Youthful Baltimore Cleric Installed as Pastor of 130-Year-Old R.I. Church

300 Attendants Include City, State Officials; Rev. A. J. Payne Preaches Sermon

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A Baltimorean and protege of the Rev. Arthur J. Payne, pastor of Enon Baptist Church, Baltimore, the Rev. M. Jerome Brown, 27, was installed on Monday as pastor of Congdon St. Baptist Church here, with city and State officials among the 300 persons in attendance.

The new pastor was a minister at Enon before accepting the call to the New England Church. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Brown of Arbutus, Md.

A graduate of Douglass High school, Baltimore, the Rev. Mr. Brown also holds degrees from Virginia Union University and Andover Newton Theological Seminary, studying at the latter under a scholarship award by the Northern Baptist Association.

Parents at Ceremony

His parents and four sisters attended the ceremony as did his wife, Mrs. Evelyn Brown, a former Baltimore teacher. He also has a brother.

In his installation sermon, the Rev. Mr. Payne reminded the congregation of the 130-year-old church, that they "were present to install the pastor, not to install him."

Lewis Jackson of the installation committee, read a message from Governor John O. Pastore who expressed the hope that the church members would give the new pastor wholehearted support, and that the Rev. Mr. Brown is paid a rate would "be a service to the community."

Mayor's Remarks

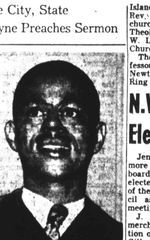
Mayor Dennis J. Roberts stated in part that "in coming to Providence from Baltimore, the Rev. Mr. Brown will be adding to our heritage in a material way and will give us the guidance we need."

An opportunity for the congregation to "rededicate itself" was pointed out in the remarks of State Senator Frank Licht.

The charge to the new minister, given by the Rev. Heywood G. Knight of Richmond, reminded him that his job was "not tickling ears, but pricking souls."

Others on the program were: The Rev. John W. Abbott, as social secretary of the Rhode Island Council of Churches; the Rev. John W. Bush, professor of church history at Andover Newton Theological School; the Rev. Earl W. Lawson of Emmanuel Baptist Church, Malden, Mass.;

The Rev. Dr. Nels Ferre, professor of theology at Andover Newton, and the Rev. J. Edwin Ring of Fourth Baptist Church.



REV. M. JEROME BROWN

Alpha-Omega Pentecostal Church Ends 3-Day Parley

The quarterly conference of the Madison Ave. Alpha and Omega Pentecostal Church met in a 3-day session, ending Sunday, with Elder Earl S. Stanback, district elder, presiding. Some 500 persons attended.

Speaking at the Sunday afternoon meeting, Elder Stanback said the trouble with the church today was that its members and often its ministers were fighting with the "sword that does bodily harm, instead of with the sword of God."

He urged his listeners to turn to God to solve their differences, instead of attempting to right things themselves.

Business Session Staurday

The three-day conference began last Friday night with committee meeting and Bible discussions.

The business session, which included reports of various auxiliaries and district workers, was held on Saturday, with Sunday devoted to religious services.

Ala. AME Conference Rallies Net $12,000 for Teachers' Pay

BIRMINGHAM (ANP) — The series of six AME conferences in the State, which began last Dec. 19 at Nichols Temple, Ensley, was brought to a close here last week after six consecutive weekly moves from Prattville, Troy, Montevallo, Mobile and Ensley.

At the end of the annual conference session, netted $12,000.

To Buy New Bus

Special Sunday School rallies, to repair the Episcopal residence, amounted to nearly $3,000. More than $1,200 was collected throughout the State for the purchase of a new bus for Daniel Payne College's choral group, football and basketball teams.

Among those attending the conferences were Bishops I. H. Bonner, AME, C. A. Gibbs, W. R. Wilkes, John H. Clayborn and B. H. Shaw, AME Zion, and Frank M. Reid and D. Ward Nichols, AME.

The presiding elders council of Alabama met Jan. 6 at Payne where plans were laid for the observance of Founder's day on March 2. A gigantic new building program is to be launched at that time.

Highlight of the conference meetings was the extension of welcome to Bishop and Mrs. S. L. Greene, new leader of the Alabama conference.

Pending Legislation Discussed by Civic Unit

The weekly meeting of the NAACP membership committee presented as guest on Tuesday Mrs. Mabel Atkinson, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the League of Women Voters.

She discussed the legislative processes and pending legislature affecting minority groups. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson, president.

Mrs. Mitchell Analyzes Court Rule in Law Review

An analysis of a Maryland court decision in important criminal case as written by Mrs. Juanita J. Mitchell, student at the University of Maryland Law School, is contained in the current edition of the Maryland Law Review.

The Review is published four times a year by the law school. Until Mrs. Mitchell's election last year, all members of the student editorial board for the publication were white.

Eligible for Board

Chosen for high scholarship, Mrs. Mitchell, a 3rd year night student and three other colored students are eligible for the 1949 editorial board of the law school publication.

The other eligible persons are Mrs. Lena K. Lee, second year night student; Wendell Freeland, second year day student and Robert Watts, third year day student.

Mrs. Mitchell's article is a review of the case involving a Virginia man sentenced to death for the criminal attack of a Virginia woman aboard a steam boat on the Potomac River which is the boundary line between Maryland and Virginia.

Contention in Case

His attorney contended that Maryland had no jurisdiction in the case because the Compact of 1785 between the States of Maryland and Virginia, still on the statute books, entitled the man to be tried in Virginia because he was a resident of that State.

However, the Court ruled that he was properly tried in Maryland because the agreement which provides that certain offenses committed on the river be tried in the State of the offender was effective only so long as the boundary line was doubtful.

Then, the Court pointed out, the boundary line was established with certainty and Maryland was granted jurisdiction over the entire river except for violations of fishing laws.

In reviewing the case, Mrs. Mitchell agreed with Court decision, citing numerous rulings of other States and of the Supreme Court.

Mahoney Named Head of Cancer Fund Drive

George P. Mahoney will serve as chairman of the 1949 fund raising campaign for the Maryland Division of the American Cancer Society.

Announcement of his acceptance of the chairmanship was made by Dr. Grant E. Ward, president of the state cancer group. The campaign to raise $230,000 will be conducted during the month of April.

Mahoney, former state racing commission chairman and well known Baltimore contractor, has long been identified with fund raising campaigns and benefits in Baltimore and Maryland.

Carver Pupils Get Temporary Relief

The building that the school board purchased at Biddle and McCulloh Sts., formerly used as a children's home and laundry by a Catholic organization, will serve overflow pupils from Carver Vocational High School at Lafayette and Carrollton Aves.

It will be able to accommodate from 40 to 60 children with girls' classes in cooking, sewing, home management and child care.

As soon as the building is remodeled, other pupils will be taught clothing and textiles, general metal work, painting and decorating, sign painting and card writing, tailoring, foods and cooking.

The erection of a general vocational school has been held up by the inability to find a site for a new Carver School. The understanding is that when Carver is built, the general vocational work will be moved to the Lafayette Ave. structure.

$300,000 School Bonds Approved

RICHMOND, Va.—The Board of Supervisors of Hanover County has approved a $300,000 bond issue to improve the colored schools in the county.

Bids for the county school were all for more than $400,000 but architects are revising plans so that the building will come within the $300,000 mark.

The bond issue was passed by the county voters in a November election but it was necessary for the school board and the board of supervisors to endorse the resolution before the bonds could be issued.

Of 15 years' duration, the bonds will be dated as of March 1 and will be issued with a face value of $1000 each. They will be made payable to First and Merchants National Bank of Richmond.
