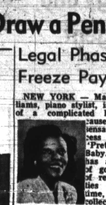
'Pretty Eyed Baby' Earns Pot of Gold but 'Ma' Mary Lou Can't Draw a Penny



Mary Lou Williams, photo above, is the center of a complicated legal tangle caused by the sensational success of her song "Pretty Eyed Baby." Mary Lou has a hefty pot of gold awaiting her if record royalties from the tune, but can't collect a penny from it until the legal snarl is unravelled.

The weird story of "Pretty Eyed Baby" goes back to 1940 when she wrote the tune. She titled it "Satchel Mouth Baby" and then practically forgot about it.

Tune 10 Years Old

For the past 10 years the tune has been sung by vocalists and quartets. But the performance fees received by Miss Williams from ASCAP (American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers), she reports were hardly enough to make her take her own tune seriously. "I was just too busy to think it would ever become a hit," Mary Lou says.

Musical complications started to set in in 1946 when Bill Johnson formed a small combination and recorded Mary Lou's tune using the new title, "Pretty Eyed Baby."

The change was made with her approval. "After all, the words 'Pretty Eyed Baby' were lifted bodily from the lyrics I wrote," Mary Lou explains.

Later Mary Lou signed an agreement to split royalties from the tune with Johnson. For dreaming up the new title and adding eight bars of new lyrics he was given credit as co-author.

Last month, the trombonist, Snub Mosely filed a suit for $100,000 damages against Miss Williams, Johnson and Leeds Music Co., charging unlawful use of his title "Pretty Eyed Baby." Mary Lou was shocked to say the least.

Cash Rolling In

To date Miss Williams contends never to have received an accounting on sales and royalties due her. Leeds, she says, has informed her that it is withholding all royalty payments pending settlement of Mosely's suit.

While sales of "Pretty Eyed Baby" continue to roll, its original composer, Mary Lou, is frustrated to see royalties piling up which she is unable, for the present, at least to collect.

Legal Phases Freeze Pay-Off

RECORDATA

By J. H. RANDALL For ANP

Johnny Hodges, the newest rave in hot music since vacating the No. 1 chair in the Duke Ellington reed section, has had the name of one of his recent tuneful efforts, "Rabbit Blues," changed to "You Blew the Flame Out of My Heart" (Mercury).

Sy Oliver and his crew have an excellent version of "Castle Rock" paired with "But She's My Buddy's Chick" (Decca).

Pick up on Louis Armstrong making use of the Sy Oliver ork, for his latest "welcome, "I Get Ideas" and "A Kiss to Build a Dream On" (Decca). Not to be left out is Nellie (Fine Brown Frame) Lutcher, doing a rather tasteful version of the oldie, "The Song Is Ended." Flipswing is her hot rhythm interpretation of Dvorak's "Humoresque" (Capital).

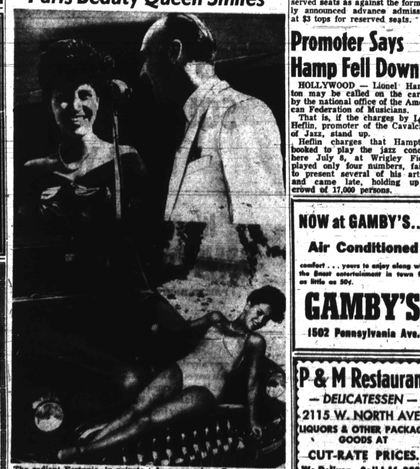
The Red Caps Bounce

Steve Gibson and his Original Red Caps bounce gaily through an item entitled "Would I Mind" and flip to a bistro-type blues, "When You Come Back to Me" (Victor).

The latest from Billie Eckstine are "Enchanted Land," a tasteful and appealing adaptation of Rimsky-Korsakov's haunting "Song of India," and "I've Got My Mind on You." the latter with the Quartelettes assisting. Both are the type of things which Billy does so well (MGM).

Velma Middleton, on her own label, gets off with some real old-fashioned blues on "Big Mama's Back in Town," backed with "Good Bye, Good Luck, Good Riddance." The combo assisting her includes Earl Hines, Cozy Cole, Arvel Shaw, and Tiny Webb, all of whom figure in the Louis Armstrong's All Stars (Middletone).

Paris Beauty Queen Smiles



The radiant Fortunia, in private life, Mrs. Paul Benazet, shows her joy at being named Miss Automobile of 1951 in Paris. There were 10 other beauty contestants (till white). The daughter of a Haitian father and a Polish mother, Fortunia spent four years in a German concentration camp, and at the end of the war returned to Paris to star at the Folies-Bergere as a dancer. Exactly one month to the day before she was named Miss Automobile, Fortunia gave birth to a son, her first child.

New Musical Combine Opens at 511

Clarence (Mop) Dudley, Gotham recording star, his trumpet and House Rockers are featured nightly at Club 511, down Fremont Ave. way. Others in the musical combo are Danny Webster, bass; Bobby Henry, drums; Sonny Donaldson, piano, and Ziggy Vines, formerly with Woody Herman, tenor sax. The group moves in as part of the club's new policy.

