Baltimore's Little Season Wide Open with Big Parties

with Lula Jones Garrett

There's nothing petit about the so-called little season in this man's town.

Baltimore hostesses began operating on a wide swath, getting in some bigger and better parties ere they really begin making plans for the holiday and full winter season.

CUPID HITS THE GEES

If the senior Ossarew Gees, of Druid Hill Avenue, have a slightly dazed look these days, its because that old maxim of lightning never strikes twice failed in their household. Isn't lightning, however, but Cupid, who has been bearing down on the Gees.

Their son, Ossarew Jr., slipped a ring on the telling finger of Mabel J. Stokes, school marm, a day or so back, and this week up comes their darling daughter, Louise, with a solitaire from Myles Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Robinson.

So they will have a new daughter-in-law the day after Christmas and a son-in-law sometime in the spring.

Mr. Gee, the bridegroom-elect, is also on the city teaching staff, his field being the vocations. Miss Gee teaches at the Daniel Payne School No. 121, and her fiance, a war vet, is studying at Howard University.

MISS JONES WED

List among October brides Morgan State College's Inez L. Jones and Henry LeAldrich, Philadelphia postal clerk, who were married at Trinity PE Church, New York City, by the Rev. Shelton Hale Bishop.

The bride wore a purple-blue satin frock with purple-blue and pale pink accessories and carried a sheaf of orchids on her prayer book. Miss Mary Margaret Stephens, her maid of honor, was gowned in crimson satin, with matching hat, and carried yellow roses and brown baby chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Aldrich, an accountant at Morgan, is a member of AKA Sorority and the National College Women's Association. She is a Morgan alumna. Mr. Aldrich is a member of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, a Livingstone College graduate and a former lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

CHRISTENING RECEPTION

The seven-month-old daughter of the Leo Woodses was christened Cathay Theresa at St. Peter Claver Catholic Church, a Sunday ago, and the services followed by a reception at the parents' McCulloh Street home.

Shirley Butler was godmother for the baby and Walter Dyson was godfather.

Guests at the affairs were:

Mrs. Walter Dyson, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Seaborne, Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Brown, Charles Milbourne, Mrs. Sarah Mitchell, Mrs. Eleanora Cole, Mr. and Mrs. James Neale,

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jackson, Miss Mary Chase, Mrs. Mary Tate, William Breland, Mrs. Mary Newton, Mrs. Charles Rodgers, Mrs. Alice Powell and Mrs. Catherine Adams.

RANDOLPH BABY BAPTISED

The Lloyal Randolphs went up to Brooklyn to have their infant, Bonnie O'Daniel, christened, Sunday.

The rites were performed by the Rev. W. O. Carrington, who not only christened the mother, the former Nicky O'Daniel, but married her and Mr. Randolph.

Godfather for the baby was her uncle, Edward O'Daniel, and Miss Dorothy Green and Mrs. Ann Wilkins, both of Brooklyn, were godmothers.

MRS. RATLEY VISITOR

Mrs. Thelma Ratley of Chicago, who came in Tuesday for a visit with her in-laws, Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith of Morgan Park, has had a busy time on the local front.

She was guest of Mrs. Frank Sykes on Tuesday when the B.B. Club was entertained, and garnered a guest gift at bridge, as did her sister-in-law, Mrs. Smith. dilloed as guest when the Pollyannas met with Mrs. Norma Marshall on Friday, and bore away a cute Victorian lapel pin as guest prize. Last night (Thursday) she took time out for a quiet hour's chat with old friends, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Monroe, who she knew when they were in Chicago. Dr. and Mrs. Lucius Butler, the J. Nelson Fortunes, Dr. and Mrs. Smith, and Mrs. Cab Calloway, who is here for the nonce, were also about.

Over the week end Mrs. Ratley, Dr. and Mrs. Smith and Arthur Smith will be in Washington, where they will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Jones, also in-laws, and where the Joneses will entertain at cards for her on Saturday night.

But before leaving, Dr. and Mrs. Smith will pour cocktails on Saturday evening, and she will be guest at the opera of Mrs. Elmer Burgess.

MRS. HILL HONOREE

Mrs. Violet Hill Whyte was hostess Friday night to a group of friends who came to pour tea with her mother, Mrs. Margaret Peck Hill.

At 83, Mrs. Hill travels alone about the country and manages to spend periods of the year with each of her children. After a brief sojourn with her famous police officer daughter in Baltimore, Mrs. Hill traveled to Washington for a visit with daughter, Grace Hill Jacobs before settling down for the winter in Los Angeles with daughter, Esther Hill Isaacs.

The evening at Mrs. Whyte's home also marked the occasion for her mother's reunion with members of the Matinee Ensemble Club, an organization of which she was very fond when she was a resident of Baltimore.

As is her custom, Mrs. Whyte sprung on the group one of her many interesting quizzes, only this one was done up in a Halloween motif with the participants attempting to name as many bones in a skeleton as they were able. Winners were Mrs. J. Logan Jenkins Sr., and Mrs. Odelia Payne.

Other guests were Mrs. Vivian Alleyne, who brought along her motherinlaw, Mrs. Rachel Alleyne of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Mesdames Martha Warsoma, Alberta D. Jones, Fairfax King, Lottie Shaw, Jane Wilson, Nellie Woods, and Miss Mae Morris.

MR. SPENCER FETED

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Norman T. Spencer celebrated a birthday of Mr. Spencer by asking more than seventy-five guests to join them in a cocktail party and buffet supper.

Mrs. Spencer wore a black dress, which was stunningly draped around the waist and to the back hem. Her only accessories were pearls roped about her neck and an exquisite orchid on her shoulder. Receiving with her were Misses Betty Williams and Dolores Ashby.

Miss Williams wore black taffeta set off by a colored neck piece and a mid-Victorian bustle back.

Miss Ashby wore a chic skirt-and a delicately ruffle blouse

Mrs. Albert LaForest was in a changeable colored taffeta dress. Mrs. Mary Reid wore a tomato red ensemble decorated with gold buttons. Mrs. Ethel Adams wore a black dress, attractively adorned with sequins at the rounded neckline. Miss Dorothy Keene was gowned in a Lexington blue draped dress as was Mrs. Mable Denkins whose ensemble was ornamented uniquely with pink-gold sequins on the sleeves. Mrs. Natalie Mitchell in a black chic dress trimmed in satin. Mrs. Annie Rose Thompson was in a black crepe two-piece ensemble. Mrs. Jessie Keene wore black with a side drape of white faille.

The guests moved about the clubroom, sipping cocktails, dancing, and conversing until eleven o'clock when a buffet supper was served. After the supper, Mr. Spencer opened his numerous gifts which consisted of everything for a man from socks to money. Mr. Spencer presented to his wife, a gift of a bag and gloves as a surprise at his party. The birthday cake was cut and served with ice

How to make a GERM squirm!

Hear the wail of Jerome the Germ! "Oh, for the good old days, when we slid down spoon handles and played tag in the laundry bag . . . when we young our gals on corner cobwebs, and always had lots to eat and cozy places to sleep!

"Now look at us! They dump clothes, and dishes, too, into washers before we can turn a somersault! They pop food into the refrigerator, and slam freezer doors in our faces! They yank us out of corners with vacuum cleaners! They have lamps that kill us off like mad!"

Poor Jerome really has a grievance, because cheap, dependable electricity goes a long way toward making life healthier—as well as easier and more comfortable.

No other item in your budget gives you such living value for so little money.
