GOP Campaign Aide Hits Rainey Party Switch Plan

Val Washington Also Confused by Report Alexander Will Head Philly Democrat Drive

WASHINGTON

Magistrate Joseph H. Rainey, Progressive Party Congressional candidate in Philadelphia, is "more to be pitied than scorned," if reports of his recent attempt to slide back over the railing into the Democrat corral is true, Val J. Washington, assistant Republican campaign manager, said this week.

Surprising as it was to learn that he had joined forces with the Progressives," said Washington, "at least it was more understandable than wanting to go back to the ever-grazed, boulder-strewn Democrat pasture."

Can Understand Shepard

"I can understand the Rev. Marshall Shepard beating the bushes for President Truman and the Democrats; he's on the Federal payroll, and his devoted activity is reasonable.

But, said Washington, it's difficult to reconcile Magistrate Rainey's reported effort to "get back on the Democrat mourner's bench with what his illustrious predecessor, Congressman Joseph H. Rainey of South Carolina, stood for and had to say about Democrats."

Congressman Prophetic

Terming the late Congressman Rainey "most prophetic" Washington recalled that the Reconstruction era, Congressman once said:

"If the Democrats are such bitter friends of colored citizens why is it that when propositions are offered for their elevation and the extension of justice to them, do the Democrats array themselves in unbroken phalanx, and vote against every such measure?"

"When Magistrate Rainey grows up politically, he'll settle down to the old standoy, the Republican Grand Old Party," Washington asserted.

The other confusing aspect in the "Philadelphia Story," said Washington, is the announcement that Raymond Face Alexander, lawyer, has been appointed to head the colored Democrat campaign in Philadelphia. "I guess the most that can be said about Alexander," said Washington, "is that he's trying to put into practice the reputed brotherly love of Philadelphia.

Lynn Refutes Pacifist Charge

Regrets Leaders Attack at Resistance Activity

NEW YORK—As one who is not a pacifist and who was active in the League for Non-Violent Civil Disobedience Against Military Segregation, Conrad J. Lynn denies charges made by A. Philip Randolph and Grant Reynolds that the league was used "as a front for ulterior purposes," by a "religious pacifist nucleus."

It is unfortunate that a critcism of the motives of some of those most active in the civil disobedience campaign should have been made in a public statement, Lynn stated.

Bayard Rustin, league executive secretary, and A. J. Muste, of the National Co-ordinating Committee, who were singled out for criticism, nevertheless at any time tried to conceal their basic pacifist convictions, nor did they use the league for pacifist purposes. They at all times acted loyally for the objectives of the league.

Views on Abandoning

They were the ones who, when Mr. Randolph on Aug. 16, announced the withdrawal of himself and Mr. Reynolds from the campaign, insisted that we consider seriously whether the civil disobedience effort should not be abandoned, Lynn explained.

I insisted that to drop the campaign now would not only be a denial of our principles, but likewise would be breaking faith with the many young men who, partly as a result of the work of the League, had said they would refuse to join a jim crow Army, he asserted.

The charge that Rustin issued unauthorized statements for the League is without foundation in fact.

As of this date, colored men are still segregated in the Army. Those working with the Campaign to Resist Military Segregation believe that every effort must be made to enlist colored and white youths, to refuse actual induction into segregated service, Lynn declared.

Precautions Against Gas Poisoning Urged

Extra precautions against carbon monoxide poisoning are in order at this season, for the number of deaths from this cause increases as the weather grows colder, according to the State Department of Health.

Since the exhaust gases from automobile engines always contain carbon monoxide, a car engine should never be allowed to run in a closed garage. Large garages and repair shops should be equipped with mechanical ventilation that can capture the exhaust fumes at their source and carry them outside the building.

These precautions are necessary to prevent accidents, possibly fatalities.

Furnaces May be Lethal

At home, furnaces and stoves require particular attention before being fired for the winter. Ill-fitting pipes, worn and corroded parts, clogged chimneys and improperly operated dampers can permit dangerous amounts of carbon monoxide to accumulate in the living areas of the house.

