Thrills at New Albert

Acquanetta, the glamorous beauty, is featured in "Jungle Woman," now playing at the New Albert Theatre. The other feature, "Blood and Sand," starring Tyrone Power and Rita Hayworth, adds up to 3 hours and 15 minutes of exciting and glamorous entertainment.

Lillian Evanti Scores Hit in Recital in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY — Lillian Evanti, Washington, D.C., soprano, was enthusiastically received on the occasion of her recital here last week under the auspices of the American Institute of Cultural Relations.

The concert was one of a series done by Madam Evanti in the Caribbean area — Trinidad, Santo Domingo, Haiti and Cuba. Chief purpose is to present to people of the Latin countries the wealth of culture embodied in the spirituals.

Describing her recital here, Charles Poore, Mexican music critic says:

"The program for this concert ranged from Handel to Johann Strauss's 'Voices of Spring.' There was also an aria from 'Traviata,' and Rachmaninov's Vocalise.

"But she completely captivated hearers with a beautiful rendition of Ponce's popular ballad, 'Estrellita.' I have never heard it sung better, even by Mexicans.

"In the midst of her activities as concert singer she finds time for composition. Her music setting of the Twenty-third Psalm deserves a permanent place in the literature of sacred song. Her 'Himno Panamericano' makes a strong appeal in these latin countries.

"Here in Mexico it was sung by a chorus of 1000 school children with full military band accompaniment.

"Her 'Mighty Rapture,' on a poem by Edwin Markham, is a truly heroic piece. In this creative work she shows a marked sensitivity to the emotional values of words, and the power to recreate in music these emotional values.

Hazel Scott Gives Concert in Durham

DURHAM, N.C. — Over 1000 music lovers from far and near packed the auditorium at North Carolina College last Friday night to hear a concert program by Hazel Scott, noted pianist, and wife of Congressman Adam C. Powell Jr., of NYC.

She returns to the Tar Heel State this week for concert appearances Wednesday in Raleigh; Thursday in Greensboro; Friday in Salisbury; Saturday in Charlotte, and next Monday in Winston-Salem, home of her traveling companion, Mrs. Eunice Wolfe.

Through With Politics

The pianist told a reporter that she is through with politics; that while she supported Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York before her marriage to the Congressman, she feels now she should leave politics to him as head of the family.

Among those attending the concert here were:

Mrs. B. A. J. Whitted, Dr. Helen Edmonds, Maria Faulk Dr. and Mrs. James M. Hubbard, Geneva Mebane, Mrs. Frank Wright, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lanier, Mrs. G. A. Edwards, Dorothy Cheek, Mrs. Ruth Taylor, Mrs. Marie Chavis Spaulding, Mrs. Carrie Brett, Attie Bailey, the Miller sisters, Vogue, Ferguson, Ruth Gillum, President and Mrs. Alphonso Elder, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kennedy, and Mr. and Mrs. John F. Stewart.

A reception for the artist was held in McLean dormitory after the concert.

Rose Murphy Returns to Bali for Stand

Rose Murphy, who scared to national fame with her tiny "chi-chi" chirpings takes over the Club Bali's podium for a week's stand.

This marks a return engagement at the Bali for Miss Murphy, who nearly set a box-office record when she appeared there early this spring.

Rose, whose heft belies her tiny pip-squeak vocals, made her debut in Cleveland, where she sang at the Turf Club.

Guild Offers Various Courses in Drama

The Recreation Department's Drama Guild is offering courses in make-up, lighting and sound effects, play writing and acting in classes conducted by Bernard W. Pryor at Garnet Patterson Community Center each Tuesday and Friday from 8 to 10 p.m.

Mr. Pryor, a prominent figure in the field of drama, has conducted many top-rated plays in the District during the last decade.

As a member of the Dunbar Players and the Maskers he has received the highest individual honors for performance, among them the Evening Star Award, and the AFRO-AMERICAN News papers Award.

Hampton to Broadcast Benny Carter's Love Song

NEW YORK — "It's You, Only You I Want to Love," a thrilling new love song, written by Bennie Carter, Oklahoma City youth, will be heard nationally when Lionel Hampton and his famous band give the composition a preview over the Mutual Broadcasting Company network Nov. 5.

The song is being arranged by Herman McCoy, former leader of the famous "Blue Jackets Choir" originating from Great Lakes Naval Base during the war, and will be sung by the Hamptones featuring Roland Burton.