'David, Bathsheba' Has Gala Premiere

NEW YORK (ANP)—The public premier of Darryl F. Zanuck's "David and Bathsheba" at the Rivoli Theatre here Tuesday evening, opened in splendor before a brilliant mixed audience.

The Twentieth Century-Fox production reproduced a civilization of 3,000 years ago. Filmed in Technicolor the picture was five years in the making.

A huge group of colored and Egyptian extras appeared in the film which stars Gregory Peck as David and Susan Hayward as Bathsheba.

Among the array of luminaries gracing the Broadway premiere noted in the television and lobby broadcast group of artists were:

Ethel Waters, Ray Robinson, Jersey Joe Walcott, Pharida Shearn, Sidney Poitier, Mrs Eleanor Roosevelt, Margaret Truman, and the brilliant Japanese actress and recent star of "East is West," Shirley Yamagachi, and the entire staff of the Israel diplomatic choir including Aubrey Eban, Israel Ambassador.

Handyman, 80, a Musical Genius

PADUCAH, Ky. (ANP)—Nathan Bennett, an odd-jobs man and former garbage collector, has found that life really begins with middle age.

Bennett, known as Naith to friends, is something of a musical genius. While he has had no formal training in music, he has demonstrated an ability to compose and teach music.

According to Naith, he is "sight on 88" and gives lessons on piano, violin, and horn, all free of charge. In addition, he organized a children's band and coached it. Some of his students have gone on to well-paying musical positions in other cities.

His musical talents came to light years ago when he was accorted outside of a music studio. It was noted that he was listening intently to students practicing their exercises.

When asked why he was standing there, he produced several cards on which were his original musical exercises. Most of them were in minor keys and all displayed through bass markings familiar to students of musical theory.

Some of the cards were captioned, "Modulations by means of augmented sixths," "Introducing the chord of the 9th," and "Introducing the German 6 chord and French 6 chord."

Naith explained that he became interested in the formation of chords when he was well past middle age. He secured a book on musical harmony and studied by lamplight. That was furing the time he spent a hard day at collecting garbage.

Now that the city has farmed out the contract for trash and garbage to an out-of-town firm, and independents like Naith have been forced out of business, he finds more time to devote to his two loves, his wife and his music.

Prices to 'Rain' Now $1.50 Tops

Taking into consideration a price scale that will reach the largest number of patrons the Howard Theatre has announced a reduction in admissions for "Rain," the celebrated Somerset Maugham stage hit, starring Nina Mae McKinney and opening Friday for one week.

These new prices, with tax included, are $1.50 for any orchestra seat nights or matinee, and $1 for any balcony seat nights or matinees. Curtain time every night is at 8:40, with matinees on Saturday and Sunday only at 2:40.

New admissions allow no reserved seats as against the formerly announced advance admission at $3 tops for reserved seats.

Promoter Says Hamp Fell Down

HOLLYWOOD — Lionel Hampton may be called on the carpet by the national office of the American Federation of Musicians.

That is, if the charges by Leon Heflin, promoter of the Cavalcade of Jazz, stand up.

Heflin charges that Hampton, booked to play the jazz concert here July 8, at Wrigley Field played only four numbers, failed to present several of his artists and came late, holding up a crowd of 17,000 persons.

On the AVENUE By E. B. REA

WHEREVER CROWDS gather On the Avenue, you'll find two kinds of discussions—sensible and non-sensible. But, if one pays strict attention, there's always food for thought.

FOR INSTANCE, the topic on Tuesday night centered around previous raids during the weekend.

IN ONE PARTICULAR debate, combined conclusions reached by the participants amounted to this:

IT'S TIME SOMEONE began investigating the investigators as to why the all-out drive is directed exclusively towards ONLY COLORED PERSONS in local police circles?

THAT, IF THE investigators are as intensely interested in crime and grafts as they make it appear, why not try and find out why and who have permitted it to exist so openly, so long?

WHY NOT PUT some of the accused numbers writers, bookloggers, and pliers of other racketeering trades through the third-degree (in open court), and see if it can be drawn from them—truthfully—whether or not some of them have been paying-off to someone to carry on their illegal trades and traffic?

THE CONSENSUS of opinion was that:

GAMBLING (a natual instinct of all races), and numbers writing (a sort of avocation), are not nearly as dangerous as the murderous switch-blade toters, gun-packers and yokers, who prey upon innocent citizens of both races, with little effort being expended to eradicate them.

THAT, THE INVESTIGATING spotlight (so centered), is discrediting the entire minority group, making its members scapegoats and designating a separate place for them in Baltimore's way of life.

DAFFYNITIONS of current expressions:

TEEN-AGERS' PASSWORD—Be happy, go depressed.

UNLUCKY NUMBERS—Twelve in a jury box and one on a bench.

