Welfare Recipient Lost Sum of $150

Landlord Denies She Rents Home From Him

OUSTER THREATENED

Matron Unable to Find Quarters for Brood

February is a month of sorrow for a young mother of nine children who reportedly lost $150 of her relief money last Saturday, and now faces eviction from her apartment at 815½ E. Pratt St.

The mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Harris, spent most of Thursday trudging through Baltimore's snow swept streets in search of long quarters for her brood, who at present are living with her in two basement rooms at the Pratt St address.

Her search, to date, has been futile and aide of the Baltimore Housing Authority promised to "put her on the list," but said it might be "months" before a vacancy occurred for her. She found one apartment for rent, but not to a woman with nine children.

Lost $150 of $165 Grant

Mrs. Harris said she cashed her Department of Welfare monthly check for $165, Saturday, but chased some groceries and started home. On the way, she lost a small purse which contained $150 of the money, she reported.

The distressed mother appealed to the police for assistance in finding the money, but it had not been recovered late Thursday. Mrs. Harris has five sons and four daughters, the eldest a boy 13, and the youngest, twin boys, eight-months old.

Her husband left her shortly before they were evicted from a house on N. Stricker St., for non-payment of rent. The mother turned to the Welfare Department for support and moved her family into the small underground rooms for which she said she pays two dollars weekly.

Not Bona Fide Tenant

The landlord, Leroy Dunn of 1719 Harford Ave., says she is not a bona fide tenant of the Pratt St. property and has no business there.

Mr. Dunn told the AFRO that he rents the house to a family named Walker. It was only last week, he said, that he found that Mrs. Harris and her children were living there. He threatened to have her evicted for trespassing on private property.

Rent Receipts Lost

Mrs. Harris, on the other hand, says she had been renting the basement rooms from Mr. Dunn for two months. Her rent receipts, she reported, were in the purse that was lost.

The controversy is expected to end up in the Housing Court early next week. Mrs. Harris said she would appeal to the court for a [illegible].

The AFRO learned that a family named Walker resides at the Pratt St. address, but occupies the first [illegible].

Morgan State College Faces Crisis

Policy of Separation and Neglect Blamed

Inadequacies Along All Lines Threaten Loss of School's Status

The following is the first of a series on the needs of Morgan State College and the policy of the State regarding higher education for colored persons. Other articles are to follow in both Tuesday and Friday editions of the AFRO.

By SAMUEL HOSKINS

Morgan State College, the only accredited institution of higher learning in Maryland for colored persons, is face to face with a grave crisis.

Powerful political and educational forces both within and without the State Administration are now at work shaping a policy which, if carried to its conclusion, will mean ruin for Morgan College.

Morgan's crisis is grave because it is two-fold.

In the first place, it is the accumulation of past neglect.

Second, it is the determination of these powerful political and educational forces to keep higher learning, especially State-supported, on a segregated basis.

2 Million Expended in 300 Years

The first part of Morgan's crisis stems from this type of background:

Institutions of higher learning for colored persons in the State of Maryland are relatively new.

The first four-year institution of higher learning outside of Baltimore City was not established in Maryland until the year 1922.

It is conservatively estimated that the State has spent not more than 2 million dollars for current expenses in colored colleges in the last three hundred years.

What this means can be understood when it is pointed out that for the two-year period, 1948 and 1949, the State appropriation to the University of Maryland was more than 9 million dollars.

Yearly Average for Buildings $77,000

From the time of its founding in 1867 until 1939, Morgan College was under control of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

In 1939 it became a State institution. From that time until 1946, inclusive, the State appropriated a total of only about $600,000 to Morgan for buildings.

This was a yearly average of only $77,000.

In 1947, with prices skyrocketed because of the war, the institution was granted $1,491,000 for construction purposes.

In 1940 the college's enrollment totaled 395. Today it has over 1500 resident students and 1000 in summer and evening courses.

More of Everything Needed

How far these sums lag behind the growth in enrollment can be seen by the institution's urgent need for more of everything.

Dormitory facilities are crowded to the breaking point. The Marbury Commission, a group of experts appointed to survey educational conditions in Maryland, found Morgan the most crowded institution in the State.

Laboratory facilities are not sufficient for a work of college caliber. College officials call them "high school laboratories."

The supply of library books is too small.

There are insufficient living accommodations for the faculty.

Situation for Women Critical

Reduced to details, this means:

There are only three dormitories for women. The largest, built to accommodate 72, now houses 114, or three students in rooms designed for two.

There are 112 in the other two buildings, constructed to house about half this number.

During the first semester, the college's enrollment of women totaled 790.

Of these, 407 are residents of Baltimore; 226 lived on the campus—in overcrowded conditions.

College officials had to find "approved homes" for the remaining 157 women students, either in Baltimore or nearby communities.

Situation for Men Worse

The situation is worse for men.

During the same period, 786 men were enrolled. Of these, 244 lived on the campus, and 306 are residents of Baltimore. There was no housing space for 236 others who had to find living quarters elsewhere.

