she was begging money and the baby was disturbing the peace with its crying.

Sent $40 by Home Folks

Her case was aired in the Circuit Court Division for Juvenile Causes, which, after two weeks investigation, released the woman, after she telegraphed friends in Omaha and received $40 to make the bus trip home.

Dressed in a black coat and green head scarf, but wearing no overshoes to protect herself from wintry weather of a tour of the country, Mrs. Dooley held the sleeping child in her arms and placidly chewed gum while waiting for the bus.

Escorted Aboard Bus

She said something about having been in Washington recently and when asked about Johnny said "He's the only child I've got with me. Of course, I've had some others." Two shopping bags served as her luggage.

She was accompanied to the bus terminal by Julian S. Brewer, probation officer, who saw to it that she boarded the bus. She estimated that the trip home will take two and a half days.

who is heading up the two-day meeting. Mrs. Bethune flatly refused to allow her name or that of her organization to be used in conjunction with "those who have chosen methods and procedures with which I choose not to be identified."

She reminded Mr. Wilson that her entire life and work "have been devoted to the attainment of the goals . . . of first-class citizenship for all men," and pointed out that in her opinion "significant steps forward" have been made in the realization of these objectives.

Won't Imperil Opportunities

She made clear, however, that she intended "to do nothing to imperil these opportunities or allow our opponents to take advantage of us in advancing extraneous issues."

Expressing confidence that the objectives which all Americans seek can be achieved "along the lines of the best traditions of the nation of which we are a part," Mrs. Bethune stated emphatically, "I have no intention or desire to change that approach."

She told Mr. Wilson that she was confident and hopeful that "you will use your personal influence and the tremendous power of your great organization to continue to work with me to promote the welfare of our people in accordance with sound and indigenous American constitutional principles."

Nations and, in a large extent, to the untiring efforts of Dr. Bunche."

Describing the sessions of the Security Council meeting in Paris last September, Mr. Moe pointed out the difficulties encountered because of divided opinions of the UN members, of reaching agreements in the Greece, Korea and Palestine disputes.

He said that while many of the political problems went unsolved, the meeting made considerable progress on the world welfare issues. The questions of international control of atomic energy and general disarmament were also stalemated, he pointed out.

He cited the importance of continued UN meetings, particularly to the smaller European powers which, he said "are so frightened by thoughts of a new war that they beg that the discussion not be broken off even when there seems to be no possibility of reaching an agreement."

In extending the welcome, Dr. William H. Lemmel, superintendent of Baltimore City schools, emphasized Mr. Marburg's statement that:

"If the United Nations Organization is to succeed where the League of Nations failed, the organization machinery cannot do it alone, because the desire for peace must really come from the hearts of men."

The morning session of the two-day conference concluded with addresses by Dr. Herman J. Friedericy, UN delegate from the Netherlands, Dr. James Baxter, economics affairs officer; and T. Cecil Skeffington-Lodge, member of the British Parliament.

Officials Introduced

A long string of political figures ranging from United States congressmen to city officials and the small men who keep the political wheels turning in the wards were presented.

Among this group was Mrs. Victorine Adams, who told of the activities of her women's division Dr. Bernard Harris, park board members, was master of ceremonies.

Musical entertainment was offered by Miss Frances Brock and Rivers Chambers orchestra.

Rivers, a Baltimorean, whose oneman show was featured at the museum, last fall. It was purchased through contributions of the local colored teachers and school administrators following a request from the museum.

Miss Bell Boas, director of education at the museum, will lecture on art on the same program.

The schools' committee has outlined an over-all general program for use which will include not only the study of outstanding personalities and events, but pictorial displays, dramatization, music and literature.

Week's Theme Selected

"History, as It Should Be Taught," is the theme of the week.

Public school pupils will be asked to prepare pictorial exhibits showing the outstanding events of documentary nature, which will be used in the schools to be displayed, May 8 to June 5, at the Peale Museum.