Gas stoves should also be checked for leaks in connections or piping and for proper adjustment of pilot flames, although the odor of escaping gas serves as a warning that prompt investigation is necessary.

When carbon monoxide contamination of interior air is suspected, the doors and windows should be opened to permit complete circulation of air.

Flame May Cause Explosion

A lighted match or candle should never be used to look for a suspected gas leak, and the spark from an electric switch can also cause gas to explode if the concentration of gas is high.

An individual overcome by poisonous gas should be moved out of doors and given artificial respiration until the physician arrives. Careful attention to these precautions can make home a safer place and may actually result in saving lives.

Republicans Hope for GOP Victory

WASHINGTON

The Republican campaign cause received a rousing send-off Thursday night as a crowd of 500 rallied noisily to the call of party leaders who assembled of to pledge votes for State and national post aspirants at Graham Auditorium.

Most of the sparks were provided by Corporation Commissioner Grant Reynolds of New York, who took do task the records of both President Harry Truman and Henry Wallace, Independent Progressive Party Presidential aspirant.

Says Truman Failed

Playing on words coined by the late Al Smith, Reynolds said: "Let's look at their records." Of Truman, he asserted:

"He (Truman) was in the Senate in Washington 10 years and the only time he was heard of than was his vote against the anti-poll tax legislation, and during that span he failed to sponsor a single piece of legislation."

Reynolds accused the President of failing also to order the elimination of of segregation in the military forces with his power of Commander-in-Chief.

Could End Segregation

"Segregation in the armed forces could be halted by the President if he were serious with his proposed civil rights program," he decired.

Reynolds accused Wallace of failing to use opportunity to foster civil rights when he was Vice-President, citing an instance when Mrs. Mary Bethune and a group led by her were shunted away after several efforts to gain an audience with him on the question of civil rights.

The commissioner supported the candidacy of Robert C. Hendrickson of this State for the U.S. Senate, Governor Warren of California as Republican Vice-President, and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York for President. He cited scores of high positions assigned to colored persons in New York under the administration of Dewey.

Another highlight speaker was Mrs. Sara Spencer Washington, Atlantic City civic, political leader and business woman, who prophesied that "those who refuse to vote for Dewey, Warren and Hendrickson will be sorry on Nov. 3."

Hendrickson, Frank Sundstrom, Republican candidate for re-election to Congress; Assistant National Republican Campaign Manager Val J. Washington of Chicago, and Sen. Alfred C. Clapp also were among the scheduled speakers.

Sen. Ives Urges Real Rights Action

Says Senate Must Abolish Filibuster

NEW YORK—Despite substantial progress in the overall campaign to secure civil rights, efforts have been "too haphazard and poorly timed," Sen. Irving M. Ives declared Oct. 14 at a luncheon meeting of the New York American Jewish Committee at Hotel Martinique, in urging a united effort "to map out a plan to prosecute consistently."

Senator Ives asserted that legislation to combat discrimination in employment is of primary importance in the "battle for civil rights." He contended that anti-discrimination legislation would be a major step in winning the overall civil rights battle.

Junk the Filibuster

"The first obstacle to be overcome in Congress, if any campaign for anti-discrimination legislation is to be successful, is the filibuster in the Senate," he said. "As long as the Senate rules remain as they are, it will be virtually impossible to obtain Senate action on any such legislation.

"Therefore, the first step in the advancement of such a program is the adoption of an amendment to the Senate rules which would provide for the exercise of cloture in the debate of any question, issue or motion which may be before the Senate.

If the Republicans remain in control of the Senate, Senator Ives pointed out, revision of the Senate rules will be made the first order of business after the 81st Congress convenes. He predicted that many liberal Democratic Senators "will join with the Republicans."

Color Ban at Maryland U. Called 'Illegal, Immoral'

Civic Delegation Tells Board of Regents Present Policy Is 'Shameful and Disgraceful'

Failure of the University of Maryland to admit all qualified applicants, regardless of race, creed or color, to graduate and professional courses was branded as both "illegal and immoral" during a meeting Friday morning of the Board of Regents and a delegation representing the Maryland Committee for Equal Educational Opportunities.

