TUCK FAVORS SEGREGATION

RICHMOND (NNPA) — Gov. William M. Tuck last Wednesday told the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation here he would continue to work against abolition of race segregation in any form in the State, "regardless of sentiment in Washington."

Vending Stand Popular at Provident

Miss Katherine Lewis, center, waits on a customer at the popular and attractive stand which she operates at Provident Hospital under the Vending Stand program of the Maryland Workshop for the Blind. Seated in the wheelchair is her unofficial helper, Ernest Norris, who has been at Provident ever since he incurred a spinal injury six years ago. The workshop is seeking locations for similar stands which may be operated in public buildings by blind persons.

By Louise K. Hines

Her hands move swiftly and nuetly as a bar of candy is pack for "sweeties," or the change and you have the purchase of your request, your change, a smile and a cheery "Thank you," in less than a minute!

There is something about her that attracts your attention, but it takes you some time to discover that her shapely hands serve also as her eyes.

Pioneer in Program

Twenty-four-year-old Miss Katherine Lewis is the first person of her race to operate in a colored institution under the Vending Stand Program inaugurated in 1936 by the Maryland Workshop for the Blind.

Her attractive stand is located at the end of the main corridor at Provident Hospital.

Operated on a net profit from which Miss Lewis earns part of her livelihood, the stand is a veritable drawing card for members of the staff, patients and visitors.

Has Several Hobbies

Miss Lewis lost her sight at the age of 4. However, 11 years training at the Maryland School for the Blind, in Overlea, enabled her to become adept in the use of the Braille system, typing and in playing the violin and piano.

She crochets, makes leather belts and wallets and gets a big thrill out of her pets. No more devoted pet could the Young Socialite Animal Rescue League ever have than she.

Is Happy

This is the first "real" job for Miss Lewis. She likes it and is making good, because she sees this as a means of becoming self-supporting. Ultimately she hopes to enter the commercial field as dictaphone operator.

At present this training is offered by the Maryland Vocational Rehabilitation Commission, only to the white blind, but Katherine is not discouraged by this.

Norris Assists at Stand

Unofficial assistant to Miss Lewis is Ernest Norris of 1526 Westwood Ave., who has been confined to a wheel chair for nearly all of the six years he's spent at Provident, as the result of a spine injury.

Miss Lewis is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lewis of 1639 Lorman Ct., whom she fondly describes as the "grandest parents in the world!"

For those who are ill-content with their lot, it's pure inspiration to spend a few minutes chatting with cheerful Katherine, who "sees" good and right in everyday things and every-day people.

5 Held in Thefts Under $3,500 Bail

Topcoat, Jacket Stolen

William Lee of 706 W. Saratoga St., accused Willie Dennison, 31, 541 N. Fremont Ave., and Joseph McCoy 21, 645 N. Paca St., of taking his topcoat and jacket, valued at $65 on Monday.

The following day Magistrate Harry Kruger ordered them held under $2,500 bail to await grand jury action.

Typewriter Theft Alleged

Still another couple, Heaver Parker, 27, 315 E. Lafayette Ave., and Otis Dondaldson, 1506 E. Chase St., were charged with the larceny of a typewriter on May 27, 1946.

Parker was held under $500 bail. No bail was set in the case of Dondaldson, because he is already serving two years in the House of Correction on another violation.

Downtown Officials to Be Urged to Act

Magistrate Thomas L. Fitzpatrick has declared open war against unscrupulous merchants in the Pennsylvania Ave. area who are selling cheap wine and other intoxicants to boys under 21 years of age.

He has ordered police officers to investigate all such reports, and stated that he plans to take the matter to higher authorities downtown.

Though apprised of the condition shortly after being appointed to the Northwestern District police court 18 months ago, the magistrate was reminded of its existence during routine court hearings, Wednesday morning.

Cases Point Up Situation

The first incident involved 19-year-old George Thomas of 417 Robert St., who had been found sleeping in a car in the 1100 block of N. Fulton Ave., late the night before.

The arresting officer testified the young man was too intoxicated to handle himself so he took him to the station house "for safe keeping."

Under questioning by the magistrate, Thomas said he had bought some wine from a store at Pennsylvania Ave. and McMechen St.

He admitted drinking too much and entered the car, the property of Sgt. William Jackson, a Fort Meade mess sergeant, to "sleep it off."

Bishop Battles for His Salary

Answers Cleric's Suit to Enjoin Payment

WASHINGTON (NNPA) — As a defendant in the suit to enjoin the disposal of financial secretary of the AME Church from paying him his salary, Bishop Joseph Gomes questions the legality of the adoption by the last General Conference of a resolution under which he was required to serve in a foreign district before reassignment in this country.

Bishop Gomes, in his answer to the suit brought in the District Court here by the Rev. William Henry Hall, pastor of St. Peter AME Church, Harrodsburg, Ky., contends that the conference held in Kansas City, Mo., last May, had no authority to adopt the resolution in question.

That resolution provides that a bishop assigned to a foreign district, who fails to enter upon his duties in such district within 90 days after his assignment, shall cease to receive the salary of a bishop until he arrives in the district to which he was assigned.

Lane Gets Ministers' Protest on Byrd Plan

Dr. H. C. (Curly) Byrd's proposal to operate both Morgan State College and Maryland State College at Princess Anne under administration of the University of Maryland was protested to Governor Lane on Tuesday by the Baltimore organization of Methodist ministers.

The proposal was made to members of the State Legislature when Dr. Byrd entertained them at luncheon on the university campus on Nov. 13.

