Williams was killed while serving in the Army in 1944. Burial was in Sunset Memorial Park. The deceased also leaves a brother.

Fine Weather, Fine Togs Keep Annual Thanksgiving Classic in Fine Fetter

By LULA JONES GARRETT

PETERSBURG, Va. — —Some 10,000 fans motored, flew or hitch-hiked here for the annual Thanksgiving classic, Thursday, when even the weather man cooperated by turning a dreary, rainy morn into a day of bright and a new dollar.

Aside from a thrilling game, with Baltimore's Morgan on top of Virginia State all the way, there were enough color and incident to keep the fans in fine fettle.

Not that all the incidents were fine. For instance, William Lewis of the Treasury Department, who came down with the Misses, Grace, from Washington, had a hundred dollars picked from his pocket. In the party with the Lewises were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Thurston of the Capital. She's one of the town's better-known school marms.

There were any number of other Washingtonians about including Ted Thompson, Otis Troupe and Helen and Peyton Cundiff.

Morganites on the Line

Morgan staff members were out in full force, beginning with President and Mrs. Martin Jenkins (she in a brown and gray ensemble, topped with a grey felt, over which she threw a deep brown auskrat coat), and including Dr. Gladys Bradley, Dr. Robert Gill, Dr. and Mrs. Spaulding, Theodore Still, Mrs. Sarah Diggs, Miss Frances Higgs; Miss Eppie Hurt and of course, Mesdames Edward Hurt, Talmadge Hill, and Daniel Clark.

Capt. Roy Cragway's mother, Mrs. Cragway Sr., came down from Sparrows Point. Mrs. Audrey Weaver, Wilson Dickerson, Wilbur Jordon, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Patterson were among other Baltimoreans about.

Fashions Trotted Out

The misses and mesdames were back in rare form when it came to trotting out in the finest feathers. Letitia Ashe, down from Baltimore, wore a green gabardine suit with a fabulous sheared beaver hat and bag to match her beaver coat. Jonnie Mae Gray, here from Rochester, N.Y., tucked a gray wool frock with inserts of deeper gray wool enlivening the circular skirt beneath her brown furs. She was in a party which included Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gray also of Rochester, James Jackson of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Martha Wyche of Norfolk, the latter in black crepe topped with mink.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Markham (he is owner of Mark Haven Beach at Tappahannock) were about. She wore a beige wool and chesterfield. And another of the more striking ensembles was a coat of big plaids, with lush lynx collar and a striking white hat worn by Mrs. J. Harold Montague, supervisor of nurses in a N.Y. hospital, and wife of the director of music at State.

Smart black wool coat and a brace of silver foxes were donned by Edith Wilson of McKeesville, Va., who was being squired by Oliver Press of Chesapeake, Va. And a cute red hat added a note to the ensemble worn by Mrs. Oscar Williams of Charlottesville. With her and Mr. Williams were Mrs. Birdie Poindexter and Clara Cerard.

Ruth LaPearl of Goochland County, Va. and Marie Johnson of New York were others of the smartly dressed there. The former was clad in pink wool jersey and a mink coat.

Lucille Layhe and Isaac Boyd were another couple from Norfolk. Mr. and Mrs. Delmar and Mrs. Nancy Davis came from Baltimore. Younger set group from the Monumental City included Ardell Jones, Paul Harris, Herbert Brown, Ethelyn Evans and Shirley Butler —augmented by Brooks Falley of Petersburg. Mrs. Martha Paige from Crew, Va. in plum colored suit trimmed in tiny checks and silver muskrat coat, had with her Mrs. Birdie Oliver and Miss Vivian Parker, also of Crew.

Jean Freeman, Joseph Bonds and Mr. and Mrs. James Cameron completed a party from Richmond. Wilhelmina Reid, was down from Corona, N.Y., and Annie Chavis up from Tarboro, N.C. Lelia Roane, Howard University co-ed, who late Mrs. Lelia Turner did so handsomely by her will, was being squired by the Smith brothers, Vincent and Bruce.

The Paul Dill Mortons of Richmond were having themselves a time and garnering guests for the open house they held all evening. With them was her mother, Mrs. Raphael Harris, as chippie as any of the other chicks.

En route to a party at the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Monet Frazier, on State campus, was a group, including Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Harrison of Franklin, Va., Mrs. Delores Tillery of East Orange, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Nurse of Corona, N.Y., Mrs. Agnes Lee, Mrs. Katheen Brown, Mrs. Charlotte Hamilton, Mrs. Eva Allen, all of Franklin; Dr. Roger Spencer of Chicago and Dr. G. Hamilton Francis of Norfolk. But later we ran into the same bunch at the Skyline Inn. Ben Lewis's swank roadside place.

At the same spot were Kitty Coleman of Baltimore and her fiance, Frank Harmon of Hagerstown, who let the item out that their plans are for December 2. Also saw there Herbert Smith and Theophilus Jones (he's owner of Jones Cocktail Lounge, in Baltimore). Isaac Bristol was there and the former Jackie Avant, clad in the snarkiest gray suit and a hat completely banded in flaunting gray feathers.

