15 More Teachers Needed

The budget request also asks positions for 15 new teachers, pointing out that in the field of education alone, the University of Maryland is offering 3 to 4 times as many courses as will be offered at Morgan.

For example, the University of Maryland is offering courses in accounting, stenography and typing, bookkeeping, etc., which are not now available at Morgan College.

Free Vaccinations Made Available for School Beginners

Free vaccinations for children who will enter the public schools for the first time may be obtained next week from 9 to 10 a.m. at the Druid Health Center, 1315 Druid Hill Ave.

The center will be closed on Labor Day.

Certificates verifying previous vaccinations may also be obtained at the center, according to Dr. H. Maceo Williams, director.

Dr. Williams added that both services may be obtained from a private physician if the parent desires.

$10,000 Damage Suit Filed Against City

Blaming the Mayor and City Council for a hole in the street into which she reportedly fell, Mrs. Dorothy Vaughn of 1722 W. North Ave. filed a $10,000 damage suit, Wednesday, in City Court.

Through Amos I. Meyers, attorney, the matron claimed that she was seriously injured when she stepped off a streetcar last April 28 at North and Fulton Aves., and stepped into a hole in the safety zone.

She also named the Baltimore Transit Company as a co-defendant.

Tomorrow, they say, never comes. Election Day is coming, and, like all real citizens, you want to vote. If you are not on the poll books, you must register not later than Sept. 23, for the November elections.

Mayor Commends AFRO for Clean Block Campaign

Although he was unable to attend the Clean Block closing exercises Tuesday, Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro Jr., nevertheless sent his greetings and best wishes to the AFRO's 14th annual Clean Block Campaign.

In a memo to Mrs. Frances M. Wood, campaign director, the mayor says, "Certainly, the constituent factor for a cleaner city is citizen co-operation . . . Public education programs such as the AFRO-AMERICAN Clean Block Campaign gather facts about conditions which affect all of our citizens, and make the individual citizen recognize that he owes to his community consideration and co-operation in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the whole.

"Untold benefits will be derived from this campaign conducted by the AFRO - AMERICAN Newspapers not only for the present but in years to come. I am convinced of the willingness of the citizens to co-operate when ours are provided with leadership and guidance such as is given by this Clean Block Campaign."

City Co-Operating

Then the Mayor went on to describe the improvement made in the sanitation program of the city, including new equipment, collections of trash and garbage twice a week instead of once, street cleaning and flushing operations AFTER a collection day and special attention to the conditions of markets.

Mayor D'Alesandro concluded by expressing his conviction that Baltimore can be made "the outstanding city in the United States for cleanliness, health, beauty and charm."

BUS DISCRIMINATION: Mother of 3 Sues Bus Firms for $50,000

WASHINGTON

A Northeast mother of three children filed a $50,000 suit this week against the Safeway Trails, Inc., and Virginia Stage Lines, Inc., for alleged discrimination against her and her children, while en route to Crooked Run, Va.

The plaintiff is Mrs. Eva H. Langon, 5016 Washington Pl., N.E., who boarded a Trailway bus marked "Charlottesville" with her three children, a sister and a niece, on Aug. 27, taking a seat near the middle of the bus at the Washington terminal.

She alleges that the bus driver, identified as a Mr. Harrison, ordered her and her children to move to the rear, but noting that there were not enough unoccupied seats in the rear to accommodate five persons, she ignored the order.

Morgan Case Ruling Cited

After a few minutes, the driver returned and repeated the order. Mrs. N. V. Greene, a sister of Mrs. Langon, reminded the driver about the Supreme Court's ruling in the Irene Morgan case which outlawed segregation of passengers in interstate travel.

The disturbed driver then blurted out that the passengers might as well move now, because they would have to do so when they reached Falls Church, Va.

Passengers Queried

Mrs. Langon asked why and the driver said, "because the people on the bus will be complaining."

Facing the passengers, Mrs. Langon asked: "Is there any one on this bus, who objects to our being seated here?"

Trooper Ignored Also

Only one woman answered and she was seated in the front row.

True to his threat, when the bus arrived at Falls Church, a policeman boarded it in front of the police station and repeated the order to "move to the rear." Mrs. Langon and her sister ignored him.

The policeman thereupon told the driver to take the bus to a nearby circle where a Virginia State trooper was called.

He went through the same routine, but Mrs. Langon and Mrs. Greene refused to be intimidated. The trooper then ordered the bus taken to Fairfax where a disorderly charge was placed against the two women.

Called Disorderly

Mrs. Langon claims that as a result of her unpleasant experience, she was forced to return to Washington where she was confined in bed for three days.

She is asking through her attorney, Frank D. Reeves, for the sum of $25,000 compensatory damages and $25,000 exemplary damages.

The children with her were Patricia, 8; Eva, 7; and Willerton, 5; and Mrs. Greene's daughter, Patricia, 8.

Tomorrow, they say, never comes. Election Day is coming, and, like all real citizens, you want to vote. If you are not on the poll books, you must register not later than Sept. 23, for the November elections.
