Provident Solicitations Conducted on Avenue

The opening Friday of "Provident Hospital Days" on Pennsylvania Avenue will find the community some $50,000 short of its $200,000 goal, with the Campaign scheduled to close September 10.

The two day affair sponsored by the Pennsylvania Avenue Business Men's Association is expected to net upwards of $10,000 for the $30,000 Provident Hospital Fund.

The first post-Labor Day report meeting of the Fund's Women's Division saw $9,000 in new subscriptions reported. This brings to a total of $55,000 the money raised by the 2500 volunteer workers.

Despite the fact that only two additional report meetings are scheduled, it is apparent that the Women's Division will reach its $20,000 quota.

To Solicit Stores

Many of the Division's members will do double duty Friday and Saturday as they solicit all the stores on Pennsylvania Avenue in connection with Provident Hospital "Day".

Provident Hospital Day officially began Friday morning at 10 when, costumed in white as nurses, marched from the hospital to their welcome headquarters, where they received final instructions on soliciting.

The fund total is nearing $300,000. The Corporate Gifts Committee will make its final report Tuesday, September 11. It is expected then that confirmation will be received on many large corporate gifts. The Women's Division will also hold its final report meeting that evening. It is further expected that early returns from a mail appeal will be announced. The mailing covered 15,000 businessmen and individuals in the city and county.

Large industrial and individual gifts received to date are:

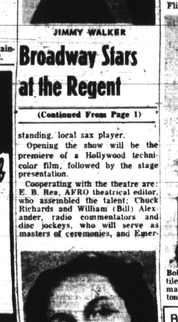
Opening the show will be the premiere of a Hollywood technicolor film, followed by the stage presentation.

Cooperating with the theatre are: E. B. Rea, AFRO theatrical editor, who assembled the talent; Chuck Richards and William (Bill) Alexander, radio commentators and disc jockeys, who will serve as masters of ceremonies, and Eger-



Bobby Boyd, exotic and versatile dancer, will be among the many talented stars appearing tonight at the Regent.

Louis Armstrong Draws Large Crowd

NORFOLK, Va. — Illinois Armstrong, one of the most engaging personalities in the entertainment field, gave his listeners at Foreman Field last Friday evening a masterful demonstration of jazz music.

Armstrong was assisted by his band of jazz stars who gave the audience some of the old time Dixieland jazz like "When It's Sleepy Time Down South" and "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans." A new tune called "Blueberry Hill" set the audience wild with cheers for more.

Some 5,000 heard the program, other features of which were the "Five Keys," a quartet of vocalists from Newport News, and the eight-man Illinois Jacquet outfit.

BEANTOWN LAUGH-GETTER

Boston Thespians in 'No Time for Comedy'

By KATHERINE W. COLEMAN

BOSTON—S. N. Behrmann's "No Time for Comedy" was a smashing success at the Robert Gould Shaw House recently as produced by "The Sidewalk Theatre Players," directed by J. Richie Coleman.

Playing to capacity audiences the cast with double-like Cynthia Bedford grave Jones, as Linda Easterbrook, an actress, brought sustained applause at the close of each scene.

Miss Jones was ably supported by leading men Burton White, who played with great artistry her philandering but lovable husband, Gaylord Easterbrook; and rangy David Newcombe, who was the stodgy "Philo Smith," scientist, who, despite his well-disciplined self, and married, too, to the vivacious "Amanda Smith" charmingly portrayed by clever Lucille Deans, managed to fall in love, but madly with the stunningly dressed actress, "Linda."

Harris Draws Applause

Joseph E. Harris, accomplished viola artist and stage manager for Sidewalk was "Robert," "Amanda's" butler whose innocent bearing of a message verbatim brought forth peals of laughter each time he spoke.

M. Aldon Morris was the debonair and handsome "Pym Lovell," with pretty Eve Goldenberg as Linda's saucy maid, "Eve."

A sophisticated, delightful play, "No Time for Comedy," which the group subsequently did at Rest-haven and will do at Brighton Marine Hospital, attracted people from Raleigh, N.C.; Delaware, Cincinnati, New York, Lawrence, Weymouth, Cambridge, Allston, Newton, Dorchester, Back Bay, Mattapan, Jamaica Plain, Medford, Malden and lower and upper Roxbury.