There will be a special window display devoted to history of colored Americans at the Central Enoch Pratt Free Library, Franklin and Cathedral Sts. On Wednesday, the noonhour talk will be given by Landres Chilton of the Greenwich Theatre, on "Contributions to the American Theatre."

Series of Meetings Set

A series of meetings presenting music and films illustrating the achievements of colored persons will be sponsored by the branch libraries, as follows:

Tuesday, Branch No. 12, Barre and Carroll St. Wednesday, Chick Webb Center, 600 block N. Eden St., sponsored by Branches 5 and 11. Thursday, Branch No. 1, Fremont Ave. and Pitcher St., and Friday, Branch No. 2, Hollins and Calhoun Sts.

All meetings, set for 8 p.m., are open to the public.

Three Other Broadcasts

Other broadcasts will be:

Monday at 3:30 p.m. on WCBM —Members of the staff of the Morgan State College Department of Music, presenting "An Evaluation of Negro Style in the Music of Western Civilization," under the direction of J. Orville Mosely, head of the department.

Tuesday at 9:45 a.m. on WBAL—The music of Hall Johnson, featured by the Baltimore Boys' Chorus, under the direction of W. Meredith H. Birche;

Saturday at 4 p.m. on WCAO—The Greenwich Theatre production of "Citizen John H. Murphy," with Landres Chilton as director.

Other Activities Slated

Also on Saturday at 9:15 p.m. on WITH, Dr. Sadie Daniel St. Clair, assistant professor of history at Miner Teachers College in Washington, will speak.

Students from Coppin Teachers College will conduct "Story Hours" relating events and stories of outstanding personalities to pupils both white and colored elementary, junior and senior high schools.

Other members of the History Week committee are:

Misses Elizabeth Anthony and Vera Shank, Mesdames Letitia Ashe, Cleo Diggs, Mae Fortune, Grace H. Jacobs, Edythe Myers, Pearl C. Wilson.

Charles Brown, Lewis Gwynn, Houston B. Jackson, Benjamin Joffe, William E. Jones, Saul Perdue and Samuel Phillips.

Mate Missing 12 Years, Wife Freed

Mrs. Ophelia Wilder of 1364 Whatcoat St., whose husband, Edward Wilder, dropped out of sight 12 years ago, obtained a divorce in Circuit Court, this week.

Mr. Wilder was last seen by his family on Oct. 4, 1937, when he left home to go to a barber shop in the vicinity to get a hair cut. Though the Missing Persons Bureau made a search for him, and his employers at Sparrows Point, assisted in trying to locate him, nothing has been heard from him since.

Also obtaining a divorce was Mrs. Helen Savage of 436 Cum. Court, from Ulysses Savage, who was charged with desertion. The couple married in 1929 and separated in 1938.

Marriage Ended in Two Weeks

Mrs. Estelle Hughes of 1000 Hollins St., who divorced Joe Hughes, testified that they separated two weeks after their marriage on Oct. 23, 1946. The husband returned that time, but deserted her permanently on Feb. 1, 1947, when he left taking her dishes and cooking utensils, she said.

Also charged desertion was Richard Green of 632 Smithson St., who said that Mrs. Elizabeth Green left him without cause.

Three complaints filed petitions for divorces. They were:

Macio vs. Mrs. Arreese White, William T. Burkner, attorney; William vs. Mrs. Willie Mae Law, Sr., and Mrs. Annabella Harris vs. Nathan.

Pathetic Tale

poor but stable family. The family includes a mother who is physically unable to work, an adult brother who is emotionally disturbed and a 13-year-old brother, who has been selling trash to help support the group.

When they were evicted from their Argyle Ave. home a few weeks ago, they sought shelter with relatives and friends. All were taken in but the young girl, who was handicapped because of the baby.

Then began her diligent but unsuccessful attempt to rent a room for herself and the child.

Father "Irresponsible"

Court action will be taken to have the 19-year-old father contribute to support of the baby, but because he is considered an "irresponsible youth," the couple will not be encouraged to marry.

A job has been found for the young woman, and social workers are attempting to find living accommodations in which the family can be reunited.

