Morgan, Elated Over N.C. Upset, Primes for Howard

Locals Face 3 Stiff Foes in Week But Hope for CIAA Tourney Berth

Morgan State College Bears will please themselves — and justifiably so — after their win dropped a decision to North Carolina Teachers, if they can manage over the high-flying Lincoln Eagles, look to tomorrow (Saturday) night's tussle with Howard as the first of three tough hurdles they must mount within the next seven days of CIAA play.

For, should the Hillmen get over the formidable Bison aggregation at the Baltimore Gardens tomorrow night, they believe they have an even chance against themselves in the CIAA race and thus win an invitation to the CIAA basketball tournament, set in Big Washington's Uline Arena March 17-19.

That will be no easy task. After the Bisons, the Bears are scheduled to play hosts to Union University's once-beaten Panthers on Tuesday night and Lincoln University's fast-traveling Lions on next Saturday.

This latter is the annual pre-Washington's Birthday clash between the two schools and will be highlighted by an interesting preliminary game between the alumni outfits of the two institutions.

Morse Hill's lads have shaken a lot of their uncertainty as a result of the 66-65 setback of North Carolina and close followers of the game are anticipating a boost in form of life taking hold of the team.

Their hard-earned score over the strong Eagles achieved in the final minute of play after a vigorous uphill battle has prepared the Bison toppers for a Howard team that figured to be a heavy favorite. The fact that the Blue and White dropped a decision to North Carolina two nights after Morgan had to whipped the latter, certainly will add to the locals self-assurance.

With Johnny Edmonds and Roland Taylor having found themselves, Coach Hill believes his Bears may bear watching from now until time for the tourney selections. Getting over at least two of the three hurdles facing them this week, will be a mighty important feat. And Hill believes Edmonds, Taylor, Linton George, who hot against Virginia State, and George Washington will be a big factor in the Bisons' defense March 17-19.

Y Big Five Hosts to Penna. Quint

One of the feature games of the current basketball season will take place next Friday, Feb. 18, when the Y Big Five faces the fast Clippers from Coatesville, Pa.

The Clippers have won the county and city championships in Coatesville for the last three years. This game should prove a real test for the local aces who have their strongest team in recent years.

In the preliminary, the Trinity Baptist Bullets and the Robins will battle it out in the final game of the Druid Hill Y Senior Senior League with second place at stake.

On Wednesday, the Big Five will play the Annapolis YMCA team at the Druid Hill gym at 8 p.m.

In the preliminary, the Y Phalanx will oppose St. Francis Xavier at 7 p.m.

Leroy Smith, brilliant Long Island University forward, loses possession of the ball as he goes in for a layup against Santa Clara in last week's LIU game at the Cow Palace, San Francisco. Andy Collins, Santa Clara All-America aspirant, moves in to smear the play. The LIU Blackbirds won, 70-62. Despite this error, Smith led the winners with 17 points, followed by tan teammate. Sherman White with 15.

Baroudi Kin Sues Charles for $15,000

AKRON, Ohio — Seeking $15,000 damages from Ezzard Charles, Sam Crandall, father of the late Sam Baroudi, who died in a ring battle in Chicago last year, filed a suit in the common pleas court of Summit County this week charging that the "willful and wanton acts" of the Cincinnati light-heavyweight boxer resulted in the death of his son.

In the petition, Alexander Russell, Akron attorney, alleges that the tactics used by Charles in the fatal Chicago encounter violated the Illinois regulations and laws regulating boxing and wrestling and that Charles's action was "in violation of Sam Baroudi's right to be secure in his person."

The petition charges that Charles's tactics under the Illinois statute violated the following regarding fouls:

Repeated hitting below the belt. Holding an opponent with one hand and hitting with the other hand.

Striking deliberately at that part of the body over the kidneys.

Use of the pivot blow and rabbit punch.

Barracudas Drop 74-61 Tilt to Y

A fighting Barracuda team fell victim to the more experienced YMCA Big Five Wednesday night in the Druid Hill YMCA gym, but not until the visitors had pressed the homelings to a 74-61 decision.

The young Maryland 4-A League quintet remained in the battle until the closing minutes when a late surge, engineered by Deuce Gibson and Polly Franklin pulled away in a commanding advantage.

Brown and Williams tallied 18 points apiece to give the Big Five boys considerable concern, but their efforts were lost in the closing drive of the victors.

On next Wednesday night, the Big Five tangles with Annapolis YMCA at the Druid Hill gym.

In the preliminary test, the Y Phalanx cagers broke into an early 12-point lead and disposed of the St. Plus floormen, 34-21.

Veeck Signs Art Wilson While Yanks Are 'Waiting'

SAN JUAN, P.R. — Arthur (Art) Wilson, 28-year-old shortstop who paced the Birmingham Barons to the Negro American League pennant last year, was signed to a 1949 contract to play with the Cleveland Indians here Thursday.

Wilson affixed his signature to a contract which Bill Veeck, president of the world champions, brought here in person. He was accompanied by the Tribe's traveling secretary, Spud Goldstein, and the meeting with Wilson took place within two hours after their plane was set on the ground at San Juan's Pan-American Airway airport.