TRINIDAD AWAITS ROBESON

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (ANP) — Paul Robeson, world-famed baritone, will be here toward the end of November. Bookings for two recitals have already started.

So eager are people in this part of the West Indies to see Robeson that some have written from British Guiana and Grenada, asking whether it is possible for recitals to be arranged in the two colonies.

To Discuss National Affairs

Dr. Rayford W. Logan, chairman of the Department of History at Howard University, will commence a regular weekly commentary on national and international affairs over Station WWDC, on Sunday. Dr. Logan will be heard at 5:45 p.m. The broadcasts will be a special public service feature of WWDC.

ON THE SONG HIT PARADE:

Ex-Salesgirl Composed 'It's too Soon to Know'

Millions of music - lovers are haunted by the lilting, lingering melody of "It's Too Soon to Know," nation's potential No. 1 song hit on juke boxes, on records and on radio and television, but few know about its composer.

She's Deborah Chessler, of German-Swedish lineage and a former salesgirl in a downtown Baltimore department store. But she didn't get her inspiration behind the counter where she worked. It came after-hours, while she was sitting in a local theatre.

From Shattered Romance

She witnessed a picture (but she can't remember its name), which brought back undying memories of a shattered romance. She was confronted with a problem of—to do, or not to do—a reconciliation. In her mind was the thought of "it's too soon to know about anything." She was in a dilemma.

She put that thought on paper, then, to music, all by her lone self, she says.

Encouraged by Mother

Her widowed mother, Mrs. Lee Chessler, gave her further encouragement, and she began singing it on local radios and television shows.

About a year and a half later, a new Baltimore quartet, the Orioles, recorded it. The quartet, too, was unknown, save in its home town.

Got "Break" With Godfrey

She got the boys an audition on the Arthur Godfrey talent show. They sang it, and the appeal was so spontaneous that Godfrey called them back for a guest appearance within three days. The rest is musical history.

The nation's top voices liked it. Ella Fitzgerald waxed it for Decca. Then followed the Charioteers, on Columbia; Deep River Boys, Victor; Dinah Washington and Ronnie Deauville, Mercury.

Savannah Churchill, Toe Jimmyie Valentine did it for Varsity; Marian Jackson, MGM; Savannah Churchill, Manor, and Andy Russell and the Pied Pipers, Capitol.

The best version to date is by the Orioles, whom she signed to a contract with Natural Records, and assumed personal management of inc group.

Gave Up Sales Job

With apparent success at hand, she gave up her job as salesgirl when the song began to click, and the boys became a potential box-office hit.

To additional stints in New York clubs, they have since played Harlem's Apollo Theatre, Baltimore's Royal and Washington's Howard. Washington liked them and they are being held over at an exclusive club.

Over Half Million Sales

Within a few months, the sales on "Too Soon to Know" have soared beyond the half-million mark. But, she didn't stop here.

She has other compositions. Among them, "Tell Me So," recorded by the Orioles, Savannah Churchill and Dinah Washington, which hasn't been released; "Love You, Baby," a Calypso air, recorded by Essay Morales; "Want a Man" by Lil Green, on Victor, and "To Be to You," in collaboration with Billy Conrad, and cut for Jubilee by the Orioles.

She never has studied music, she says, but added that her late father was musically inclined. She believes her's a natural gift.

Thought It Silly

It was only last week that Deborah revealed the secret to the origin of the song, and that first to the AFRO. "It wasn't a secret," she said, "I just thought the origin of it was too silly to talk about."

In addition to making a name for herself in Tin Pan Alley, she has elevated the Orioles, formerly organized as the Vibra-Naires, near-est threat to the Ink Spots, from a $35 a week status to a $2,000 a week unit, which now has more engagements than they can fill.

Duke to Appear in Philly November 16

PHILADELPHIA

Duke Ellington and his famous orchestra are making their only appearance in Philadelphia this season at the Broadwood Hotel on Nov. 16 under sponsorship of Charles Borrelli.

The Duke has become a tradition in the musical world and has reigned as a pace-setting stylist for more than two decades. Bands have come and gone, but none have moved Ellington from his top rung reputation as a composer, pianist and orchestra leader.

He has authored close to 1000 original compositions and has received the ASCAP award three times for the most popular tune of the year. He once had the distinction of having three numbers simultaneously on the Hit Parade.

At his only Philadelphia appearance the Duke will have with him such famous side men as Johnny Hodges, alto-sax; Ray Nance, the combination violinist, trumpeter and vocalist; Harry Carney, baritone sax; Lawrence Brown, Trombonist, and Junior Raglin, string bass. The vocals will be handled by Al Hibbler and Kay Davis.