Arnetie Freies Honored

Vieing at the ball with Arnetie Freies, the "Miss Virginia State" of this year, a cute co-ed from Petersburg, were three five handsome, and I do mean handsome, cops from Richmond. All the fellows had their eyes on the "Queen," who was something to keep an eye on, too, in a beige frock, three-quarter length coat of black fur and a hat of bands of shaded beige satin. But all the gals kept wondering just what one did on Virginia State campus in order to get arrested. They swore that the town picked the swanky brown of color to the black frock and tan uniforms and then picked the men to put in them—for looks.

But getting back to who was at the game. Dr. and Mrs. C. N. Jones of Baltimore (she in red suit and mink coat), their daughter, Barbara, a Morgan co-ed; her sister, Mrs. Lloyd English of Philadelphia, and the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Knight of Richmond, made up one party. Mr. and Mrs. Harry McIntosh of Norfolk, Vivian Moore and Ferdinand Williams, of the same town, Dr. and Mrs. William Bullivan of Philadelphia (she back on her campus, and looking like a million in black gabardine and mink coat), were about.

Others seen were:

Mrs. Henrietta Diggs, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Curtis, Mrs. Christina Wood, all of Baltimore; Alvin Brown and Clarence Gaines of Winston-Salem, coaches on the N.C. staff; Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Campbell of Baltimore, Mrs. Dessie Taylor of Charlottesville, Mrs. Ouella Myers of Petersburg, Mrs. Thomas Kelson Jr. of Baltimore, the Harrison Vessells and the Ernest Browns of the same city, Mrs. Vascar Barnett Harris of Lynchburg, Frank Kilee, editor of the Morgan Spokesman, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Keese, of Newport News, and Mrs. Rose Butler of Durham, a teacher at N.C. State.

Personality Parade

Miss Doris Thornton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Thornton of 190 Orange St., Newark, is a graduate of Central High School. She plans to become a seamstress. Her pastimes are dancing, reading and movies.—(Raney photo).

Dr. Jackson to Be Speaker at Rally

Dr. Robert L. Jackson, member of the Commission on City Plan, will be guest speaker at the mass meeting to be sponsored by the Northwest Community Council at 4 p.m., Sunday, at Union Baptist Church.

Hammond J. Briscoe, president of the council, will also speak. Music will be furnished by the Eastside Community Committee junior orchestra, directed by James Holloman; and by the Girls Choir of Metropolitan Methodist Church.

Minister Protests Move to Bar Chaplains at Cemetery

RICHMOND

Charges that an attempt is being made by John J. Carr, superintendent at National Cemetery, to have funeral services in that cemetery conducted by white chaplains only were made this week by the Rev. (Chaplain) Robert S. Anderson.

The complaint was made officially by the Rev. Mr. Anderson, pastor of Fifth Baptist Church and chaplain in the Army Reserve Corps, in a letter to the district executive of the Virginia Military District, with offices in the Parcel Post Building here.

Text of Anderson Letter

Mr. Anderson, who said the incident complained of is not the first that has taken place in the cemetery, caused by the superintendent's attempts to bar any other than white chaplains from conducting services there, related in his letter the following as the gist of the latest case:

I was ordered by your office (Virginia Military District) to conduct the funeral of Pfc. William D. Telpher on Nov. 18, 1948, at 10 a.m. When I arrived at the cemetery at 9:40 a.m., the family and the undertaker were present.

Mr. Carr (John J.) Walked over to me and asked, insultingly, "Who ordered you out here?" I replied, "The Virginia Military District." He went into a rage and said: "I give the orders for chaplains to conduct funerals." He inferred that I should go away.

In the meantime, Chaplain (Major) Duncan [supervising chaplain for the district] arrived and requested that I remain with him.

The family of the deceased was very upset over the actions of Mr. Carr, who showed poor judgment, prejudice and lack of understanding. . . .

Their Club Dances Aid Charities

Proceeds from their previous dance went to Community Hospital. Other club members are Mesdames Lucy Walden, Anna Harrison and Lonnie Moses.—(Raney photo.)

Fear of God, Law, Death Unfounded, Dr. Hill Says

Asserting that "culture and learning should not freeze out religion," Dr. Charles Hill, president of Wilberforce University, addressed a fully dressed some 600 persons, Sunday, at Douglas Memorial Community Church.

The speaker used "The Conquest of Fear" as his topic based on the 27th Psalm which read: "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear."

Cites 3 Major Fears

The noted educator said we are farthest from attaining freedom from fear.

Ruling out certain "legitimate fears" as his topic based on the fears" that should be felt by all persons, Dr. Hill said the three major unfounded fears were of God, the law, and death.

He pointed out that if we have or too arrogant" to give yent to faith, there is no need to fear God, their religious feelings.

the law or death, which he denied.

Urging his listeners to seek God, he concluded with the quotation "He who possesses the Possessor, he pass on the way to eternal life. Dr. Hill assailed those persons who possesses 'all things.'"
