Muse's Wife of 23 Years Asks Divorce From Actor

MR. AND MRS. MUSE

HOLLYWOOD (ANP)—Clarence Muse, veteran stage, screen and radio star, was sued Saturday for divorce by his wife of 23 years, Mrs. Willie Mae Muse. The case will be heard for the interlocutory decree on Dec. 8.

Through her lawyer, John Roberts, Mrs. Muse claims extreme cruelty, saying that she knows he does not love her any longer. She charged that he drew a gun on her and threatened to shoot her and that she escaped from their Hollywood home and has been staying with friends ever since.

She also states that she has had a restraining order issued on him forbidding violence against her. He will be required in court to state why the several actions should not be levied upon him, Roberts disclosed.

Reared Muse's 2 Children

The court records show that the couple married in Chicago in January, 1925. Mrs. Muse thus becomes the stepmother of Muse's two children by a former wife. The children are Mae, then 12, and Jon.

Both of them were cared for until grown by Mrs. Muse, with most local people under the impression they were her own. Both now are married. Mae living in Washington, and Dion, with a year-old child, making his residence here.

She also has tied up the actor's new Cadillac car, besides furnishings of both the city and country places, the livestock and other possessions.

Ties Up Actor's Property

To prevent his disposal of any of their property, Mrs. Muse has tied up by court order their residence in East Hollywood and the famous "Muse-a-While" ranch in Perris County, a 55-acre dude ranch earning regular income from guests who horseback riding, hunting, fishing and swimming as the attractions.

Concords and Discords

By W. LLEWELLYN WILSON

Music education in America is following a new trend.

Leaving the old traditional belief that music is for the select few who have been endowed with the aptitude that fits them specifically for the total art, modern music educators are saying that all normal children should be exposed to music of different types, vocal and instrumental.

The purpose of such instruction is to give opportunity to all children to express themselves through the realm of tone.

Musical Notations

Some have the knack of playing on various instruments without formal instruction and without the benefit of symbols called notes.

The history of musical notation is as interesting as it is unusual. Like many other symbols, which are now employed to record or express his ideas, the ones used in music are peculiar to the tonal art. For example, tone, as it is considered in music, has two elements which may be recorded through notation; namely, pitch and duration. In order to record pitch a symbol called staff is used.

The modern staff is a symbol made up of five parallel lines equidistant apart. This staff had its origin in the human hand.

Guido Gave Five Proponent

Early in the eleventh century a devout monk, Guido, used his hand with the extended fingers to represent pitch. Guido considered the five fingers and the four interwoving spaces between to represent pitch.

The element of duration was recorded and indicated by symbols of varying sizes and shapes called nuances, the first symbols only approximate pitch. Later these the symbols were called notes and the music was called measurable in an absolute manner.

Notes today cannot express dynamic degree in music.

Symbols Many and Varied

The symbols which indicate dynamic nuance are many and varied. There are literal and characteristical signs to indicate dynamics.

The public schools of today include in their musical curricula courses which fit students to continue the music in higher schools which devote themselves to music education.

There are also courses designed to make the students intelligent listeners.

It is known to the most casual observer that master performers, in order to exist as such, must have intelligent listeners and many times their listeners are individuals who themselves are non-performers.

Modern music education has as its objective courses which develop creators of music, commonly known as composers; performers known as exultants; and by far the largest group of consumers, known to the layman as listeners.

Kids at Henryton Get Pre-Yule Gifts

Members of the Women's Civic League of the Sixth Ward distributed bedroom slippers, books and cards last Sunday in the children's ward at Henryton Hospital.

The League held its November meeting at 1627 Madison St., with Mesdames Elizabeth Thompson and Artisan Redmond as hostesses. The group will sponsor a bazaar on Dec. 9, at the Douglass Recreation Center.

Mrs. Redmond was chairman of the hospital arrangements, and Mrs. Delophine Dorsey is president of the group.

Union Planning Golden Jubilee

RICHMOND (ANP)—Elaborate plans are being made for the celebration of the golden jubilee of Virginia Union University to begin on Feb. 11, 1949, it was disclosed here last week by officials of the institution.

The series of programs to follow will mark the establishment of the university by the uniting of two historic institutions for the education of freedmen.

Virginia Union was established in 1899 when the Richmond Theological Seminary for freedmen and Wayland Seminary at Washington, D.C., consolidated under the new name. The original institutions were established in 1865 by the American Baptist Home Mission Society, which still gives some support to Union.

Some Noted Graduates

Dr. J. M. Ellison, president of Union, said the university has more than 5,000 graduates and former students scattered in many parts of the world, contributing their part in spreading culture and giving service in various fields of human endeavor.

Sara Prettyman Named Guest Soloist at Elks' Band Concert

The Monumental Elks' Band, of the Monumental Lodge of Elks No. 3, IBPOEW, directed by Edward A. Prettyman, will appear in its first annual concert at Bethel AME Church, Druid Hill Ave. and Lanvale St., Friday, Dec. 10, at 8:30 p.m.

MISS PRETTYMAN

Miss Sara Prettyman, lyric soprano, and daughter of the director, now a student at New York University, where she is pursuing a course leading to a master's in music, will be guest soloist, while Mavris Davis, tenor, will be heard as band vocalist.

The Great Southern Temple No. 3, headed by Daughter Ruler Pearl Brown, is co-sponsor of the affair.

As an incentive to local junior and senior high school pupils, the sponsors will distribute 100 tickets in the various schools to be given to the most worthy boys and girls of the respective schools.

It is the plan of the lodge to make the event an annual affair with the most outstanding local singer to be featured as guest soloist.

Miss Prettyman, this year's guest soloist, is a recent graduate of Morgan College, where she received her B.S. degree.

TO PRESENT 3-ACT COMEDY

SAVANNAH, Ga.—The Georgia State College Players will make their debut in a three-act comedy, "Campus Quarantine," on Dec. 2. Miss Beulah I. Johnson will direct the production.