UN Urged to Rout Racial Unfairness

PARIS (NNPA)— India has urged the United Nations Trusteeship Council to make a more careful investigation into Trust territories in order to keep these areas free from racial discrimination. Mr. Jha, Indian delegate, told the UN Trusteeship Committee that he felt the Council through its period of reports and visits by missions to those territories could help eradicate "racial discrimination" in any form.

He said that the Indian delegation attached the greatest importance to this racial problem because it was one of the most "potent" causes of bitterness and conflict in those areas. His remarks came during a discussion on the

Lois Wins Again, and Again and Again

Washington's most photogenic lady, according to the Allied Photographers Association, is Miss Lois Sutton (center, above) who was crowned "Miss Lens Queen" last Thursday night at the Lincoln Colonnade. Miss Sutton was chosen the winner over 110 entrants and her victory marked the fourth time that she had successfully competed in a beauty contest this year. Shown with her are Miss Alfreada Proctor (left), third place winner, and Miss Ruth White, second place winner.

THE GAL MUST BE GOOD!

Lois Sutton Wins 4th Beauty Crown of Year

WASHINGTON

Lois Sutton, an 18-year-old graduate of Cardozo High School, now a freshman of Howard University, was judged the most photogenic girl in the District of Columbia by a panel of judges who carefully scrutinized photos of 110 lovely feminine specimens.

As a result of the verdict, Miss Sutton was crowned "Miss Lens Queen for 1948," before 1400 onlookers at the Lincoln Colonnade, last Thursday night.

With a battery of photographers flashing pictures of the ceremonies and two radio stations, WINX and WASH-FM, carrying a "live" radio account of the proceedings, Miss Sutton won her fourth beauty crown of the year.

Most Crowned Dee Ceean

Earlier, this year, the cutie from Cardozo won an all-expense trip to the Shriners' convention in St. Louis as a reward for winning the local "Miss Mecca Temple" beauty contest crown.

In St. Louis, the comely Miss, representing the District Shriners, won the national Shriners' beauty crown and was named "Miss Shrine Princess of 1948."

Following her St. Louis triumph, Miss Sutton won a bathing beauty competition at Beechwood Park, Md., at which World Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis was present.

Deny Disqualification Basis

Wiley Davis, president of Allied Photographers, the sponsors of the "Miss Lens" Queen" competition, aware of the disgruntled reports making the rounds after the verdict was given to Miss Sutton, made the following statement this week:

"In answer to the prevalent grapevine talk to the effect that Miss Sutton should have been disqualified because she had modeled professionally, I want to say that such reports are false.

"About three weeks ago, Allied Photographers held a meeting concerning Miss Sutton's entry and made investigations to determine whether or not she had been a professional model.

Impossible in District

"Our investigation revealed the fact that there are no colored professional models in Washington. It is true that some young ladies pose for photography schools and receive a small honorarium, but that could hardly be considered professionalism.

"Washington has yet to reach the stage, where girls can be well paid and earn their living modeling professionally," Mr. Davis concluded.

Miss Sutton, a clerk at Howard University, besides being enrolled as a student, lives at 1241 K St., S.E. She will be crowned "Miss Capital Classic" this Saturday night, between the halves of the West Virginia State-Virginia State football game at Griffith Stadium.

Judges of Integrity

The panel of judges included Judge Armond W. Scott of the Municipal Court bench; Mrs. Lula Jones Garrett, society editor of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers; Mrs. Katherine Johnson, newspaper reporter;

Ollie Atkins, reporter for the Washington Post; Ira Walsh, public relations director of WWDC; Shep Allen, supervisor of District Theatres; and James L. Allen, of the Central Intelligence Agency.

In addition to winning a beautiful three-quarter silver fox fur coat, Miss Sutton will take an all-expense trip to New York City, wearing an orchid corsage, where she will appear in an Alexander Film production and receive a course in professional modeling.

Other Winners Listed

The other winners included:

Second prize winner, Ruth White, 1706 T St., N.W., government employee, who will receive an RCA 10-inch screen television set, orchid corsage and a course in professional modeling, as well as a free radio repair job;

Third prize winner, Alfreada Proctor, 3200 Warder St., N.W., pupil at Dunbar High, who will receive a deluxe set of Kitchencraft aluminum waterless cookware, orchid corsage, course in modeling and a free radio repair job;