Shortly after it was announced the New York Yankees entered a protest, claiming that Veeck's action was "unethical." George Weiss, business manager of the Yankees, declared that Wilson had verbally agreed to terms to sign with them for their Newark farm club, and that they were "simply waiting" for certain matters to be straightened out.

Not Pledged to Yanks

Wilson, however, asserted that he was not pledged to the Yankees. He said that he had been approached by Yankee Scout Tom Greenwade several weeks ago and that he "believed" an offer may have been made by him. "But everything was canceled," Wilson said, as far as he knew.

Veeck denied any wrongdoing and said he saw no reason for the Yankees to be complaining. The Tribe pretty pointed out that he had been called on the telephone by Tom Hayes, owner of the Barons, and advised that Wilson's contract was available.

Touted by Doby

Veeck declared further that, in addition to having had the shortstop scouted for over a year, Larry Doby had recommended Wilson as a "good prospect." He said Doby had suggested that the Indians "grab" the player.

Wilson, who is currently batting .373 with the Mayaguez club, which he manages, had a stick average of .402 in the NAL last year for 76 games. In 333 times at bat, he collected 134 hits, 19 of which were doubles, eight triples and two home-runs. He drew 37 passes on balls and struck out 24 times. His runs-batted-in total of 41 was not considered bad in view of the fact he was the Baronet leadoff man.

The newest tan player for the majors is under instruction to report to the Indians' training camp at Tucson, Ariz., on Mar. 1.

St. Francis Lads Capture Three Games In One Day

St. Francis Xavier won three games on Sunday afternoon in their gym.

The midget defeated the Emperors, 32-9, for their fourth straight victory, the Intermediates won their tenth straight game defeating the Somerset Eagles 60-41, and the Seniors defeated the Y-Robins by a score of 54-42.

The Seniors play host to St. Pius on Friday night, while the Intermediates will test the Finos for the second time, having defeated them previously.

Ezzard Charles Scores 8-Round KO Over Haynes

Winner Improves Chances of Landing June Bout With Louis by Beating Heavier Foe

PHILADELPHIA — Ezzard Charles, towering heavyweight title contender from Cincinnati, and Johnny Haynes, cumbersome veteran from Los Angeles, clubbed each other for eight rounds at the Arena, Monday night, and when the punching was all over, each could claim some measure of glory.

The sleek, sharp-hitting Charles, making his first appearance in a Philadelphia ring, improved his chances of landing a June bout with Champion Joe Louis by wearing down the 214-pound Californian and then knocking him out at 2:38 of the eighth heat of a scheduled 10-rounder.

Haynes, although beaten and twice deposited on his haunches by an adversary who spotted him a 35-pound advantage in bulk, won many new followers by waging a stout-hearted fight with the highly-regarded Ohioan, who had dominated the ring a prohibitive favorite.

Haynes Debakes Knockout

The fact is that Haynes and his handlers were not convinced that he had been knocked out, and judging from the tumult that greeted the end of the fight, more than a dozen of the 6,731 paid customers were in a similar state of mind.

Haynes thought he had beat the count after being floored the second time, and though wobbly on his pins, wanted to continue the milling.

Referee Charley Daggert, however, ruled that he had not regained his footing at the count of 10 and waved each opponent to his corner with a cease-fire order.

Technician Leading Boxer

The referee's action seemed proper, but a vociferous group of dissenters booed noisily and bombarded the ring with missiles to show their disagreement.

Most of the spectators were satisfied that Haynes wouldn't have begg able to go the 10-round route even had Daggert given him the benefit of any doubt.

Charles, though occasionally flustered by Haynes's right crosses, was ever in thorough command of the punching after the third round when Haynes, on the heels of two tame periods, hustled Charles about the ring with a shower of punches.

Charles Assumes Command

Haynes apparently spent much of his energy in that flurry and in the fourth round Charles began finding his bear with his powerladen overhand right. In short order, Haynes's mouth was a crimson mess and he was sprinkling blood on ringsiders.

Charles continued to punch to advantage in the fifth and sixth rounds. In the seventh he had Haynes in serious trouble, but was unable to finish him. Haynes called up his last ounce of reserve power in an effort to stave off disaster in the eighth and was mixing it freely when Charles delivered the knockout blow.

Charles's Record Excellent

In scoring his 31st victory in 32 post-war bouts, Charles, a 27-year-old ex-soldier, beat the biggest man he ever faced.

Meeting much heavier opponents now is expected to stand Charles in good stead when he and if he should meet Louis who is reported to team around 215 pounds for his next title defense.

CIAA Cage Group Maps Tourney Plans

BALTIMORE—Final plans for the fourth annual CIAA basketball tournament to be held at Uline Arena in Washington, D.C., on March 17, 18 and 19, were formulated by the conference tournament committee in a meeting here over the week end.

The committee revised the season ticket system wherein fans may purchase duceats for the entire three day tournament and arranged for establishment of ticket offices in Washington. The tickets will go on sale on Feb. 20.

Poet Ring Teams Win and Lose

Boxing and wrestling teams of Dunbar High School divided honors with rival Poly of Carver last week, the Poet boxers whipping Douglass, 4-2, in matches on Tuesday but bowing to Carver, 8-4, on Thursday.

Highlight of the two dual meets was the performance of Carver's Charles Weaver who scored two wins in the wrestling competition, pinning Leroy Jones in the feature match and downing Thomas Justice in the final bout of the program.
