Man Flees After Attack at Market

"I was spun around, struck four or five times and beaten to the ground," testified James H. Jones of the 2400 block Westwood Ave. in Western Police Court, Wednesday.

Jones said he was attacked from the rear and without provocation while making a purchase at the Lexington Market, Saturday. When asked why a person would beat him without reason, he answered, "That's what I want to know."

Saturday, Jones didn't stick around long enough to find out why he was beaten. He said he got up off the ground and fled, leaving merchandise and change at the stall.

A fruit merchant whom Jones accused was dismissed by Magistrate Julius A. Romano. Testimony revealed that the merchant was arresting Jones.

GI on Porch Fined $1, Made Woman Scream

A 22-year-old soldier who was chased off a side porch of a house in the 1600 Park Ave., by a screaming woman, was given a $1 suspended fine in Northwestern Police court, Thursday.

He was Walter Thompkins, 22, of the 1000 block Arlington Ave., who told Magistrate Thomas J. Fitzpatrick that he had been drinking and did not know how he happened to be on the porch.

Officer Walter Rose testified that he arrested Thompkins who was staggering down the street after hearing the screams of the woman who lived in the house.

Intermarriage, With Indian, Allowed in 'Broken Arrow'

NEW YORK — Further indication that Hollywood is trying to give a fuller, more truthful picture of all aspects of American life is evidenced in the Twentieth Century Fox production, "Broken Arrow," now playing at the Roxy Theatre here.

This studio, which produced "Home of the Brave" and "Pinky," both films giving fair treatment of the colored race, this time extends the fair play idea to the Indian theme.

"Broken Arrow," which stars Jimmy Stewart as Tom Jeffords, a frontiersman, tells how peace between the white man and the Indian came to Arizona, around the period of 1870.

Especially sympathetic is the unusual treatment given the Indians, played by 375 full-blooded Anachris — men, women and children — from the White River Reservation.

Although depicted in history texts as the most warlike of all Indian tribes, in this film, they are shown to be men like all others, full of the same emotions which control their fellow men.

"Broken Arrow" also unfolds a most unusual love story, that of the white man Tom Jeffords for the beautiful Apache maiden, Sonseahray. Unlike other studios, Twentieth Century Fox lets the hero marry the girl.

Also unusual is the treatment of Cochise, the Apache chief, a man of vision who seeks Jeffords halfway to see that peace come to Arizona.

When Jeffords' beautiful wife is killed by a group of ambushers, whites it is Cochise who prevents his wife from killing the last of the white marauders left alive by the Indians.

Also given a prominent part in Broken Arrow is Gen. Oliver O. Howard, the "Christian General," who was sent to Arizona by President Grant to make peace with the Indians.

Later, General Howard was to go down in history as a result of his work with the freedmen of the South, work which led to his founding of America's largest colored university, Howard University in Washington.

A 58-year-old New York seaman fell 26 feet from a ladder, Thursay morning, as he was working aboard a ship docked at the Pratt St. pier.

Carried to Marine Hospital, where he remained for observation, was the seaman, Gladstone Roper of 243 W. 63rd St. in New York. It was said that his fall was broken when he struck a "camel" or water-block that was tied to the pier.

Moments Musical

WASHINGTON
By VIRGINIA WILLIAMS

The Polish Embassy was again the scene of a brilliant reception last Friday evening when the Ambassador and Mme. Winiewicz received in honor of the Polish national holiday.

Enchanting music was heard by an accordionist and a trio. Among the invited guests were Misses Louise Burge, Frankye Dion, Camille Nickerson and Mrs. Norma Bachus, musicians and devotees of the art in our community.

—Watergate Crowd Sparse

The Watergate officials could boast of a much larger crowd last Friday evening when an appreciative audience gathered for an Italian program sponsored by the Italian government in honor of the Semipentennial.

The National Symphony Orchestra was under the skillful direction of Guisepp Antonicelli whose verve and understanding lead the orchestra. The soloists were pleasing. Outstanding among them was the work of the baritone Cesare Bardelli, whose singing should have been observed by the many, many students of voice from the studios throughout the city.
