Friend Stops Flying Clock, Man Jailed

While trying to halt a disturbance in her home at 906 Whatcoat St., Thursday, Miss Dorothy Tolson stopped a clock with her head, and George Diggs, same address, charged with throwing the timepiece, got the time.

According to testimony, Diggs started dispute with his girl friend Miss Mildred Green, and began throwing everything that wasn't nailed down. Special Officer Joe Hall said the house was in shambles when he arrived to make the arrest.

Miss Tolson said that when she attempted to intervene, she accidentally stepped in the path of a clock which had been hurled at Miss Green by Diggs and was struck on the head.

"So you stopped the clock," commented Magistrate Fitzpatrick in Northwestern police court. "Well, Diggs will get the time. Ninety days in jail and a suspended fine of $25 and costs."

Man Uses Bicycle to Pilfer Autos

A new wrinkle in crime was uncovered in Central police court, Tuesday, when a confessed bicycle riding auto stripper was placed under $3,000 bail for a further hearing.

The accused is Leroy Colbert, 21, 1838 N. Caroline St., who, according to Lt. Albert Hansen, admitted he used a bicycle to stage a two-month crime wave in the center of the city.

Lt. Hansen said Colbert confessed to renting a bicycle almost daily since November and riding to the business district where, with the aid of a screw driver, he forced open the windows of parked cars and stripped them of parcels and various articles.

Used Shopping Bag

With these items stuffed into a shopping bag, the suspect would then return to the East Baltimore neighborhoods, dispose of his loot and return by bike.

Sgt. Stanley Oster and Officer Louis Rehak said they observed Colbert acting suspiciously Saturday and took him into custody for questioning.

In his possession was a batch of pawn tickets for clothing, cameras, and other articles allegedly taken from parked cars, police charged.

At the hearing, Tuesday, police said they had found owners for only a few of the items valued at about $1,500. A further hearing was sought in order to continue the search for more owners of the property, officers said.

Visitors to AFRO Home Office

WOMAN, 100, VICTIM

GORDON, Neb. — Mrs. Harriet Brown, believed to be 100 years old, was the second victim of the first blizzard of the year. Her frozen body was found in her cabin buried by snow which had drifted over the floor.

Md. Guard to Get 500 More Men

Authority to increase the Maryland National Guard by an additional 500 men was granted by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Tuesday, who stated that the vacancies exist principally in the Baltimore area, including Dundalk and Pikesville.

"About 4,500 officers and men are now members of the National Guard air and ground forces in Maryland," said the State adjutant general, adding that 5,000 is the maximum that the State can handle with present armory and equipment facilities.

County Units Filled

The additional men will be accepted in the Baltimore area because county units, for the most part, are now at their maximum allowable strength.

Under the Selective Service Act, men in the 17-18½ age group, who become members of the Guard are not liable for induction into the Regular Army for 21 months of active service. Others up to 35 years of age are also eligible to become guardsmen.

There are 37 guard units located in the Baltimore area, meeting in six national guard armories. Units include infantry, field artillery, medical detachments, military police, quartermaster, band, ordnance, truck and Air Force organizations.

Mallard Lynching Suspects Freed in Farcical Trial

tor, Solicitor General W. H. Lane of the Toombs County Circuit, but the judge objected.

Defense Attorney T. Ross Sharpe, who called them, said the "same track" was pulled on him thus: 25 years ago and that he had been waiting ever since for a chance to use it.

He said he could have called 11 of the jurymen as character witnesses for Howell if he had wanted to do so.

President Judge R. H. Hopkins very confirmed Sharpe's opinion, saying it is perfectly legal.

The police admitted he didn't know how widespread the practice was, but he added that he felt that almost anyone could be called as a character witness in a case regardless of what other connection they might have with it.

The first witness called by the State was Mrs. Amy Mallard, who became hysterical as she described how the blood spurted from her husband's mouth and body after the mob's attack.

Widow Becomes Hysterical

She told how they were returning from a school social on the night of Nov. 20 when they passed a car full of white men. The car lights were blinked a couple of times and the automobile followed the Mallard car until it turned off the side road leading up to the Mallard farm house.

"All of those people appeared in front and this car came up bumper to bumper in the back. There were about 20 of them. They began shooting and my husband was shot. I crouched down in the car and thought at one time that I was shot myself," Mrs. Mallard testified.

The widow then told how she went around the car after the shooting to help her slain husband.

Bar Mrs. Mallard's Friend

It was at this point that the State prosecutor and later the defense lawyer egged her into hysteria repeating several questions about where she saw the blood coming from her husband's wounds.

The terrified widow fell to the floor (in the witness stand) sobbing and screaming. She lay there for a court attache volunteered to pick her up. There wasn't a colored spectator in the first floor.

Only Joseph M. Goldwasser, the white Cleveland industrialist and NAACP member, had volunteered to be at her side, and he had been excluded from the courtroom.

A short recess had to be allowed for Mrs. Mallard to regain her composure.

Positive in Identifications

The widow denied that her husband had a pistol in the car at the time of the mob-slaying. She also denied that she had thrown such a pistol in a well after the event.