The delegation, headed by Howard H. Murphy, chairman, met with the regents in the board room of University Hospital, with Judge William P. Cole, board chairman, presiding.

Rabbi Morris Lieberman read a four - page memorandum which gave the background of the matter and a statement of the current situation in which qualified colored applicants have been denied admission to various graduate schools of the university.

Cites Court Decisions

Citing court decision and judicial interpretations which call for the provision by the university of graduate and professional training, the memorandum pointed out that such training not only must be equal but must be provided immediately.

The memorandum recommended the things:

1. That a public statement of policy be made affirming the right of every citizen of the State to be considered for admission to graduate and professional courses on the basis of his qualifications and without regard to race, creed or color.

2. That this statement of policy be implemented by appropriate directives to the heads of the various graduate schools and departments.

Franklin H. Williams, assistant counsel from the national office of the NAACP, spoke on the legal aspects of the matter declaring that the Constitution and Federal and State courts have made it clear that there can be no equality in a policy of separation and segregation and termed the university's practice and policy "shameful and disgraceful."

He cited the cases of Martin Booth, Wilmore B. Leonard and Mrs. Lorrie Williams who have been denied the opportunity for graduate study at the university. While other reasons may have been cited, he pointed out, the refusal in each case was actually based upon color.

Dr. Byrd Silent

Dr. H. C. (Curley) Byrd, university president, sat throughout the entire presentation and subsequent discussion but did not take part.

Senator Millard Tydings asked whether Maryland citizens would accept a "duplicate" university in which all facilities were substantially equal, and was given an emphatic "no" reply by Mr. Williams and Mr. Murphy.

Also speaking for the committee were Dr. Arthur O. Lovejoy, Milton F. Brown, Sidney Holander, Mrs. Dolores Hunt, Mrs. William P. Lentz and Mrs. John Ramsey.

Stand "Keenly Conscious"

Judge Herman M. Moser, who was forced to leave the meeting because of a pending court case, said before leaving that he came by give his endorsement to the stand of the Baltimore Urban League in the matter.

At the conclusion of the discussion, Judge Cole declared that members of the board are "keenly conscious" of the situation and will give "every consideration" to the delegations petition. He said that he could not comment upon the pending Booth case but that the board's position would be expressed through its attorneys when the case comes to trial.

16 Groups Represented

The organizations represented at the meeting were:

American for Democratic Action, Dr. Arthur O. Lovejoy; Association of Administrative and Professional Colored Schools, by Henry W. Wait and William H. Farrell; Baltimore Jewish Council, by Dr. Leon Sachs; Baltimore Teachers Union, Abt. Mrs. Dolores Hunt and Lewis Lefane.

MILADY'S BEAUTY WARE:

400 At Beauticians Workshop, Trade Show

Approximately 400 beauticians were registered for the 1948 Workshop Conference and Trade Show of the Maryland Master Beauticians which convened at the Monumental Elks Home Sunday through Thursday.

The largest crowds were present at the evening sessions, but many were on hand for the various demonstrations of the latest techniques in hair dressing, styling and cutting.

A colorful party Sunday evening provided entertainment for the registrants and a large show featuring all types of talent.

New Products Displayed

The morning and afternoon hours Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were spent in demonstrations of various new products for the improvement and beautification of milady's hair.

Representatives of Lux and Nulox products demonstrated the methods of their products. Nulox is a greaseless, orderless, hair straightener and conditioner that is used instead of pressing oil.

Both products are supposed to leave the hair looking natural and in condition to remain that way for about four weeks.

Style Show

At the Monday night style show, local beauticians presented models with original hair styles. Chignons of curls, soft waves and glamorous upsweeps were most popular. The trend seemed to be toward the "natural look."

One style created by Mrs. Della Gibbons for Mrs. Margaret Sterling was selected to be used on magazine cover.

The latest fashions from the Valentine shop and Carvers also were modeled. Clothes appropriate for the career girl, young sophisticate, society matron and even the teen-agers were featured.

