Roland Hayes Celebrated Tenor, Double-Barreled, Double-Size 10¢!

Roland Hayes to Sing in D.C.

Roland Hayes, celebrated tenor, will be presented by Alpha chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity in a concert Sunday, Oct. 31, at 3 p.m., at the Asbury Methodist Church, 11th and K Sts., N.W.

This distinguished artist, regarded as one of the world's great vocalists, has forged a meteorite career from toil, tears and talent. Born the son of an ex-slave, Mr. Hayes worked in factories and foundries, as a butler and furnace boy to finance his studies at Fisk University. It was there he joined the Jubilee Singers and accompanied them to Boston, where he studied under Arthur J. Hubbard.

The artist staged his first successful concert at Symphony Hall, Boston, and with the proceeds went to England.

In London, the initial reception was cool, but eventually the artistry of this native of a small backwoods Georgia town triumphed and he crowned his first overseas tour with a command performance before the British Crown.

Sabu's Uncanny Horsemanship Displayed in New Albert Film

Tiny Sabu, who uncanny mastery of a giant pachyderm thrilled his fans in "Elephant Boy," reveals the same power over horses in "Drums," Alexander Korda's technicolor production currently at the New Albert Theatre.

In the current picture, which sets Sabu as a resplendent Indian prince, the boy is seen riding a milk-white Arab stallion over treacherous ground at full gallop.

He learned to ride expertly within a few days, and by the time the picture was completed the animal would even leave its trainer at the youngster's call.

"Drums" also features Raymond Massey, Roger Livesey, Desmond Tester and Valerie Robson, is released through Film Classics, Inc.

The second feature is drama behind the scenes of a big city newspaper, of a type never before filmed, is the essence of "Blonde Ice," starring Leslie Brooks and Robert Paige.

Miss Brooks, playing the title role, is a society columnist seeking wealth and social position. So intent is she upon her goal, and that of eventually wedding Paige, a sports editor, that she commits several murders, and finally entangles the man she loves in a murder charge.

Mrs. Mercedes Douglass Heads Greenwich Theatre

Within the past few weeks stockholders of the original all-white Greenwich Theatre, Baltimore's oldest operatic organization, have been almost completely reorganized. For more than two years the Greenwich Theatre, Baltimore's white operatic organization, refused to operate on a basis of no segregation in the auditorium.

Civic and educational leaders comprise the new organization. The list of officers and executive board are:

Mercedes Douglass, pres.; Walter T. Dixon, 1st v. pres.; Dr. Leo Klein, 2nd v. pres.; Landrol Clinton, executive director; Abby Rand, recording secretary; Robert T. Ford, business manager; Clarence J. Roberts, treasurer; Frances S. Jackson, financial secretary; Van Vanger, corresponding secretary; Felix R. Mandelsohn, publicity director; Richard T. Hart, research director and Robert P. McGuinn, legal advisor.

The Executive Board includes: Vivian C. Allerme, Anne Bender, Joop!, Irene Dodson, chairman of the membership committee; Dr. S. Brylloon Fagin, Dean George C. Jackson, Frank Hale, Houston B. Jackson, Adah K. Jenkins, Pearl Johnson, Clifton Lamb, Canada Lee and Marion P. Wall.

The group has been in serious financial straits and a drive is now on way to secure funds for the production of "Othello."

'Forever Amber' Shown 1st Time at Regular Prices

"Forever Amber," hailed as one of the most spectacular motion picture presentations of all time, is being shown for the first time at regular prices at the Harlem Theatre.

Photographed in color by Technicolor, the Twentieth Century-Fox film which boasts a galaxy of Hollywood's top stars headed by Linda Darnell, Cornel Wilde, Richard Green and George Sanders, brings to the screen all those spectacle, glamor and excitement that has made it the most midef-discussed motion picture project in recent years.

It took two years and a cast and production crew of thousands to transfer Kathleen Winsor's sensational best-seller to the screen.

The most excited speculation in years centered around the choice of the actress to portray Amber St. Clair, the country girl who became the most talked-about woman in the brilliant Court of King Charles II. The award of the coveted role went to Linda Darnell Pugh, who agreed with enthusiasm.

In his most famous role to date, the Carlton, the dashing cavalier Amherst Wilde is seen as Bruce with the serving.

Cornel Wilde appears as Bruce with the serving.
