Man Faces Trial in 19-Year-Old Murder

James Hemphill, 47, formerly of 1310 block of First St. S.E., was brought back to the District from Hackensack, N.J., last week and to face trial for the murder of his wife in March, 1932.

Hemphill had been living in New Jersey since 1933 under the name of Ernest Johnson.

Trapped by Fingerprints

According to Detective Robert G. Kirby of Homicide, Hemphill had been arrested by New Jersey police several times and booked on disorderly conduct charges. A fingerprint check revealed his identity.

After first denying he was Hemphill, he is said to have broken down and confessed, indicating a belief that he had killed his sister-in-law as well.

His wife, Mrs. Maggie Hemphill, was fatally shot during an argument over her associations with other men, on March 19, 1932. A grand jury had indicted Hemphill in absentia for first-degree murder.

Warned Her About Other Men

Hemphill said that after warning his wife about her suspected misconduct, he went to the home of his sister-in-law at 1306 First St. S.E., where he found Mrs. Hemphill with another man.

The man, Mr. Jones, began beating Hemphill, who ran and then the ensuing argument with his wife took place.

Says Bullet Hit' Stepson

According to Detective Kirby, Hemphill shot his wife with a revolver he had brought from his home. A stray bullet is said to have hit James Henry Johnson, 13, Hemphill's stepson.

Police are now trying for Johnson as a material witness.

Hemphill was turned over to the custody of the U.S. Marshall's office to await trial.

Says Other Woman Came Into Home, Lured Husband Away

WASHINGTON

Mrs. Helen Jones, 1805 Irvine St., S.E., who in 1950 obtained a rare limited divorce from James J. Jones on the basis of adultery in a futile effort to salvage her marriage, last week filed suit for a full decree and named the same correspondent, Emma Hughes, against whom she asked the District Court to award her $30,000 damages for alienation of affections and criminal conversation.

The address of both Mr. Jones and Miss Hughes was given as 500 U St., N.W.

The Jones were married here in 1932, and she obtained her partial decree in April, 1950, based according to court records, upon evidence obtained in a raid staged by Mrs. Jones and private detectives in a room in the Cadillac Hotel, 1500 Vermont Ave., N.W.

Had Charges Augmented

In her two new actions, one for an absolute divorce and the other, in two counts, for alienation of affections, Mrs. Jones adds to the details contained in the first.

She declares that Miss Hughes began coming to her home upon the pretext that she and Mr. Jones belonged to the same pyramid club. It is also alleged that Miss Hughes caused expensive gifts to be presented to Mr. Jones, prepared meals for him in the married couple's home, and otherwise entertained him.

"Associations Continue"

This was all done, says Mrs. Jones through her attorney, John J. O'Brien, to perfect her design and scheme to alienate the affections of her husband.

Besides the Cadillac Hotel incident, between March 1, 1949, and up to the present, the defendants are said to have misconducted themselves at 1512 S St., N.W., where Miss Hughes formerly lived; in the 1100 block of R St., N.W., and at U Street address.

Mrs. Jones continues that prior to the limited divorce decree she begged and pleaded with Miss Hughes to refrain from breaking up her home. Despite her entreaties and the subsequent partial divorce, the wife asserts that the couple have continued their associations.

Court Ruse Used to Abduct Boy, 7

WASHINGTON

Relatives of James Leon Woods, 7, have not seen nor heard from the youngster since a woman described herself as Mrs. Brown of the Women's Bureau took him away on Aug. 11.

The mother, Mrs. Dorothy Cole, 3704 Vermont Ave., N.W., says that this woman came to her home on that date and stated that James had been involved in breaking into an automobile and stealing a flashlight. The woman told the mother that she was taking him to the Women's Bureau for questioning.

Took Child Away

Mrs. Cole said the woman took the child away and he has not been seen since. She later checked with the Women's Bureau and found out that there is a Mrs. Brown there, but not the individual who came to her home.

When James left home, according to Mrs. Cole, he was wearing a pair of brown trunks, no shirt and tennis shoes. He has a scar on the back of his head.

The Mrs. Brown who took him away was wearing a blue and white pinafore. She has mixed gray hair and weighed about 140 pounds.

Mrs. Cole has asked the Missing Persons' Bureau of the Police Department to help in locating her son.

To Examine Pupils for Drug Addiction

WASHINGTON

A proposal to examine junior and senior high school students for symptoms of drug addition was definitely rejected by District School Superintendent, Dr. Hobart Corning, on Thursday.

According to Dr. Corning, he had been able to find very little enthusiasm for the suggested program, and several school officers expressed the opinion that more harm than good would result from whole-sale examinations.

Pyramiding Feared

The proposal was made by B. W. Martin, supervisor for the Washington-Baltimore area for the Bureau of Narcotics, in a letter, which said in part:

"We believe we might uncover as many as 10 cases (by examinations) which, if allowed to continue, would permit each addict to probably make others; every two addicts have every four addicts to infinity. Thus, if we can arrest one addict we may be able to stop a pyramiding of addicts."

Proposes Gallinger Cure

Martin also requested that any discovered addicts be committed to Gallinger hospital for cure through proper arrangements with the District Commissioners.