In the meantime, the 13-year-old brother, too, has been committed to the care of the Welfare Department. It may be necessary for the family to go on relief until they decide to settle a little more favorable on them.

School Board on 'Leave' Issue

That employees who were absent because of illness on Jan. 1, 1949, shall continue on leave of absence under the rules which were effective when their present leaves began. Any such employee shall be eligible for sick leave under the revised rule when he shall have returned to active duty and shall have served 20 school days.

The first change, above, was recommended in order to provide at the beginning of the new sick leave plan, a period of accumulated full-time leave for those people who had a good sick leave record during the preceeding years. The provisions for 1949 were recommended in order to prevent the expenditure during 1949 of a greater sum than is appropriated in the budget for sick leave purposes.

The adoption of the recommended provisions will keep the cost of the new plan during 1949 to approximately $129,000, are not adopted, the cost will be approximately between $160,000 and $170,000.

Center Plan Disapproved

A request of Mrs. Gertrude Mayer, president of the Maryland Square Protective Association, to use a part of the building at Gay and Broad Streets for a club for boys was not approved by the business department.

John W. Lewis, assistant superintendent, told the board that an investigation indicated that the building was too large for such a purpose, that it would require too great an expenditure and that he had been advised by the police department that there was no likelihood of that department having funds to make necessary changes for such a project.

The building at present is being used by the school department for storage.

Murder Suspect Tells of 'Deal' With Police

on his head, but it was his fingers. I knew it," Edwards asserted.

He said in explaining that he could not see into the next cell, "I could tell he was white 'cause he had long hair."

This man-in the cell was later identified as Robert Finley of the 1400 block Linden Ave., a former convict, who said he tried to find out from Edwards where his gun was as a "favor" for Sgt. Cassidy.

Gun Found After Chat

It was after this cell block conversation that police went to the home of Edwards' father, and found a gun on a shelf in the kitchen.

Edwards testified that Capt. Henry Kriss of Baltimore detectives, told him when he was brought here for questioning, "If you don't talk, I'll send you back to Ferndale."

Edwards said he cried, "I don't want no parts of Ferndale."

When Anselm Sodaro, assistant State's Attorney of Baltimore, asked him if anyone had mistreated him at Ferndale, Edwards declared, "Not the principle of what happened, but what would have happened." He added, "It would frighten you too if you were in my shoes."

Admits Signing Confession

The defendant admitted however that in Baltimore, "I was treated better than any jail I've been in," and that the signature and initials on each page of the alleged confession, are his.

His father, Rufus Edwards testified for the State, saying he was present when Captain Kriss took the statement from his son and that no violence was used on the prisoner.

Mr. Edwards added, however, that his son had initialed the pages in the corner, and that the papers produced in court bore the initials in the center of the pages.

Statement Changed, Dad Charges

"The written statement also says a little more than what he said," Mr. Edwards charged.

Earlier, FBI firearms experts had testified that a .38-caliber cartridge case, supposedly picked up from a spot where the bodies were found, and another case found on the Edwards property, were fired in the Edwards gun.

They did not conclude, however, that the bullets taken from the brains of the victims, John Mahlan and Mary Kline, or the spent bullet on the floor of the death cab, came from the Edwards gun.

from the news clippings. "The FBI has made a positive identification of the gun used in the killing." He then said to Mr. Morton, "You knew that wasn't true."

Second Hand Quotation

Mr. Morton answered, "I don't know what the expression 'positive identification' of the gun means. Read out of context, it has no meaning to me." Mr. McWilliams then handed him the article.

Mr. Morton read and answered "That means to me that the FBI said to someone find the man who had this gun on the evening of Sept. 17 and you have the man who murdered John Mahlan and Mary Kline.

Q When was any such statement made by the FBI?

A. Well it came to me second hand. One of the officers who came back from the FBI. I overheard him say it . . .

FBI Exposes Doubt

Q Had you read the FBI report completely?

A. I had read it.

Q Did you notice that the FBI went out of its way to say that it was not possible to reach a conclusion that the bullets in the bodies were fired from the Edwards gun?

