$10,000 Suit Faces Probationary Officer

er, Mr. Hayes said he had other evidence of an instance in which Officer Walker was said to have assaulted a 19-year-old youth at Douglass High School.

Said Mr. Hayes:

"I wanted to give Walker another chance because I felt that it was his first mistake. I also have a great interest in helping the colored officers make good in this department.

Willing to Co-operate

"We worked to get them on the force because we felt that we were entitled to such jobs as citizens and also because we felt that it meant greater police protection for our citizens.

"We do not want nor expect police brutality from any officer. We will co-operate with him so long as he is doing a good job, but we will likewise oppose him if he abuses his authority."

Accused Officer Rookie

The suit contains claims for dental, medical and hospital treatment. It states that Mr. Waters was forced to lose several days from his business, and that he "has suffered great humiliation and public embarrassment."

Officer Walker, of the 1400 block of E. Biddle St., was appointed to the force last March 11 and is attached to Northwestern.

Officer Walker could not be reached today for a statement, but his commanding officer, Captain William Feehley said that although he knows nothing officially about the suit, he remembers the incident it involves.

The captain recalled that the defendant in the case was "abusive" and he lauded Officer Walker as "a very good policeman!"

Spouse Drove Her Out With Gun, She Says

would pose such questions as, "Haven't you gone yet?" she asserted, and when she answered, "Uuh uuh," he added beatings to the argument.

Beaten to Spur Departure

She told the court that her husband beat her more than a dozen times in an effort to get her to leave him.

On one occasion, he struck her in the mouth, breaking her tooth and cutting her lip, she charged. But it wasn't until he threatened her life that she decided to leave, Mrs. Dixon said.

A divorce, on grounds of constructual desertion, was given her and she will be allowed to resume her maiden name, Marshall.

Only Sought Allotment

Elijah Dingle of 400 N. Gilmor St. divorced Mrs. Mary Dingle, this week, after testifying that she admitted to him that she married only to obtain his allotment while he was in the service.

Three weeks after they were married, on July 13, 1943, she wrote saying that she did not love him, the husband said. When he came out of the service she repeated her intentions to not live with him," he added. Roy S. Bond was attorney for the husband.

Teachers Divorced

Stanley Smith of 1729 McCulloh St., teacher at the Joseph Briscoe Vocational School, was divorced from Mrs. Justina Smith, also a public school teacher, this week.

Mr. Smith testified that they were married in 1932 and voluntarily separated in 1938. He agreed to contribute -10 per week towards support of their 17-year-old daughter.

Cruelty Alleged

Mrs. Willie Mae Tabbs of 1000 N. Fulton Ave. won a divorce from Bernard Tabbs on grounds of non support and cruelty. She also charged that he deserted her in 1945, a year and a half after their marriage. Her maiden name, Carter, was restored.

Mrs. Myrtle Hamilton packed his clothes in two baskets and told him to get out, Raymond Hamilton testified, this week. He was granted a divorce.

Gets Home, Alimony

A settlement, through which she will receive $50 per week and their home at 113 E St., Turners Station, was reached this week, when Mrs. Elmira Tucker received a divorce from Reuben Tucker of 1314 Myrtle Ave.

The wife said they had voluntarily agreed to separate. They were married in 1926. Ernest Perkins was her attorney.

Denies Desertion

Mrs. Junnita Augustus of 1442 Pressman St., this week, filed a cross-bill against her husband, Nathaniel, of 827 Whitcoat St., who had formerly sought a divorce on grounds of voluntary separation.

In her answer to his petition, Mrs. Augustus says that she has not agreed to a separation, but that he deserted her with intent to end their marriage. She has also asked that the court award her custody of their five children, two of whom are living with the father's mother.

Mrs. Augustus says that the home conditions of the latter are detrimental to the health and welfare of the children. She has also asked for temporary and permanent alimony and fees for her attorney, E. Everett Lane.

Wife Deserted

Mrs. Sara Cain of 2138 N. Howard St. won a divorce from Solomon Cain on grounds of desertion. Her maiden name, Price, was restored. Mrs. Cain said she and her husband were married on May 20, 1944, and that he left her in April, 1946.

Also obtaining a divorce on grounds of desertion was Mrs. Agnes Harriday of 168 Winters Ave., Catonsville. The couple were married in 1931 and lived together until 1946.

Mrs. Margaret Cook of 841 E. Chase St. said that Raymond Cook failed to provide a permanent home for her, but moved around from one place to another. She obtained a divorce. Their marriage lasted only four months from the time of the marriage, Sept. 9, 1944, she charged.

Driver of Death Car Given Year

the accident, which police described as the worst to occur in Maryland in recent years, were Miss Dorothy Carter, 24, of 1213 W. Lanvale St., and Mrs. Gladys Carter, 39, of 1215 W. Lanvale St.