Considering that 906 students were turned away at the beginning of the 1947-48 term, and 250 last fall, Morgan College's housing needs for students are acute indeed.

For faculty members, the situation is this:

The faculty is composed of 86 persons. Thirty-one live on the campus, the majority under conditions equally as crowded as for students.

Fourteen have permanent homes in Baltimore. The remaining 41 are forced to rent rooms or, if fortunate, apartments in the city, where housing is at a premium.

The same conditions hold for classified workers. Of 104, fewer than one-third live on the campus.

Faculty Superior, Difficulties Extreme

Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, president, says the faculty is of superior caliber. It is doing a good job, but works under extreme difficulties.

Examples: The faculty, as pointed out above, numbers only 86. The figure should be 100. There are 29 Ph.D.'s. There should be 50.

There are 19 students to every teacher. It should be, according to accepted standards, 13 to 1.

In addition, faculty members, as well as students, are further handicapped by the extremely limited number of classrooms.

There are 1100 students in science courses. They are forced to attend classes in rooms that should accommodate only 500.

Classrooms Inadequate, No Stability

The college has a total of 31 lecture classrooms and laboratories. These must handle 489 classes.

So class schedules begin at 8 a.m. and continue through 6 p.m., without a break for noonday lunch.

One-half of the classrooms are on the "undesirable" list, meaning that they are badly equipped, too small, or not designed to serve the particular need.

Of all the classrooms, there is only one which seats 100 students; three seat 60 each, while the remainder accommodate from 15 to 35 each.

Dean George Grant said, "There is no such thing as class stability." He meant that history and language classes are held in chemistry, physics and biology laboratories, or in whatever rooms are vacant at the time.

Basketball on Tennis Courts

Morgan College has over 700 students enrolled in physical education classes. Yet it has no gymnasium or swimming pool.

The basketball team practices on outside tennis courts, even in cold weather, and uses afterward one shower erected in the basement of a converted barn. This single shower must be used by other male physical education students.

Another single shower serves all women physical education students.

The college dining room, located in the cellar of Spencer Science Hall, can serve only 125 persons at a time. It must care for 800 at the noon meal.

Morgan College has a new ROTC Infantry unit of 300

Princess Anne Budget Bared

Dr. Bryd Submits Figures to Assembly

SETS PRECEDENT

Budget Breakdown First Given to Public

ANNAPOLIS—For the first time, a detailed account of proposed budget expenditures for Maryland State College at Princess Anne became public information, this week.

This occurred as Dr. H. C. (Curly) Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, submitted to members of the State Legislature a copy of the university's working budget and proposed increases for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1950.

Appearing before the House of Delegates Ways and Means Committee on Wednesday, Dr. Byrd promised to furnish the legislators with a complete financial statement for the university before the General Assembly closes next month.

Pressure Forces Promise

He made this agreement under pressure of a bill now pending in the House requiring that the university, like all other State departments, submit a breakdown of its budget requests.

Heretofore, the Legislature has approved the university budget appropriations without seeing the

Church Suit Reply Due in 15 Days

Overruling legal objections to an injunction, Judge Joseph Sherman on Wednesday gave the pastor and trustees of Gillis Community Church 15 days to answer charges that they are occupying Methodist church property illegally.

The bill for injunction was filed in May, 1948, on behalf of Bishop Alexander P. Shaw and trustees of Gillis Memorial Methodist Church which had undergone a change of denomination.

In the complaint, it is charged that property which the Rev. Theodore C. Jackson and his congregation are occupying at Calhoun and Mulberry Sts. was contracted in the name of the Methodist Con-

Heads Theatre Pickets

Mrs. Juanita J. Mitchell is serving as chairman of the interracial picket line sponsored by the local NAACP. This month marked their third year of protest against the discriminatory seating policy at Ford's Theatre. Many actors and writers have voiced their agreement with the strike taken by the picketers.

Ford Pickets Win Convert After 3 Years

As picketing at Ford's Theatre enters its fourth year, Harry Hopkins, 41-year-old chauffeur, who has crossed the picket line on several occasions, promises he won't do it again.

In making his decision, Mr. Hopkins falls in line with Irving Berlin, Charles Boyer, Oscar Hammerstein II, Lionel Stander, Lionel Hampton and his band!

This is what the Baltimore public will see and hear on April 10 at the Coliseum, when the AFRO-AMERICAN will present its Easter Fashion Festival benefit show.

Proceeds from the affair will purchase a new testing and research Provident Hospital.

After the show, highlighting in addition to the New York models, beauties from the New Faces Guild in Washington and a bevy of local talent, there will be dancing to the music of Lionel Hampton and his swing band.

The fashion show, featuring creations from the leading stores, will begin at 8:15 p.m. Tickets will go on sale March 1.

2 SHOTS FIRED

20-Year-Old Victim an Ex-AFRO Newsie

"I shot 'Dumdum' because I thought he was going to do something to me."