A Yes, I saw that.

Q Did that mean to you that a positive identification had been made?

A That one sentence of that report doesn't mean that.

Q What do you think it means to the average member of the public?

A. I haven't the remotest idea

Conveyed Idea of Guilt

Q Then I suggest to you that the average person reading that would conclude there was absolutely no question about the guilt of the accused.

A. A segment of the public can place that interpretation.

Q What segment would place a different interpretation (Here Mr. Sodaro's objection to the question being was sustained)?

Q (Quoting from article again) "The authorities have other information which clearly indicates that Edwards is directly responsible for the atrocities." Whose language is that?

A I suppose a fair answer would be that I had a fair hand in the selection of the words.

Q. Did you know what other information the public had?

A. I was not aware of all of the facts.

Q. Yet you did not demur to the use of that language?

A I did not (Here Mr. Morton repeated that the press release was not "my idea").

To Face Murder Scene

If the alleged confession is admitted into evidence, the State is expected to conclude its case with the presentation of testimony concerning a tour of the murder scene allegedly taken by Edwards with police.

The defense with Ridgely P. Melvin Jr. of Anne Arundel County, working with Mr. McWilliams, is expected to call 30 witnesses. It is also expected that a majority of these witnesses will construct an alibi for Edwards.

Arguing, Thursday, against the admission of the "confession," Mr. McWilliams said that "the whole meat" of the statement is that

Gloves and Boots

centend they were forced to sleep on the cold floor with not more than two blankets at the most; are formed on the bucks they had to use as toilets; rats ran through the place and that they were given little or no medical attention by the stockade surgeon.

Edwards was concerned for his public safety.

Community Ire Aroused

The attorney drew a word picture of the Glen Burnie Community after the killings, "the greatest happening of their lives."

He continued, "Nothing occurred to connect Edwards with the crime until October, when police began apprehending in wholesale quantity the colored residents of the area.

"Edwards was picked up on Oct. 8 and held until Oct. 12 with no charge and no knowledge of why he was being held.

"The people were dissatisfied. There were accounts in the press and pressure put on police to apprehend the guilty man. So it was decided at a conference to bring Edwards in again.

Mistreatment Barred

"He was taken to Waterloo, held three or four day; never advised of the charge or his right to counsel.

"He tells about the physical violence and this is connected up with the stool pigeon in the cell, statements about Ferndale, and threats to him and his family.

"Chief Souers swore out the warrant at noon and it immediately found its way into the papers. The public knew about it five or six hours before the defendant."

Tells of Police "Deal"

Mr. McWilliams set out that the ratification, Edwards was questioned at full view of prospective whom he could see through an open window.

He added that the man denied any knowledge about the crime until "Kriss brings up about Ferndale.

"It was then 'Mr. McWilliams went on 'that Edwards made the deal.' He continued, "And the proof of the pudding is in the fact that the State did keep him in the Baltimore City jail."

Prime Shocked City

The Kline girl, 18, and her cousin 25, left here home for a drive on Sept. 17 about 8:45 p.m. The abandoned car with bullet holes through both front windows, was found on a road off Old Frederick Road.

The bodies were found two days later and 26 miles away at Chesterfield, Md., by George W. Aisquith, of Baltimore.

J. Edward Kline, father of the girl, said he picked up the soda bottle on a road beyond that leading into the home of Edward's father.

$50,000 Suit Winner Sued

Divorcee Says He's Just "Indian Giver" TOOK BACK HOME

Clubman Victorious in Love Theft Case

WASHINGTON

John L. Holloway, clubman and businessman, of 573 Florida Ave., N.W., who beat a $50,000 suit over the affections of Mrs. Rosalie John son, 819 Otis Pl., N.W., is now battling her in his attempt to sell property which she claims he gave her for "valuable consideration plus love and affection.

The $50,000 suit against Mr. Holloway brought by Frank John son of Lynchburg, Va., former husband, was dismissed before Justice Alexander Holtzoff by a directed verdict on January 6, 1948.