Lustra-Silk Present

Hair-styling was also demonstrated on the stage. Nulox demonstrators showed the audience how the creation of a hair-do from start to finish. Various styles were created on other models whose hair had been done by the Lustra-Silk girls.

During the program, the Junior Redcaps sang several popular ballads. The four youngsters directed by Clarence Carter, and accompanied by William Matthews were enthusiastically received.

On Tuesday, the crowd present for the morning and afternoon demonstrations included beauticians from Washington, a group from Glen Burnie Vocational School for Girls, and several vocational school classes.

Techniques for Henna

They viewed the showings of Nulox, Fearonce cold wave, and the LaMotte method of hair-cutting. The various Gyrolater machines were demonstrated for reducing and relieving tired muscles. The technique for giving a henna wax shower by Max Kroll representatives.

The evening show featured a display of hair-styles worn in other countries. Models were garbed in costumes which corresponded with the hair-styles. E. J. LaMott produced the style exhibit staged and in several instances he also created hats from flowers and ribbons.

Local beauticians who served as models were Mrs. Helen Bardwell who represented Burma; Mrs. Willie Valentine who was given a practical style for long hair; Mrs. Ella Wood, the "Lux Girl"; Miss Elsie Jones who demonstrated the ceremonial oriental style; and Mrs. Forest Bailey, the "Carver Girl," with a parisienne hair-do.

24 Certificates

Certificates were awarded to 24 beauticians who completed the spring term at the institute for hair-styling and cutting. They are now qualified for professional work along this line.

Those receiving certificates were:

Mrs. Bernice Mayth, Miss Rose Davis, Mrs. Catherine Thompson, Mrs. Beulah Thompson, Mrs. Mary Rowe, Mrs. Bernice Davis, Mrs. Mahalia Blair, Mrs. Virgie Waters, Mrs. Martha Maddox, Mrs. Agnes Powell, Mrs. Julia Brown, Mrs. Pattie Williams of Washington.

Mrs. Lula Morris, Mrs. Spencer, Miss Mayme Tilghman, Miss Nellie Hall, Mrs. Blanche Dixon, Miss Jessie Dilworth, Mrs. Estelle Moody, Mrs. Lenora Hutton, Miss Jeannette Spriggs, Mrs. Margaret McCoy, Mrs. Claudia Miles and Mrs. Elizabeth Smith.

Semi-Formal Dance

On Wednesday night the beauticians closed their convention with a semi-formal dance to the music of the Knox Orchestra.

Nearly 500 persons were present to see the awarding of five-pound cartons of hair-products to four beauticians by William Flipper of Spanish Marvel Company.

General chairman of the convention was Mrs. Mayth and Mrs. Blanche Day. Mrs. Florence Bishop headed the publicity committee, Misses Rose Davis and Ann Blair headed the style show group.

Mrs. Adelle Moody and Mrs. Elizabeth Smith were chairmen of the food committee; Miss Ethel Felder had charge of the decorations, and Mrs. Jesse Dilworth headed the housing committee.

Officers of the Master Beauticians are:

Miss Mayme Tilghman, president; Mrs. Blair and Mrs. Day, vice-presidents; Mrs. Alice Kinard, financial secretary; Mrs. Blanche White, recording secretary; Mrs. Lenora Hutton, corresponding secretary, Ronald Reid, treasurer, and Mrs. Hilda Meyers, chaplain.

Private Project Tenants Ask Better Bus Service

To Appear Before PUC Friday, Contend Lack of Service Hits Workers, Mothers, Children

WASHINGTON

Tenants of the James Creek, Syphax, Anthony Bowen, Mobile Houses and surrounding private projects in the area between P St. and the Anacostia River, Southwest on Oct. 22, will appear before the Public Utilities Commission to ask for better transportation facilities.

The citizens seek to have the Capital Transit Company V-2 bus route extended from Half and I Sts., South on Half St. to T, West on T St. to 1st, South to V St., West on V St. and North on Second St. to P St., S.W.