Charges Not Pressed

Manslaughter charges in the deaths of these women were not pressed (dropped) as is customary when more than one death evolves from a single accident.

Payne had been confined to the Towson jail since the lumber truck he was operating sideswiped six automobiles and overturned on a seventh, killing three persons and injuring 12.

Driver Acquitted

In another manslaughter case tried the same day, Judge Murray acquitted Hubert Wilson, 18, of 1127 W. Saratoga St., of responsibility in the deaths of two persons when the State failed to prove that Wilson was the driver of the car.

John Daily, 26, of 213 Myrtle Ave. and Miss Catherine Lee, 17, of 503 Vincent St. were fatally injured when the car in which they were riding with Wilson and Miss Thelma Thompson plunged 100 feet from a bridge and crashed on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks at Lansdowne last Aug. 7.

Both Wilson and Miss Thompson, who lives at 1911 Lanvale Ave., were seriously injured in the accident.

Warrant Issued

The car involved in this crash was a stolen one and Baltimore City police have issued a warrant for Wilson, charging him with the theft.

This warrant was delivered to the Baltimore County Sheriff's Attorney shortly after Wilson was freed on the manslaughter counts.

Kenneth C. Proctor, deputy State's attorney, represented the prosecutor's office in both manslaughter cases. James J. Lindsay was attorney for Payne and Julius P. Robinson appeared for Wilson.

Defendant Doesn't Live at 502 N. Fulton—Occupant

Miss Ernestine Parham, 23, does NOT live at 502 N. Fulton Ave., as was stated in a recent issue of the AFRO in which she was accused of assault, according to Mrs. Josephine R. Gibson, the rightful occupant of 502.

Editor Quotes Schuyler to Support Stand on South

the South disguised as a colored person, said colored people in Dixie have been waiting for years for first franchise of citizenship and it is time they got some help by civil rights legislation.

Walter White, executive secretary of the NAACP, received deafening applause when he said the officer level in Southern States was proof that we can abolish race segregation without untoward results.

He pointed out that there can never be any equality under segregation, and that the U.S. must rid itself of this cancer if it is to take its place among the nations of the world who look upon America's talk of democracy abroad as ally in view of her undemocratic practices at home.

Harry Ashmore, executive editor of the Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock, took the position that segregation is "an enduring reality," and that the problem is not what to do about it, but what to do about the problems which accompany it.

George V. Denny Jr., program moderator, pointed out that the question "What Should We Do About Race Segregation," was one which affected all parts of the U.S. and was one of the main planks in civil rights legislation which will come before the next Congress.

The four speakers answered questions from the audience following the presentation of their formal remarks and there was lively discussion which had to be cut short due to time limitations should, at least, entitle them to the double transfer privilege, they point out.

Order Seen as Move Toward Segregation

Already protests to such arrangements, which are an abrupt departure from the former policy, have been filed with the transit company and the Public Service Commission, it was revealed to the AFRO.

Also, riders have requested the NAACP to investigate the reasons for the change.

Denying that a new policy had been effected, however, Stanley Woolton, BTC superintendent of the Eastern Division said this morning (Friday) that no such rechecking had ever been permitted under the BTC established regulations.

"We never permit re-checking from any line where there is a direct transfer line," he said, "Maybe some passengers have been extended that courtesy. A number of the operators have told me they have allowed it, but they should not have.

"In any case, there have been no new instructions. All transfer changes and instructions come from our main office and the public is notified when these changes are made.

"From time to time we re-emphasize the regulations to our men, but no new instructions have been issued."

Discrimination Charged

Protesting riders declared that when the No. 20 bus line was extended only to Dundalk earlier this year, they felt the terminating of the line at that point was a prejudiced move, as the greatest need for improved bus service came from the outlying communities of Turners Station and Sparrows Point.

They contend that the routing of the No. 20 bus entirely through the white residential section was discriminatory to colored residents of the Southeast area.

Also, it was pointed out that No. 20 buses run every five minutes during the day, whereas the No. 26 streetcars run only every 15 minutes when they are on schedule.

Operators Enforce Rule

The order, although couched in general terms, can be seen as a reply specifically to colored passengers, it was stated, because it is up to bus operators to challenge persons asking for second-ride slips when presenting their transfers.

The situation did not become known until Thursday, when conductors on the No. 20 buses began telling colored persons asking for the added transfer checks that the BTC no longer allowed persons to split up their rides, even to speed up their trips.

BTC Admits Bias

Explaining the move from BTC's standpoint, an inspector at the No. 26 bus depot, near Eastern Ave., where a complaint against the revision of service was made, admitted it was made to reduce the number of (colored) riders on the No. 20 bus.

He said:

"The people who ride the No. 26 streetcar from Sparrows Point crowd the buses going downtown to such an extent that the people of Dundalk (a lily-white community), for whom the bus was primarily routed, are never able to get seats.