Mr. Johnson had charged that Holloway had wormed his way into the affections of his wife while he (Johnson) was absent on business trips.

An absolute decree between the Johnsons had been signed on Feb. 22, 1947.

In her recent plea for an injunction against the proposed sale of the Otis St. premises, the easy-to-look at Mrs. Johnson declares that during the protracted litigation, Mr. Holloway conveyed the property to her father, Fleming Rose of Lynchburg.

By fraudulent means, the divorcee contends, Mr. Holloway got the property reconveyed to him. It was understood, she claims, that at the time of the original transaction, the property was intended for her use and occupancy.

Gets Vacate Order

Mrs. Johnson emphasizes that she did not authorize her father to reconvey the property. She adds that she was recently informed that Mr. Holloway plans to sell the property, and that she should vacate as soon as possible to make room for the new owner.

The District Court is asked to declare her the legal owner and balk the proposed sale.

By way of answer, this week, Mr. Holloway admits the execution of a deed for the transfer of the property to Mr. Rose, but insists that at no time did he divert him self of title to premises, and that the instrument prepared by him purporting to convey the property to Rose, was never out of his possession.

He emphasizes further that there never was any intention of conveyance to Rose, as evidenced by the fact the recovered property is but a full knowledge and understanding line with "wrongful and malicious prosecution." No reason was given for the withdrawal.

$10,000 Suit Against Va. Bus Line Dropped

NORFOLK, Va.—(ANP)—Mrs. Lucinda Goodman, a recreation worker, dropped her $10,000 damage suit against the Virginia Transit Company in court of law and chancery here recently, in which she had charged that she has full knowledge and understanding line with "wrongful and malicious prosecution." No reason was given for the withdrawal.

200 Hotel Employees to Vote on Whether to Choose Union

Some 200 catering employees of Sheraton-Belvedere Hotel are expected to vote in an election on Feb. 17, which will determine whether or not the Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union, AFL, will be their bargaining agent. Representatives of the union and the hotel's management signed an agreement on Tuesday authorizing the election.

The catering department includes cooks, their assistants, dishwashers, kitchen porters, bus girls, bartenders, bus boys, waiters, waitresses, cleaners and all employees who handle, prepare or serve foodstuffs or beverages, according to Anthony Glorioso, union business representative.

Mr. Glorioso is also secretary of the local joint executive board. Purnell Barnett is secretary of Local 695, Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union, and Norman Rosenberg, president.

Professor Fired, Students Strike

LANGSTON, Okla. (NNPA) — Students at Langston University here, struck last Thursday, in protest of the dismissal of a faculty member.

Dr. G. L. Harrison, president of the school, said a majority of the 900 students was absent from classes, while student sources said nearly all the student body stayed away.

"The protest grew out of the dismissal of Roscoe Chesley, associate professor of sociology and political science. Chesley chaperoned a group of Langston students, who picketed the legislature in Oklahoma City on Jan. 6, asking for an end to segregation in Oklahoma colleges.

Inquired About Picketing

"After the picketing, I wrote Mr. Chesley a letter, asking why he was picketing in Oklahoma City instead of teaching his class," Dr. Harrison said last Thursday night.

"He answered that what he did off the campus was his own prerogative and not the school's affair.

"I couldn't tolerate that, so I told him his position was being discontinued at the end of the semester, on Jan. 26."

When the dismissal became known, students held an assembly last Wednesday, and asked the student council to take action.

"We asked the president to meet with the student body, but he sent a representative, Dr. Ira P. Perry, who gave us no satisfaction," one of the students, J. C. Wilson, said.

Afterwards, the students voted to stay away from classes until a satisfactory answer shall have been received.

Paulsboro Physician Given Shore Rites

PAULSBORO—Funeral services were held on Wednesday at St. Augustine Episcopal Church in Atlantic City for Dr. William A. McGuire, 48, who died here Saturday at his home.

Dr. McGuire was a native of Atlantic City and had practiced here 16 years. He was a graduate of Howard University and Temple University.