In his reply to Martin, Dr. Corning said he planned to tell him of plans made before the letter was received, concerning the narcotics problem.

All school officers will meet on Sept. 10, he said, to hear police and health officials and representatives of the Bureau of Narcotics describe the symptoms of addiction.

In addition, a manual prepared by the health department will be distributed to all teachers to help them recognize the signs.

To be Sent to School Doctors

Suspicious cases, said Dr. Corning, would be sent to the school physicians, who would recommend further steps if necessary.

Dr. Corning referred to the District's exceptional record in keeping down drug addiction among school children, although he admitted Eastern (white) High School was an exception.

Two teen-age boys, one a junior at Eastern and the other a former student who left school last year without being graduated, were arrested last month as heroin addicts.

16 in 12 months

At about the same time, as Juvenile Judge Edith Cockrill disclosed that 16 teen-age addicts had come before her court in the 12-month period just passed.

All this came shortly after Commissioner F. Joseph Donohue and Police Superintendent Barrett had proclaimed the District to be "clean" in the matter of narcotics, and insisted there had been no arrests of school children as addicts.

Technically, this was true, Judge Cockrill explained; the children had not been arrested as addicts, their addiction was discovered after their arrests on other charges.

Coroner Clears Suspect in Fatal Brick Attack

WASHINGTON

Fred Simpson Jr., 31, of 1014 New Jersey Ave., on Wednesday was cleared by a coroner's jury in the brick slaying of Charles Glenn, 33, 2227 12th St. N.W. during a dice game argument.

Glenn was fatally injured on Saturday in Temperance Pl. N.W., after allegedly drawing a knife on Simpson and Henry Robinson with whom the argument began over a $2 bet.

50-Year-Old Hospital Tradition Broken

Health Inspector, Ambulance Driver Also Set Precedents

NEWARK

Integration in the Newark Health Department took a forward step recently when three new employees assumed their duties.

A 50-year-old lily-white staff employment tradition at City Hospital was broken when Dr. Marie Metoyer of Jersey City began an year's internship at the Newark center.

She received her M.D. degree last June from Cornell University and was recommended for the Newark post by the dean of Cornell's Medical College.

Dr. Metoyer was appointed to the hospital staff last March by Stephen J. Moran, director of public affairs.

Ambulance Driver

Another precedent set at the hospital was the employment of Ferdinand Jones as an ambulance driver, a job filled heretofore by white men.

Jones lives at 408-4 Oran Square, Westbourne Park. He was recommed to the employees' staff by James Farmer, superintendent of the hospital.

Health Inspector

Tradition went by the board again with the appointment by Director Moran of Clarence Kay, 160 Pennsylvania Ave., Newark, as a health inspector assigned to the Department.

Mr. Kay, a World War II veteran, passed the State Health Department examinations and received one of the highest marks in the Civil Service tests for the post.

Took Specialized Course

A graduate of East Side High School, he completed a specialized training course in investigational and public health fields.

Mr. Kay is active in political and social circles. He is treasurer of the Greater Newark Citizens Committee headed by Silas L. Hogan, executive clerk to Director Moran.

The Sanitary Division of the Health Department is currently engaged in a slum clearance program.

Urged to Mail Ballots on Amos 'n' Andy Show

"Because of the great difference of opinion regarding the Amos 'n' Andy television show, the AFRO has printed elsewhere on this page a ballot which it asks its readers to fill out and mail at once.

The widespread comment over the television program has stirred the entire television industry. Newspapers, trade magazines, and other publications have devoted much space to the controversy.

The NAACP is waging a campaign against the show, and Walter White, NAACP secretary, sent a telegram to the Blatz Brewing Co., makers of his organization, branding the program "a gross libel on the colored American." He asked the company to withdraw its sponsorship.

Condemn Show

At the recent 42nd annual NAACP Convention in Atlanta, Ga., 2781 delegates unanimously adopted a resolution condemning the show. Heads of approximately 100 national organizations have been informed of the NAACP's fight against the Amos 'n' Andy program.

It has also been proposed that scripts of future shows be written so as to eliminate the present uniform presentation of colored people in so unfavorable a fashion.

The Amos 'n' Andy show has been proclaimed by many to be nothing more than a modernization of the old time minstrels, with emphasis on low, slapstick comedy.

Instead of doing a needed job of depicting racial similarity on the program, colored people are pictured as an immoral, semi - literate, lazy, stupid, scheming, and dishonest race.

In a similar situation, strong worded protests of soldiers overseas, recently resulted in the complete banning of the "Beulah" show from the Armed Forces Network. The GI's decried misleading, false, racial impressions inspired by the program.

Ballots should be filled out immediately, and mailed to:

Herion Peddler Gets Four Years

Labeling the man part of a "cabal, cold and unmoral group," Judge Joseph Sherbow, Thursday, slapped a four-year-penitentiary term upon a convicted narcotics peddler.

Sgt. Joseph Carroll testified that the man, Charles R. Jackson, 31, was arrested at a house in the 1500 block Alpine Ave. where five other peddlers have been seized within the last several months.

When arrested, Jackson had 12 capsules of heroin in his shirt pocket, the officer revealed.

He added that Jackson supplied