Travel 12 Blocks

They will explain to the PUC that families in the area have to carry bundles and burdensome grocery package from six to 12 blocks; that school children walk from six to seven blocks to get to a transit point, en route to junior and senior high schools;

That workers walk from six to 12 blocks; expectant mothers and mothers with small children must walk long distances to clinic or doctors' offices, and workers are seriously in convenienced by lack of service.

This later is indicated by signatures and expressions of employees of the Corinthian Yacht Club, Buzzard Point Boat Yard, and several commercial firms.

It will also be pointed out that considerable amount of residential and commercial interest has developed in the Boat Yard area itself which would be further increased by the extension of bus service.

Time Element

The tenants hold that additional service can be provided within the time that is consumed by idle buses and drivers standing and waiting at Half and O Sts., at the end of each run.

Representatives at the hearing are to be:

Joseph Woodard, Mrs. Poiter and Mrs. Roberta Johnson for families burdened by bundles; Ernest Moss and Mazy Keys for children traveling to school; Earl Amadee, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. A. Payne for workers; Mrs. Dottie Smith and others for mothers;

Mr. Greenman, Boat Yard owner and Dr. Johnson, dentist, for residential, commercial and professional interest, and William Crawford, for veterans.

Mrs. Annie Moore, president of the Tenants Council, William Whitmire, treasurer, Lee Calhoun, president, Southwest Civic Association; James White, area director, Recreation Department; Walter E. Washington, property manager will be official representatives.

Grant Reynolds Warns Group to Get on GOP Bandwagon

PHILADELPHIA

"Thomas Dewey and the Republican party are going to be victorious in the November elections, and the colored citizens of America are going to be in bad shape if they aren't on the winning bandwagon when it rides into the White House."

This warning was issued Monday afternoon by Grant Reynolds commissioner of corrections of New York, as he addressed a campaign luncheon for Republican workers sponsored by the Republican Central Campaign Committee in the Broadwood Hotel.

"The Republican Party can win without the colored vote," Reynolds declared, "and if it does, the colored voter will be left out in the cold without any claim whatever to any consideration."

His Democrats' Tactics

Exploding the civil rights theories of the Democratic and Progressive parties as "just so much talk," the New Yorker cited instances to prove that neither candidate ever did or ever intends to "practice what he's suddenly preaching."

The speaker loudly decried the unethical campaign tactics practiced by the Democratic Party in the Midwest, where he said old-age security pensioners were threatened with withdrawal of their grants if they did not support Truman.

"The Democrats are so fearful of losing the Midwest, especially Missouri, that they are resorting to all manner of sulgar practices," he charged.

Truman's Record Assailed

President Truman's 10-year record in the Senate, he said, failed to disclose a single instance in which he had recommended any legislation benefiting colored people.

"Furthermore, he said, he voted that any discussion of civil rights had been expressly omitted from any campaign speeches made by Truman while he was touring the South.

Brands Wallace "Hypocrite"

He branded Henry Wallace as an outright "hypocrite," who refused to raise a finger to help improve racial conditions when he held positions giving him the power to do so.

He pointed out that Wallace had actually ruff from a delegation including Mrs. Mary Mcleod Bethune, Dr. Channing Tobias, A. Philip Randolph and Walter White, seeking an audience with the then Vice President so save the life of Odell Waller, condemned murderer.

As Secretary of Agriculture, Wallace could find only 10 out of 24,000 colored farm demonstrators to appoint, Reynolds said, as Secretary of Commerce, refused to remove discriminatory practices at the National Airport, or even in his own offices.

Dewey Keeps Word, Says Mrs. Diggs

Reynolds' address followed that of Mrs. Bertha J. Diggs, secretary of labor of New York, the only woman holding a position.

Mrs. Diggs pointed to Dewey's record as district attorney and as Governor as an indication of what the country and the colored citizen in particular might expect from him as President.

"Governor Dewey makes no empty promises as do his opponents," Mrs. Diggs said. "Instead, he chooses to act, and when he speaks, people have learned to take him at his word."

