GIRL ONLY BRUISED

Overturned Oil Stove Cause of Conflagration

PHILADELPHIA

Threatened by hungry flames which had trapped them in their apartment, a young mother dropped her 10-year-old daughter, then leaped from a third floor window Saturday afternoon and landed safely in a makeshift net held by several passersby.

The mother, Mrs. Anna Durapd, 24, sprained her ankle, and her daughter, Lois, suffered only minor bruises when they escaped from the burning building at 4115 Warren St.

The child was thrown out of the window by her mother into a net made by a group of men who tied their overcoats together when they were attracted by the fire.

Son Not Home

As the child landed safely and began crying for her mother, Mrs. Durand climed out of the window, held on to the ledge for a moment, then made the jump which saved her life.

Her eight-year-old son, Eddie had been sent on an errand for his mother a short time before the fire started when an oil stove on the second floor was accidentally upset.

Henry Watson, 23, of 4322 Aspen St., who was visiting in another apartment on the third floor, was overcome by smoke when he attempted to reach the terrified woman and child. He was rescued by firemen and treated at the Presbyterian Hospital.

Oil Stove Overturned

The stove, in a rear apartment, occupied by Robert Northern, was knocked over and set the room ablaze. The flames, which spread quickly out of control, drove him back when he tried to put out the fire.

The first floor occupants, Mrs. Florence Ford and her five children, were led to the street without injury. The Durands were also discharged after treatment at the Presbyterian Hospital.

Mrs. Ingram Well, Ga. Doctor Says

NEW YORK — Officials of the Georgia State Board of Corrections, in response to a wire from the NAACP, have informed the organization that Mrs. Rosa Lee Ingram is in satisfactory health, and according to an examining physician is able to do duties "of a light nature" assigned to her.

"The individual was examined by Dr. D. M. Silver of Richmond county on Jan 21," states the communication from J. B. Hatchett, assistant director of the State Board of Corrections.

Hearty Eater

"In his opinion, she is able to do the normal work required in her duties at that institution which is of a light nature.

"He states to us . . . that there is no heart condition apparent; that she has shortness of breath at times due to being overweight, which

The NAACP's wire, prompted by reports that Mrs. Ingram had been suffering recurrent heart attacks, urged immediate medical attention for the 41-year-old widow, serving a life imprisonment term for the self-defense slaying of a white neighbor.

GROUP AT POLITICAL CROSSROADS:

Feud Over Assembly Candidate Perils Gains

By NAT TURNER

RICHMOND

While Lynwood E. Smith, first to announce here as a candidate for the House of Delegates, has made it plain that he will not enter an elimination contest scheduled for April 5, it is not known whether any other persons will enter.

Meanwhile, Dr. W. L. Ransome, pastor of First Baptist Church, head of the Richmond Civic Council, sponsor of the elimination contest, and only other candidate to announce himself, is waging an active campaign in preparation for the runoff.

While Mr. Smith also is reported to be campaigning quietly but effectively, it is know that Dr. Ransome has addressed a number of bodies affiliated with the council with the idea of capturing their endorsement in advance of the April meeting.

Should Dr. Ransome's methods prove fruitful, observers point out, unless a large body of citizens outside the council's affiliates attend the runoff session, any other aspirant who submits his name on the night in question will be snowed under.

Others May Yet Enter

These observers point out that it still is not too late for some ambitious individual to enter the contest, conduct a whirlwind campaign just before the runoff to create interest and a following, and cop the council's endorsement in spite of the minister's efforts.

However, the AFRO has been unable to locate any person who has any such ambitions or entertains such ideas. Thus, it appears to be a foregone conclusion that Dr. Ransome will get the council's nod by default and that there will definitely be two men in the race in August.

Should that situation develop, as now seems certain, it will mean that the political forces among Richmond's colored population are definitely split and they stand in danger of losing all of the gains made politically in recent years.

It will mean also that the slim threads that have held together these various bodies in a political unit will be torn to bits, thus sacrificing the highest interests of the group on the altar of what some persons characterize as "selfish political ambition."

'Blunder' Helps Smith

While some others are more charitable in their descriptions of the situation, there is a large body of citizens, both in and out of Civic Council, who feel that a few of its officials are responsible for the sorry plight in which it now finds itself.

Smith stands to get many votes that he otherwise would not get, no matter whom the Civic Council nominates, simply because of blunder" made by a small group of council officials at the Emancipation Day celebration.

Many recall that the Council morally obligated itself to Smith when he withdrew from the congressmanic race last year in favor of Oliver W. Hill, attorney who was elected. These people see in the Council's action an attempt to evade that obligation.
