Breach of Contract Charge Denied by Dodger's Star

Says 'T' Shirt Manufacturer Wants Him to Pay for Merchandise He Couldn't Sell

CINCINNATI — Second Baseman Jackie Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said Thursday he is "not worried" about a suit for $100,000, filed against him in a Chicago court last week.

The National League's 1949 batting champion and current leader was cited in a "breach of contract" action, brought by Stanley Kuttner, a Chicago advertising agent. Kuttner claims Robinson violated a contract which gave him exclusive rights to the use of the player's name in connection with the sale and distribution of men's clothing.

According to the complaint, Jackie signed an agreement on Jan. 3, 1949, assuring Kuttner of his exclusive rights, but thereafter gave "certain other persons" the same rights.

Seeks Refund

In addition to the $100,000 sought in the action, Kuttner asks the court to require Robinson to pay him $1,416 which represents part of $1,500 advance royalty paid to Jackie in connection with the sale of the merchandise.

Robinson told the AFRO Thursday that he had entered into such an agreement with Kuttner in Chicago in 1948, "before I had employed an agent." He denied, however, that he was guilty of violating a contract.

"Kuttner approached me with a proposition which would give him exclusive rights to the use of my name on some 'T' shirts he planned to put on the market. My contract with him had only to do with these shirts, it did not involve any other kind of clothing, or apparel.

Endorsed Slacks

"Since that time I have permitted the use of my name in an endorsement of a brand of men's slacks, manufactured in Baltimore. In this transaction, I am paid for use of a slogan saying I always wear these slacks.'

"I have turned the matter over to my lawyer in New York, and its up to him to handle it from here on. He has told me not to be disturbed about it, and I'm not—not in the least."

Robinson told the AFRO further that the $1,416 sought by Kuttner apparently represents the difference between the $1,500 the Chicago agent paid him in advance and the amount he collected through sale of the shirts.

It would seem that Kuttner is implying he realized only $84 through sale of the product, and wants to be refunded by Robinson—LACY.

Ritz Off to Good Start, Toppers Down Finos In Softball Resume

Ritz A.C. pounded out an 11-2 victory over the Crusaders to open their sec ond round play in the Bureau of Recreation's East Baltimore League.

Ritz, who lost out in the first round due to suspension for the use of ineligible players, has come back strong and looks like the team to beat in the fast East Baltimore loop. The scheduled game between the Crusaders and Cavaliers was postponed.

The Toppers, with "Big Sid" on the mound, turned back the strong Finos, 5-3, in a keenly-played game Sunday at P.S. No. 122. The Mohawks had to extend themselves to triumph over Spartans A.C., by a score of 8-5 in a Druid Hill Bowl match.

The league standings now show the Athenians ahead with one victory and no defeats and four teams tied for second. It appears that this loop will have one of its toughest scrambles in years for the league championship.

The first round wound up in a three-way tie among the Toppers, Mohawks and Finos. The Model Motors Athenians will go against "Poppy" Brooks's Mohawks in the key game Sunday at 1 p.m. at P.S. No. 122.

Only one game was started in the Industrial and Trade School loop because of the wet grounds in Druid Hill Bowl. Morgan School of Watchmaking emerged the victor when Tailoring Institute walked off the field after two innings following an argument over illegal pitching. Morgan was ahead at the time

Domino Sugar Company, slated to work on Sundays recently, is scheduled to play Building Trades School Saturday at 6 p.m. at Druid Hill Park No. 1. The rejuvenated New York Technical will test the aspiring Crown Cork and Seal nine at Druid Hill Enclosure No. 1 at 1 p.m.

Ambassadors Score

Churchill Ambassadors took their first win of the second round in the Independent Club league over the fighting Douglass Royal Kings, 10-7. Churchill's game with Western Maryland Dairy A.C. last Saturday was rained out.