ADMISSIBLE EVIDENCE—What's found on a raiding trip after a "fingers" tip.

DATE BAIT — A '51 convertible with "extras" accessories to match.

GO-FOR-BROKE — Dropping that last buck in a sure-thing in the third.

EASING-THE-SQUEEZE — A married man breaking off with a gold-digging chick when she becomes for-minded.

SAO — (State's Attorney's office) — Where they get blood out of the turnip.

NOW FOR SOME nicer things—J. Francis Buchanan, now apartmentizing at 1657 W. North Avenue, had as his Sunday guests, his niece, Earline Diggs, and Thomas Chapman of Philadelphia.

R. B. (Dick) ARCHER of Norfolk was in town this week attending the funeral of Mrs. Maggie Green, aunt of William H. Brooks, 1801 Pennsylvania Ave., who died Aug. 17. Mr. Green, a Norfolkian, had been in the city only a week before her death.

GEORGE D. TYLER

March 18, 1901

August 23, 1951

The pen of George D. Tyler, originator of the entertainment column, Gateway to Gayway, "having writ, moves on."

He wrote some gems; he wrote some trash. He wrote about the great and the small, yet, he wrote himself into the hearts of all.

He like millions of others who passed through the Gateway to the Gayway, now joins that great caravan of souls which has lived and enjoyed the Gayway.

So long, George D. and 30.

Modern Jazz Coming to Carr's Beach

George D. Tyler, AFRO Writer, Dies Suddenly

Funeral Services to Be Held Sunday; Burial Will Take Place at Towson

By E. B. REA

Funeral services for the late George D. Tyler, AFRO night club columnist and former employee in the Recorder of Deeds Office, Washington, will be held Sunday at Enon Baptist Church, Edmondson Ave. and Schroeder St., at 1:30 p.m. with the Rev. Arthur J. Payne, pastor, officiating.

Interment will follow in Pleasant Grove Cemetery, Towson, Md. Kelson's Funeral Parlor has charge of arrangements.

The remains will lie in state at his home, 412 N. Wolfe St., until funeral time Sunday.

Mr. Tyler died Thursday afternoon, August 23, at 1:15 at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Suffered Second Stroke

Death was attributed to a cerebral hemmorrhage, following a stroke early Wednesday morning between three and four o'clock at his home.

By the time an ambulance arrived he had lapsed into a coma and never regained consciousness.

He had not been ill up to the time of the fatal attack which was his second, having made his night club round on Tuesday. He gave up his duties in the Recorder of Deeds Office shortly after suffering temporary paralysis in 1948.

Was AFRO Columnist

He had long been identified in night club and entertainment circles and as a columnist. For many years he conducted a column, "Gateway to the Gayway" for the AFRO, and is credited with having booking agent, promoter of talent programs in local clubs, a master of ceremonies, and was in the midst of a campaign to help promote the Provident Hospital Fund drive.

GEORGE D. TYLER

Native of Towson

Born in Towson, March 18, 1901, he was the son of the late Daniel and Mrs. Inetta Tyler, he had spent the major part of his life in Baltimore.

He was first married to the former Lucille Murray, of Chicago. They were divorced in 1942 after a separation of 13 years. He then married his present wife, the former Lucile Oglesby, of New York City.

Two children survive from the first union.

The Survivors

In addition to his wife, he is survived by three sisters: Mrs. Annie Mae Johnson, 627 N. Paca St., Baltimore; Mrs. Rebecca Atwood, Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. Isabella Finley, Rochester, N. Y.; two daughters: Mrs. Henrietta Farmer, 22, and Miss Rebecca Tyler, 20, both of Cleveland, Ohio, and a grand-daughter, Tina, age four.

Legion Post Sued for Balance on Television

A suit charging that Federal Post No. 19 of the American Legion owes a downtown store $458 on a $509 television set was transferred, this week, from People's Court to City Court.

The suit was filed by the management of the store which said that the set was purchased by the Post, located in the 1500 block Madison Ave., on April 28, 1949.

The litigation was transferred to the City Court at the request of Emory Cole, counsel for the Legion Post.

The Invisible Auto Or: the Case of the Powerful Pint

Whiskey, one pint of it, not an automobile is what knocked 66-year-old Thomas Johnson of Ferndale, Md. down in the street.

Johnson, found on Bond St. by a policeman, was arrested for being drunk on a public street. At his trial in Northeastern police court, the Ferndale man stated that he had been hit by a car while walking and knocked to the ground.

No One Saw Car

The arresting officer disagreed with him. He told Magistrate Samuel Gaboff that 50 people were around when Johnson keeled over and none of them had seen the car.

Further questioning by the magistrate revealed that the defendant had been drinking. "Two half pints yesterday, Your Honor," said Johnson.

"That's what hit you," the magistrate concluded and fined Johnson $10 and costs. Johnson limped back to a cell. He said he couldn't walk on one leg because the car nobody saw had hit him there.