That confession, read from a statement in Northwestern police court, Tuesday, allegedly was the reason Henry (Hank) Kelly, 30, fatally shot Charles Weems, 20, former AFRO newsie on Dec. 2.

Kelly fled from the scene of the shooting, a lunchroom at Druid Hill Ave. and Biddle St., and after spending some time in Washington and Philadelphia, surrendered to local police on Jan. 8.

Cold-blooded Slaying, 3 Testify

Three buddies of Weems, who lived with his parents at 524 Dolphin St., witnessed the shooting, which they said was done without warning.

They were seated at the counter waiting to be served coffee when Kelly walked in, strode up to Weems and saying, "You can't get that coffee now," fired several shots, testimony revealed.

Mrs. John Weems, mother of the deceased, winced and groaned as assistant State's Attorney William J. O'Donnell read the autopsy report, which revealed that death

Frisking Bill Gets Judge's Approval

Magistrate Thomas Fitzpatrick of Northwestern declared Wednesday, that the "frisking bill," now pending in the Legislature, will "break up the gun and weapon toting in this neighborhood."

The so-called "Frisking Bill" would make the carrying of a deadly weapon a felony, and would enable officers to search persons on suspicion.

When he made the assertion, Magistrate Fitzpatrick was hearing testimony that a blackjack was found on the seat of a car in which four youths were driving through a neighborhood and tampering with the doors of other cars.

Sentenced to 30 days each, the youths were identified as James

Plea of Prosecutor for Defendant Leads to Her Being Freed

Prosecutor turned defender Wednesday, as an assistant State's Attorney, pleaded "not guilty" on behalf of a woman charged with stabbing her "future husband."

Alan H. Murrell, the prosecutor, had called the case of Miss Esther Brooks of the 1500 block McKean Ave., when he announced that his investigation of the case led him to believe that the woman acted in self defense.

She was charged with stabbing James Madden of the same block McKean Ave., who, according to Mr. Murrell, "intends to marry her."

Judge Robert France complied with the "not guilty" verdict.

An Example of Overcrowded Classroom at Morgan

Limited class room space is one of the problems at Morgan State College. This picture shows one of the freshman biology classes being held in a laboratory too small to accommodate it. The condition is typical. Dr. George Grant, college dean, says history and language classes are held in chemistry and physics laboratories.

Practice Your Whistles, Boys

We can hear the appreciative whistles already, in anticipation of seeing glamorous Courtnaye Olden, the former Courtnaye MacBeth of Baltimore, who will be among the attractive Branford models featured in the benefit festival which the AFRO will present on April 1 at the Coliseum.

School Board to Renew Request for Dunbar Hi

The Board of School Commissioners at the meeting on Thursday, voted to renew its request to the Park Board for use of the Druid Hill Park track for Dunbar High School.

George W. F. McMechen, a member of the board, told the group that it was necessary to renew the request because of the interest of the Park Board expressed in refusing use of the courts and track to pupils of the school.

President of the board, Rossel C. Thomsen, reminded the board that a former request for use by Dunbar pupils had been made by the board, but refused by the park commissioners.

He said, however, that in the light of recent legal rulings, such a request might not meet the same fate.

Walter T. Turner, teacher-in-charge of Veterans Trade School No. 456, was transferred to School No. 451 as a vocational teacher at a salary of $4,300 per annum.

Harold F. Folkes, vocational teacher at School No. 451, was temporarily assigned to the post vacated by Mr. Turner.

The resignation of Mrs. Cecilia D. Harris of the faculty of School No. 139 was accepted.

2 Men Divorce Wives Who Quit

Two complainants, both husbands who charged that their wives deserted them, won divorces, here this week.

Charzie Davis of 453 Orchard St. said that Mrs. Grace Davis of New York City left him without cause in 1947. They were married in 1937, his petition set forth.

Beaten, Wife Charges

The wife, however, denied that her leaving was her choice, but said that he had beaten her upon several occasions. She told the court that she wanted him to have the divorce, however.

(Also obtaining a divorce was Samuel R. Jackson, who testified that he returned home from work and found that Mrs. Mildred Jackson, now of 229 Arch St., had moved out of their home at 903 N. Dallas Street.

J. Howard Payne was attorney for Mr. Jackson.

Mob Witness Shows Lynch Law Need

Need for a Federal antilynch law will be brought home to Baltimoreans Sunday, Feb. 27, by Mrs. Amy Mallard, whose son was slain by a Georgia hooded mob.

Mrs. Mallard, currently touring the country, will speak at Sharp St. Methodist Church at an NAACP membership meeting at 3 p.m.

A Georgia jury on Jan. 11 in 20 minutes acquitted William Howell, white, whom Mrs. Mallard identified as one of the killers. Two of the jurors even stepped down to testify that they would not believe the widow of Robert Mallard under oath.

Public Demands Indictments

Mr. Mallard was slain on a Georgia highway on Nov. 20 when the car carrying him and his family from a school party, was halted by a mob of hooded men.

Public demands for justice resulted in the indictments of Howell and Roderick Clifton, a second defendant against whom charges were dropped.