"We have had so many protests from them (the white Dundalkers) about the crowding of the buses by transferees from the No. 26 streetcars that the restricting of the transfer privilege was necessary.

"The No. 26 streetcars are nearly empty proceeding downtown," he added.

Lines' Inequality Aired

Colored riders say they board the No. 20 bus to hasten the trip downtown and to ride in more comfort than the dilapidated streetcars on the No. 26 line afford.

They point out that the streetcars are antiquated and slow, while the buses are new, diesel-powered vehicles, well-upholstered and comfortable.

Court to Review James' Sentence

capital punishment on Wednesday, by Judge Herman Moser, the prisoner looked ahead vacantly without the slightest reaction.

Surrounded by Guards

He was jarred out of his stare by the arms of guards who had surrounded him when he was told to stand and receive sentence in the slaying, last July 6, of 11-year-old Marsha Bell.

As James was being hustled away, one onlooker in the crowded courtroom remarked, "He didn't put up no struggle."

A companion answered, "The man is sick. You wouldn't expect him to."

Plea for Life Turned Down

William Murphy, co-counsel for James with Charles Houston of Washington attorney, pleaded with Judge Moser before sentence to spare the man's life.

Mr. Murphy said "The defendant is a sick man. If the supreme penalty is imposed, society will be deprived the opportunity of experimenting with him for purposes of future treatment for such cases."

The attorney said further, "Although he has the legal test for sanity he is far behind the test for sanity insofar as modern psychiatry is concerned."

Mr. Houston was not in Baltimore. He was under a prior court commitments in Washington.

"Protected" Society

Judge Moser stated that he could not imagine a more horrible, outrageous" crime.

He added, "It (the court) can say with assurance that the city and lady feel more safe and the parents of this town sleep better when the supreme sentence under the law and facts of this case is carried out.

"Eugene H. James — The sentence of the court is that you be taken by the sheriff and delivered to the warden of the Maryland Penitentiary, in whose custody you are to remain until such time as the Governor by his warrant shall designate, at which time, and at the place which under the law and facts of this case is carried out."

The Brill child was viciously stabbed to death around noon when she was leaped upon by an assailant as she and two playmates were bike riding in the Pimlico section.

Confession Extorted

One witness said she saw James near the scene a few minutes earlier and that he was walking in that direction whittling with a nine-inch knife.

He was said to have led police to a spot where the knife had been buried and the hiding place marked by two twigs. A confession to the crime was also in evidence.

Suspect in 2nd Slaying

One psychiatrist furnished as a possible motive for the crime the conclusion that James has a "hostility toward the immature female."

The man is charged in Washington with the fatal stabbing of another child, who was also killed while bike riding.

Judge's Statement Cited

Judge Moser's statement and pronouncement of sentence follows:

"The rule in the Spencer case, decided in 1887, namely, "Does the person accused know the difference between right and wrong and the nature and consequences of his acts as applied to himself?" has been the standard for testing the responsibility of individuals in criminal cases in this State since that period.

"At various times there have been discussions and movements to modify and change this rule because of advances in medical science. These efforts to date have not been successful.

Review Rule Efficacious

"Perhaps it would not be out of place for me at a moment like this to evermore useful body of persons known as psychiatrists to say that the case before the court today points up boldly and clearly the extreme danger of tinkering with this time-tested rule without great care and caution.

"The paramount test of the efficacy of the administration of criminal justice should be now as it was in 1767, the protection of the community. Everything else, in a civilized society must be subordinate.

"In broad daylight, on a public highway of the city, a little girl, while at play was brutally stabbed to death. The court cannot imagine a more horrible, outrageous offense.

"Only Possible Sentence"

"This court cannot say what deterrent effect its sentence may have on others. It can say with assurance that the city will justly feel more safe and the parents of this town sleep better when the only possible sentence under the law and facts of this case is carried out.

"Eugene H. James — The sentence of the court is that you be taken by the sheriff and delivered to the warden of the Maryland Penitentiary, in whose custody you are to remain until such time as the Governor by his warrant shall designate, at which time, and at the place which under the

Hearing Delayed in Shooting Case

Hearing of the case against Louis Allen, 24, of 1044 Shields Al., who is charged with shooting Miss Lucille Harris, 39, of 1112 Carson St., has been postponed until Friday to give Miss Harris a chance to receive medical treatment.

As Allen fired the bullet penetrated her right chest, Miss Harris is said to have refused treatment at Provident Hospital, where she was taken after the Saturday night shooting.

The shooting was reported to have occurred after Allen took the gun from another man's pocket during a fight. Allen allegedly aimed at the man, but hit Miss Harris accidentally.

Allen is being held in $500 bail and Miss Harris for $250.