She positively identified Howell and Clifton as being among the mobsters. Defense Attorney T. Ross Sharpe tore bitterly into her identifications, but she never wavered, except to sob quietly.

William "Tim" Carter and his sister, Angelina, who also were passengers in Mallard's automobile, gave virtually the same story as Mrs. Mallard. They, however, did not identify anyone as being a member of the mob.

Howell Has "Perfect Alibi"

Defendant Howell had the "perfect alibi." He said that a Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Banks, white, spent the night of Nov. 20 at his home. He declared they sat up until 11 p.m. playing the radio and talking.

The Howell home is about 100 yards away from the scene of the shooting. Howell said he heard the shooting but didn't leave the yard on the night Mallard was murdered. He said he had not talked to Mallard more than twice in his life.

Defense Counsel Sharpe then called two jurors to the stand to testify as to the character of defendant Howell. They were L. J. Usher and A. W. Currie. Both said they would not believe Mrs. Mallard under oath.

Gun Story Conceded

Witness Frank Brinson, white, first to reach the scene of the shooting, told jurors that when he reached the scene a "long type pistol fell from the car to the ground."

In his own defense, Howell stated:

"I am not guilty. I never talked to Mallard more than twice in my life. I do not own a gun and I know nothing about it.

"She (Mrs. Mallard) has told so many different tales I don't believe she knows who did it. I was not mad with Mallard. I am just a poor tenant farmer on my father-in-law's place. I have absolutely nothing I wanted."

Goldwasser Vilified

Goldwasser testified under subpoena that he had entered the case in the interest of justice. He said he would inform the U.S. Justice Department that Mallard's civil rights were violated.

Attorney Sharpe attacked the character of Goldwasser in such an unwarranted manner during the summation that Judge Hopkins had to rebuke Sharpe and tell him to confine his remarks to a review of the evidence.

Goldwasser revealed he had received thousands of death threats, or protestations in the case. But he had been crusading 25 years and was not afraid. He had recommended Mrs. Mallard from Savannah to a State patrol car.

Lynch Atmosphere Prevails

Sharpe berated the fact that a few had come South to help a "poor woman."

The courtroom snickered freely when Mrs. Mallard sobbed and collapsed.

A proposal by Goldwasser for change of venue in the case was met with scoffs from both the State and the defense. Lanier, the prosecutor, told the court that he had "no use" for Goldwasser, and Sharpe said he conferred with him and that the Ohioan had nothing to do with the case.

Second Defendant Dismissed

Immediately following the verdict for Howell, the prosecution asked that the murder charge against the second arrested man, Roderick Clifton, 32-year-old farmer, be dropped.

Sharpe objected to the motion, saying he wanted an acquittal verdict. Judge Hunsberry ruled it was the privilege of the solicitor general to ask that the charge be dismissed and that he was granted the request.

Judge Hunsberry directed Sheriff Robert Gray to collect a $5 fine from one demonstrator, during the uproar characterized by whistling, handclapping and cheering, that followed the verdict.

Hearsay Evidence Admitted

The all-white jury of Toombs County businessmen and farmers was composed of Silas McCain, Pete Hammond, Silas Davis, Fred Wilson, W. E. Presser, C. V. Alex under, B. O. Durham, George R. Anderson, J. W. Cullen and Willis Mclain, in addition to Messrs. Currie and Usher.

At one point in the trial, Mrs. L. Gray, wife of the Toombs County sheriff, told the court that William Tim Carter, who had been jailed with his sister, confided to her that Mallard fired the first shot and that "somebody else fired the others."

Only five of the ten prosecution witnesses scediuled to be called in the case testified during the seven-hour hearing.

Student to Face Perjury Charge

First Held Here After Divorce Mill Probe

Isaiah Davis, Long Island University student, charged with perjury in connection with the Baltimore action for divorce, will stand trial, Monday, before Judge John I. Tucker.

The 26-year-old Army veteran and senior pre-medical student, was brought to Baltimore by Detective Sgt. James Butler on Dec. 28. His case marks the first result of a local investigation into possibilities of a "divorce mill" operation.

Davis is charged with swearing to a false Baltimore address to establish residence here during divorce proceedings against his wife, Lorine, last Aug. 10.

Not Basis in N.Y.

At that time, he was seeking a divorce on grounds of desertion which does not constitute any basis for divorce in New York it was said.

The student is alleged to have testified in addition that he lived in Baltimore more than two years with an uncle.

The case, which started the "divorce mill" probe, involved a New York mother and daughter who said they followed the advice of a white attorney in testifying that the younger woman lived in Baltimore so that she might obtain a divorce.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Knight, 53, was given a suspended sentence, and the daughter, Mrs. Mae Kearny, was sentenced to a term in prison.

Davis, who lives in Newark, N.J. and is in the city jail while awaiting trial, will be represented by Joseph Rosenthal, attorney. J. Harold Grady will prosecute.

Birthday Celebrant

Ellsworth J. Coates of 2025 Fulton Ave. is celebrating his birthday anniversary today (Friday). An AFRO employee for 19 years, Mr. Coates is foreman of the stereo type department. He is also a member of the advisory council of Emmanuel CC Church.

