War Has Not Caused Rise in Hiring

most war plants during World War II would not speculate as to job opportunities which might result from the Korean crisis.

In most plants, the numbers employed remained the same.

Those officials who acknowledged increases in jobs and job opportunities, hastened to add that the international situation is not responsible.

Need Time to Retool

In event of all-out war, J. Alvin Jones of the Baltimore employment office said, it would take private industry at least six months to retool and reconvert their plants.

Federal war jobs could be made available in a shorter period, Mr. Jones added.

The AFRO learned that production at the U. S. Army Signal Depot at Middle River has increased. Colored workers, especially veterans with World War II experience in radio and radio, are being hired each week.

A personnel officer at the depot, however, would not comment upon the job situation there.

Urban League Sees No Change

Cecil Scott, acting executive secretary of the Urban League, said his office has noted no change in the employment picture.

A representative of Maryland Dry Dock said, "There are no ships in our yard," adding that many of the company's employees have been laid off.

Rat Case Cleric Fined, Censured

A Baptist clergyman was on the receiving end of a sermon delivered by Magistrate Harry S. Kruger in Housing Court, Thursday.

The Rev. Roosevelt Walton, the defendant, was fined $25 and costs for failure to make repairs in five apartments, attached to his Pennsylvania Ave. church, where two children were bitten by rats in May.

Scored by Magistrate

As he leived the fine upon the preacher, Magistrate Kruger said:

"You minister to the souls of people and prepare them for the hereafter. How about when they're here? Why couldn't you have taken care of those poor children?"

Ignored Health Order

The impromptu sermon followed the testimony of a Health Department inspector who said 21 repairs were needed at the clergyman's property at St. Marks St. and Pennsylvania Ave. to bring the apartments up to minimum health requirements.

He said the preacher failed to comply with an order issued following the rat report.

The Rev. Mr. Walton told the court he bought the property about a year ago for $12,000, paid $1000 down, and was making weekly payments of $40 on it.

Earns $450 Monthly

His income, he said, was $450 a month, including $60 a week received as a laborer.

In his defense, the minister said he had let a $1400 contract for the work ordered by the Health Department inspector.

Activities at Camp McCard End Tuesday; 70 Girls Attend

The last day for the 70 girls who have enjoyed the activities of Camp Grace McCard, the YWCA camp of Baltimore, for the past six weeks, is Tuesday.

The campers were from Baltimore, Philadelphia, North Carolina and Maryland counties.

An interracial staff instructed the girls in arts and crafts, nature study, dramatics, music, waterfront activities and open discussions.

Campers Made Rules

Grace McCard Community, was the name given the camp this year by the campers, who with their counselors, made the rules and regulations which governed their activities.

Miss Nellie Brown, camp director, had this to say about the girls, "a very enthusiastic group, full of life, and for the first time exhibited a big sister-little sister relationship between themselves and counselors."

This is Miss Brown's third year as director.

Among the sponsors this year, who helped finance camperships and make donations were:

Young Matrons Culture Club; Carrollton Ave. Neighborhood Club; 1800 and 1900 blocks of Druid Hill Ave.; Cherimoya, Jack and Jill Club; the PTA's of Schools, 103, 106 and Francis M. Wood.

Also among the sponsors were Mrs. Grace Jones, the WEDns Club, Shiloh Benefit Club and Cloverdale Neighborhood Club.

Given to Y in 1947

Camp McCard, formerly Camp Bay Breeze, was given to the YWCA in 1947 by Mrs. Imes who was director of the privately owned camp.

A special program has been planned for Sunday, the last visiting day at the camp.

Other staff members besides Miss Brown are: Mrs. Vera Cole, program director, Miss Eugene Boney, assistant; Mrs. Jeanne Locks, music; Miss Vera Shanks, arts and crafts; Miss Aileen Nichols, waterfront; and Miss Princess A. Kelsic, nature study.

NAACP Asked to Oust 'Reds' would co-operate fully with its policies and programs.

"Our members felt, and still feel, that certain actions of your branch indicate that its policies coincide in certain important respects with the Communist Party line, when that line differs from the policy of our national board.

"Until such a stand by your branch is repudiated, there can be no basis for negotiation, since our members will not join a group which it feels is discreditable."

Sets Up Conditions

The letter then went on to give two actions, which it insisted upon having the old group perform before it would discuss closer co-operation.

One was that the branch endorse the national convention's resolution concerning infiltration and control of NAACP branches by Communist or fellow travelers.

The other was that it declare support of the national organization's position excluding Communist Party and its front organizations from the Civil Rights Mobilization.

In addition to Mr. Toney, signing the letter include Benjamin F. McLaurin, vice-chairman; Carol M. Miller, secretary; Malva M. Stuart, treasurer; and Mrs. Ida M. Klein, chairman of the steering committee.

Thought Bills Good, Bogus $ Suspect Says

mont Ave., is under $10,000 bail pending a hearing in Federal Court on bogus money charges.

He testified that Brown had given him ten $10-dollar bills to get changed so that he (Brown) could pay off some five and ten-cent number hits. Pettie said that he had agreed to do this, with the understanding that Brown would lend him $20.

The bills were changed in different places, mostly in bars, Pettie testified, but in a Fulton Ave. tavern the bartender refused to accept one of the bills, stating that it was counterfeit.

Proving His Undoing

Unable to believe this, Pettie said, he went across the street to a restaurant and ordered a cup of coffee, paying for it with the same bill, in an effort to prove it was a good one.

When Pettie came out of the eatery, two plainclothes officers from the Northwestern District arrested him and a friend he had met in one of the bars.

George C. Drescher, agent in charge of the Baltimore Secret Service office, said that investigation revealed that the friend was not involved and was only "drinking acquaintance" of Pettie's.

Admits Previous Activities

Pettie testified that on another occasion, two months ago, at Brown's request, he had gotten change for some $10-bills.

He said that he often helped Brown on his numbers route and was paid three or four dollars. Pettie, a disabled veteran, is employed as a bootblack in a downtown barber shop.

Brown surrendered to T-Men, approximately a week after Pettie's arrest and was held under $15,000 bail pending the hearing. U. S. Commissioner Volkart continued the bail, Wednesday, and ordered Brown held for Federal Court.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Norman Ramsey was the prosecuting attorney and Leonard Goodman represented Brown. The case, scheduled for last Friday, was postponed until Wednesday, so Mr. Brown could employ a lawyer.

Two Others Held

Friday in Washington, a 41-year-man described as a "passer" of the bogus bills, will be given a hearing before the U. S. Commissioner there.

He is Velaris Edgar Leonard of 1228 T St. N.W., well known figure in New York City and on Baltimore's Pennsylvania Ave. He was arrested in Washington and is under $5,00 bail.

The existence of a possible counterfeit ring in Baltimore first came to the public eye when the public when local detectives arrested and held Julia in a Madison Ave. night club.

She was Willie Diggs, alias Willie Davis, 27, of the 2200 block Pennsylvania St., a self-styled numbers writer currently at liberty under $12,000 bail pending a hearing in Federal Court.