Trial in Killing of Teacher Nears

L. Emmett Holt of the 1700 block N. Carey St., indicted by the Baltimore County grand jury in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Edythe B. Clarke, local school teacher, is expected to go to trial within two weeks.

Joseph Rosenthal, Baltimore attorney representing Holt, stated that he will ask for a jury trial when a date is set by the State's attorney for the county. The case will be heard in the Circuit Court in Towson.

Mrs. Clarke, faculty member of School 103, was fatally stabbed during a disturbance in her home at 18 Winters Lane, Catonsville, on Oct. 9.

Jealousy Believed Motive

Her death brought to a dramatic close a day spent at the races with another alleged suitor, Vernall H. Smith of 2330 Pennsylvania Ave. Smith discovered the tragedy upon returning to the house from an errand.

Smith told police Holt threatened him with the same knife Mrs. Clarke was slain by, a dirk knife brought from Italy as a war souvenir.

Double Slaying Trial Delayed

Because of a heavy docket, no date has been set for the trial of Thomas A. Edwards, 23, Marley Neck war veteran indicted by the Anne Arundel County grand jury on a charge of murder in connection with the recent Glen Burnie double slaying.

This information was released by the office of State's Attorney James C. Morton Jr., prosecutor of Anne Arundel County. The trial will be held in Annapolis.

CONFERENCE DODGES ISSUE:

Former Bishop Sims's Status Still Muddled

PHILADELPHIA

Former Bishop David H. Sims was recognized as an elder in the AME Church last week and extended the privilege of speaking at two annual conferences in the South by the presiding officers.

He addressed the Piedmont Conference in Clinton, S.C., where he had gone to have his status clarified, and the Atlanta (Ga.) Conference.

The latter was presided over by Bishop R. R. Wright Jr., who was at odds with the Rev. Mr. Sims when the two held equal stations in the church.

Membership Open Question

Still open, however, is the question of the ousted prelate's conference membership. It was the opinion of Bishop J. A. Gregg, head of the Bishops' Council, that the Piedmont Conference should pass on the Rev. Mr. Sims' character.

This action was not taken, however, because Bishop Frank Madison Reid, presiding prelate of the Seventh Episcopal District, questioned assignment of the Rev. Mr. Sims to the conference without a written directive from the council.

Supreme Court to Examine Juror Selection System

Baltimore's method of selecting grand juries will come before the U.S. Supreme Court, which has agreed to review the case of Sam Zimmerman, the "unpaid killer," whose attorney challenged the present system of choosing jurors.

Convicted of first degree murder, Zimmerman was sentenced last year to life imprisonment for the slaying of a woman's husband.

His attorney contended that the murder indictment was unconstitutional because it was returned by a grand jury from which colored persons had been excluded, and that this practice of limiting the number of colored grand jurors was systematic.

Single Juror Policy Hit

The basis of his attack on the method of selecting grand juries is the fact that from 1910 to 1944, each grand jury contained only one colored member.

In upholding Zimmerman's conviction, the Maryland Court of Appeals pointed out that the method of selecting grand juries was changed in 1944 and that no evidence of discrimination in the system since that time was produced at the hearing of his motion to quash the indictment against him.

Prejudice Also Alleged

Zimmerman also contends that his rights were prejudiced by results of the trial court to permit several former members of the Supreme Bench to testify concerning the selection of grand juries from 1922 to 1944.

The Maryland Court of Appeals ruled that such evidence would not have been sufficient to prove systematic exclusion of colored persons, because two served on the September, 1945, panel and three were certified to serve on the May, 1946, panel, which indicted Zimmerman.

Of the three, two asked to be excused and one served.

Miss Daisy Allen, senior at Virginia State, led the parade yesterday (Thursday) of the Virginians at the Morgan-Virginia State annual Thanksgiving Classic. Her high-stepping was inspirational, but the Morgan Bears defeated the Virginia team.

Trial in Killing of Teacher Nears

L. Emmett Holt of the 1700 block N. Carey St., indicted by the Baltimore County grand jury in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Edythe B. Clarke, local school teacher, is expected to go to trial within two weeks.

Joseph Rosenthal, Baltimore attorney representing Holt, stated that he will ask for a jury trial when a date is set by the State's attorney for the county. The case will be heard in the Circuit Court in Towson.

Mrs. Clarke, faculty member of School 103, was fatally stabbed during a disturbance in her home at 18 Winters Lane, Catonsville, on Oct. 9.

Jealousy Believed Motive

Her death brought to a dramatic close a day spent at the races with another alleged suitor, Vernall H. Smith of 2330 Pennsylvania Ave. Smith discovered the tragedy upon returning to the house from an errand.

Smith told police Holt threatened him with the same knife Mrs. Clarke was slain by, a dirk knife brought from Italy as a war souvenir.

CONFERENCE DODGES ISSUE:

Former Bishop Sims's Status Still Muddled

PHILADELPHIA

Former Bishop David H. Sims was recognized as an elder in the AME Church last week and extended the privilege of speaking at two annual conferences in the South by the presiding officers.

He addressed the Piedmont Conference in Clinton, S.C., where he had gone to have his status clarified, and the Atlanta (Ga.) Conference.

The latter was presided over by Bishop R. R. Wright Jr., who was at odds with the Rev. Mr. Sims when the two held equal stations in the church.

Membership Open Question

Still open, however, is the question of the ousted prelate's conference membership. It was the opinion of Bishop J. A. Gregg, head of the Bishops' Council, that the Piedmont Conference should pass on the Rev. Mr. Sims' character.

This action was not taken, however, because Bishop Frank Madison Reid, presiding prelate of the Seventh Episcopal District, questioned assignment of the Rev. Mr. Sims to the conference without a written directive from the council.