Greyhound Bus Co. Sued for $5,000

Reporting that he was thrown against the steps of a bus by an onrushing crowd boarding for a trip to Virginia, Henry Williams of 828 Dallas St., filed a $5,000 damage suit, Monday, against the Richmond Greyhound Lines.

The suit, entered in the City Court, sets forth that Mr. Williams had purchased a round trip bus ticket from Baltimore to Richmond last July 8 when he was crushed against the steps of a bus which passengers were boarding at a transfer point, 205 Washington.

2 Men Exonerated in Death Count

ris, assistant State's Attorney.

The other hearing resulted in murder charges being dropped against Sam Latham, who was charged with fatally shooting Mrs. Edith Malone on Dec. 28.

Blow Follows Drinking Bout

The 22-year-old woman was struck by Richardson after they came from a bar, early Monday morning. Witnesses said she fell to the ground shattering her glasses and severely lacerating her eye. All had been drinking.

Accompanied by Miss Bernice Wilson and Henry Nedd, Miss Morris walked to University Hospital, where doctors decided an operation was needed.

Sodium pentathol was administered by vein as an anaesthetic, after a physical examination revealed that Miss Morris had evidences of heart trouble.

Died Under Anaesthetic

The woman died while under the anaesthetic, and Richardson, who resides at 1627 W. Mulberry St., was charged in Western police court with assaulting by striking and thereby causing the death of Miss Morris.

He was held without bail pending the State's Attorney's hearing.

Victim 1 in 12,000

Dr. Cross said every precaution had been taken in the care and treatment of Miss Morris, but she was "one in approximately 12,000 persons who was ultra sensitive to sodium pentathol."

The physician said had the drug been used on Miss Morris at any time the result would probably have been fatal.

Concurring in Dr. Cross's testimony was Dr. L. G. White of the University hospital staff.

Dr. George Merrill, assistant State Medical Examiner, said an autopsy revealed that Miss Morris had an enlarged heart, with evidences of rheumatic heart disease.

Native of Harmony, N.C.

He said death was due to heart failure due to the sodium penathol administered for the eye operation. There was no evidence of criminal negligence or overdosage, he stated.

Employed as a stock girl in a five and ten cent store, Miss Morris had been in Baltimore over eight years. Her body was shipped to her home in Harmony, N.C., for funeral rites and burial on Sunday.

Self-Defense Plea Heeded

Ruling that Samuel Latham, 27, 815 W. Lexington St., shot and killed Mrs. Edith Malone on Dec. 28 in self defense, the State's Attorney also dismissed charges against him.

Latham surrendered at Western police station at 1:45 a.m. according to Lt. George Schaeffer, who investigated his statement that he had "shot a woman." The man was given a preliminary hearing and held without bail.

A statement ready by Lieutenant Schaeffer before the assistant State's Attorney, revealed that Latham and Mrs. Malone, who lived at 773 Vine St., had been drinking at her sister's home on Carrollton St.

Says Woman Attacked Him

Latham left her and returned to his home. Several hours later, Mrs. Malone, still intoxicated, came to the Lexington St. address and threatened to "cut his head off" as she advanced toward him with an opened switch blade knife according to Latham's signed statement.

Latham is reported to have backed away from her, and picked up a loaded revolver from a kitchen cabinet. When he stumbled and fell, the gun was discharged and a bullet lodged in the chest of the 208-lb. woman.

Anthony Federico, who represented the accused man, stated that Latham's voluntary surrender was consistent with innocence.

Woman, 20, Gets 5 Years in Slaying

Sentence of five years in Women's Prison was imposed, Thursday, upon 20-year-old Miss Margaret Crymes who was convicted of manslaughter in the knife slaying on Oct. 30 of Willie Beaver, 43.

Attired in high heeled red shoes and a tan suit, with a scarf tied about her head, the slender young woman told Judge John T. Tucker she plunged a knife into Willie Beaver when she met him unexpectedly in the darkened hall in Northwestern police court. Mrs. Crymes was arrested in the hallway of his home at 543 Lafayette Ave., and saw him motion as if to draw his own knife.

Afraid of Man

She said she was afraid of the man because he had argued with her earlier that evening. She added that she had gone to his house to get some of her clothing.

Officer Carl McKinney found Beaver lying on the street in a pool of blood with the murder weapon resting nearby. Miss Crymes was not arrested until the next day.

In a statement to Sgt. Frank Baccala, she outlined the killing as she did on the witness stand by Magistrate Fitzpatrick.

Hubby Fined $25 for Beating Wife

Convicted of charges of beating his wife, which beatings, accord to police, have occurred regularly, Willie Bullock, 36, 505 Wilson St., was fined $25 and costs in Northwestern police court Thursday, and given a suspended jail sentence.

In response to a call for assistance, Officer James Keenan said he went to the Wilson St. home in time to see Bullock choking his wife, Elizabeth, and holding a pen knife in one hand.

Argued Before Company

The wife stated that they had argued earlier that evening in the presence of company and that she was the only excuse the husband offered as he was penalized.