The Richmond Town Clippers Comrades game was postponed. Western Maryland Dairy A.C. will face the red-hot Cherry Hill Trotters at 6:30 p.m this Saturday. July 22, in the Druid Hill Enclosure.

Northwestern Police Boys Club, first-round champs in the Cross City Interdenominational Loop, notched their second win in the second round by blasting a 9-4 victory over the Cherry Hill Kings at Cherry Hill.

Red Dogs Retain Lead

The Jr. Red Dogs A.C. stayed at the top of the league and got their second-round record unblemished by beating the stubborn Cloverdale DiMaggios, 15-8, for their third straight. The Jr. Red Dogs can clinch the second-round title if they win from the Fairfield Apaches next Wednesday, July 26, at Fairfield.

The Jr. Finos continued to set the pace in the Mid-City Intermediate League by taking a forfeit game from the McCulloh Macs for their third straight win without a defeat. The Crisco Tigers, idle last week, are undefeated in two games. The first round winds up next week with the Gilmor Chorokees slated to face the Crisco Tigers at Druid Hill No. 1 on Monday and the Jr. Spartans on the same diamond on Wednesday.

Joe Perry Sets Pace in D. C. Open Golf Tourney

Favored to Take Crown After Sub-Par Round

Posts Low Medal, 70, Two Under, With Deadly Putting Game; Finals at Langston Sunday

WASHINGTON

Precision putting by Joe Perry, who fired two under par and posted a low score of 70 over 18 holes, took down qualifying honors in the 10th annual District Recreation Department Open golf championships this week on Langston course.

The medium-built Perry, a Government employee, stroking a 34 on the out nine and 36 coming in, now looms as favorite over a great field in the championship flight. The semi-finals will be played tomorrow (Saturday) beginning at 3 p.m.

The finals in all flights will get underway promptly Sunday, July 23 at 2 p.m.

Record Turnout

More than 70 contestants from the District, nearby Maryland and as far as Norfolk, Va., the largest in the annual tourney, have qualified and are geared for the show-down over the week end.

Although Bill Mays, defending champion did not enter the meet this year, Perry will face several potential threats in the champion ship flight.

There will be District Police Officer Everett Payne, and Bill Brown, the latter winner of the 1948 tourney. Both qualified with total scores of 74 over 18 holes for the runner-up spot.

Another serious contender is Nat Wilkins, 17-year-old Armstrong athlete and District 1950 Junior champion. Wilkins, also the city and South Atlantic Conference high school king, posted a 76 to deadlock the veteran Claude Bliss for third place in the championship flight.

Four Pros Out

In order for pros to crash the championship flight, the only flight which they are eligible to enter, their score must be under 80.

As the result, Edward Gaines, veteran player from Norfolk, Va., barely made the select circle, posting 80 on the nose, stroking 38 out and 42 in.

Construction Starts on New $700,000 Gym at Morgan

The Edward P. Hurt Gymnasium at Morgan State College, which will cost $700,000, is on its way. Construction work on the project began this week. Photo shows men working on the foundation. When completed, the gym will rate among the best in the country.

D.C. Cubs Suffer First Loss

The D.C. Cubs outhit the Spottsylvania (Va.) Yellow Jackets, but were outswerved, 2-1, Sunday, on the winners' ground for their setback in six games this season.

The Cubs, emerging on the short end of a hurling duel between Marion Shields and Billy Williams, the Yellow Jackets' hurler, garnered four hits as their opponents' three.

The Jackets bunched their hits while the Cubs held to single safeties in an inning, failed their lone marker off John Small's round tripper in the seventh inning. It was the first setback for the Cubs under the new manager, L. O. Sawyer.

The Cubs will meet the Carolina Cubs in Snells, Va., Sunday, July 23, at 3 p.m. The starting lineup will include Milton R. Coles, 3b; James B. Ratcliff, rf; Ferdinand Powell, lb; John Small, ss; Joe Lawson, 2b; Joe Wright, cf; Melvin White, lf; John Roane, c; and Pete Evans, p.
