Klan Mails Threat to Civic Leader

South Carolina NAACP Head Demands Probe

COLUMBIA, S. C. (ANP)—James M. Hinton, president of the State NAACP Conference, was a target of a threat from the Ku Klux Klan here Tuesday, after he had protested to Governor Thurmond the use of public highways by the Klan three days before.

The threat was in the form of a postcard mailed in Greenwood, S.C., at 11:30 a.m. Jan. 8, and addressed to "President James M. Hinton, Columbia, S.C." It read:

"We have heard enough of your big black mouth and tongue speak out, so where we will meet next will be at the State house monument and we expect to have you as our guest. There will be a cross burning; but we will have you on top of the cross, so you can expect to see hundreds of us and cars. We are going to have some of your friends also present.

"Signed KKK"

Asks Federal Probe

Mr. Hinton said he had written Attorney General Tom Clark an account of receiving the letter and asking the Cabinet officer to order an investigation.

The card was sent after Hinton had asked in writing that the Governor put a stop to Klan activity. On Saturday, Jan. 15, the KKK had ridden into Orangeburg, S. C., and through Orangeburg and Calhoun Counties. Their arrival was announced before hand.

Chief of Police Salley of Orangeburg, tipped off to their coming, phoned Gov. Thurmond asking that a road block be set up to halt them. He was told that the Governor had no legal grounds upon which to act. The two radio stations in Orangeburg also announced the Klan parade. City police held up traffic for the Klansmen as they were being hustled through the city.