Stresses Women's Importance

The secretary said she was especially anxious to see women assume a greater and more active responsibility in the political affairs of the nation.

Since there are two million more women voters registered than men in this election, Mrs. Diggs stressed the fact that women can therefore be the deciding factor in just which way the election will go.

The meeting was opened by William S. Meade, chairman of the Central Campaign Committee who introduced the colored candidates on the ticket.

They are Magistrate Hobson R. Reynolds, candidate for the State Senate, the Rev. C. M. Smith, Dr. Nicky Igubuo Jr., Lewis Mintess, Howard Henry and Samuel Wadkins, all candidates for the State Legislature.

Hail Gallinger Opening as Forward Health Step

Only One Physician to Each 3,777 in Capital; One to 691 for Whites

WASHINGTON

Although the opening of Gallinger Hospital will not immediately whittle down the high physician-per-patient ratio, the move has been hailed as the beginning of progress in the public health.

At the present time there is only one physician to each 3,777 minority citizens, as compared to the white ratio of one doctor for each 691 whites in the nation. Two accepted—minimum, according to Dr. Joseph Johnson, dean of Howard University Medical School, is one physician to each 1500 of population.

Dr. Johnson, in a statement issued last week pointed out that the Gallinger move will not mean any immediate increase in the student body or the number of graduates in the medical school.

Must Await Expansion

Such increases, he pointed out, though aided by the Gallinger turn, must await expansion of Howard's pre-clinical training classes, freshmen and sophomore undergrades. These classes, where laboratory and lecture work predominate, can be enlarged upon under present facilities, it was stated.

However, Dr. Johnson said use of Gallinger Hospital by faculty members, interns and medical training students of Howard will better round out the education and training of physicians for a nation that badly needs their services.

The Gallinger agreement, now formally signed, authorizes that the hospital accept recommended interines yearly at a ratio of one-fourth from Howard, Georgetown, and George Washington medical schools, and the remaining from those recommended by the District Health Department, beginning next July 1.

Clinical Clerkships Open

Also opened to Howard students are clinical clerkships for students in the junior and senior classes on the same basis as long standing agreements with GWU and Georgetown and authorized appointment by the hospital executive committee (policy making) of one representative of Howard University Medical School.

In that post is Dr. Paul Cornely, medical director of Freedmen's Hospital and professor of preventive medicine in public health at Howard. The appointment was made by Dr. Johnson recently, and agreed with Dr. Cornely, are representatives from the two other local medical schools.

Dr. Johnson revealed that Dr. Lewis K. Sweet, Gallinger pediatrician, has been asked to the faculty of Howard and will participate in the supervision of Howard clinical trainees in the same capacity Dr. Sweet now serves GWU and Georgetown.

Assisting Dr. Sweet in the How. ard staff at Gallinger will be Howard-faculty-members in pediatrics as Dr. Roland B. Scott, Dr. Walter H. Maddox, Dr. Althea D. Kessler, I. Blanche Bourne, William W. Cardozo and Alonzo de G. Smith.

20 De Not Accept Us

Dr. Johnson pointed out that although only 20 of the nation's 77 accredited medical schools "definitely do not accept colored students, there are only 27 medical schools in the 1947-48 enrollments which had minority students registered."

Total race enrollment at these 27 schools for all four classes numbered 588, of whom 495 were enrolled at Howard and the all-colored Meharry Medical School at Nashville, Tenn.

Howard University, he stated, has no racial barrier but its medical school is the only predominantly colored medical school in the nation besides Meharry.

AMHERST, Va. — Corbett A. Witt, white, accused of criminally assaulting a 10-year-old colored girl, was found guilty of common assault and fined $350 by a jury in the Amherst County Court here last week.

The conviction marked, according to veteran citizens of the county, the first time a jury in Amherst County has ever convicted a white man for any offense against colored persons.

Reuben E. Lawson, attorney, who represented the girl in the case, also was reported to be the first colored attorney to represent a colored person in a criminal case in Amherst County.

The girl, an expectant mother, is preparing to file a $10,000 civil damages suit against Witt.