Has Interracial Cast

Started almost a year ago, this interracial group is trying in its resident professional theatre to rid the art of the obnoxious stereotypes which have been cluttering up the stage, screen and television of today.

They play to mixed audiences and their work has been reviewed by critics as of exceptionally high calibre. The group is casting now for their next production, "Detective Story," which will appear "on the boards" theatre-in-the-round in November with the cream of Boston actors, Ralf M. Coleman, doing the title role of Detective McLeod.

Appearing with him will be a star-studded cast including Mr. White, Vera Carney, Mr. Newcombe, Katherine Coleman, manager of "Sidewalk"; Mr. Morris, Ross Rio Morris, Irving Jones, Cal Kolbe, Norman Goldenberg, Audrey Newman, Miss Goldenberg, J. Richie Coleman, Miss Jones and Mr. Harris.

LET'S LOOK AND LISTEN

Radio-TV to Hit Highest Peak with Fall Programs

By MILDRED JOVIEN

HOLLYWOOD (ANP)—The big news the first week in September will be the Japanese Peace Treaty conference in San Francisco. The radio and television industry are planning full coverage of the historic event.

Television will mark a historic epoch of its own while covering the conference. The first transcontinental television program in history will take place when the major address by President Truman, officially opening the conference, will be televised.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company is turning over its transcontinental line between Chicago and San Francisco at the request of the State Department, allowing the nation to view the important session.

Radio networks will give full coverage to the proceedings from San Francisco's War Memorial Opera House, using many man-in broadcasts scheduled during the four-day meeting.

'The Lonesome Road'

The American Broadcasting Company launched a series of programs, "The Lonesome Road," analyzing the medical, social and economic problems of alcoholism.

Actual voices of problem drinkers, transcribed in court rooms, in judges chambers, in home surroundings and along the skid rows of some of our cities are heard during the eight week series.

The broadcasts, heard each Thursday, reveals how alcoholism as a public problem affects four million Americans directly and many others indirectly and costs Americans millions of dollars each year in "lagas lost, court costs, hospital expenses, accidents, and broken homes.

The show covers some of the facts doctors have learned in recent years about alcoholism as an illness, with information about treatment and rehabilitation.

The Big Show

NBC's super-show, the 90-minute "Big Show" will originate from London and Paris, for its first shows of the coming season. The entire troupe, headed by mistress of ceremonies Tallulah Bankhead, will journey overseas to record one show in London and another in Paris in September.

The London show will be heard in the States Sept. 30 and the France junket will be heard Oct. 7. Fred Allen and Portland Hoffa will appear as guests for the special shows.

Frank Sinatra will star in a new television variety series starting in October. The shows will start in New York, but will move to Hollywood when coast-to-coast cable operations are in full swing.

Ethel Waters was named best television actress in the annual Tele-Viewers Magazine Personality Poll. She won the distinction of her TV portrayal of "Beulah."

This fall, however, radio's "Beulah," Hattie McDaniel will take over the TV role.

"Mr. District Attorney" and "Break the Bank" move to the ABC network in September. Meredith Wilson, NBC's musical director of the "Big Show," now has a disk jockey program of his own over NBC called, "Meredith Wilson's Music Room."

"The Langford-Ameche Show" will be seen Monday through Friday afternoons via the ABC-TV network starting this September.

'Parade' On New Time

"Your Hit Parade" will begin a new era, when the radio version moves from its long-hold Saturday evening spot to a Thursday time slot. The TV edition will still be a Saturday feature. Guy Lombardo will take over the radio show and will feature a top-girl singer each week.

"The Four Knights" vocal quartet, featured on the Red Skelton show for the past two seasons, guested on NBC's "Music from Hollywood" show. Hadda Brooks, talented songstress, also was a guest of the popular Thursday musical show.

NBC-TV's "Cavalcade of Sports" began telecasts of big-name boxing bouts in Madison Square Garden and other New York arenas on Sept. 7.

W. C. Handy's playing of "Memphis Blues" and his comments on blues music, will be featured in a forthcoming historical phonograph record album, entitled "Hark, the Years." Other voices included in the album will be those of Presidents Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Harding, Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt; P. T. Barnum, Florence Nightingale, Lillian Russell, Enrico Caruso, John Barrymore and Prof. Albert Einstein.

On the AVENUE

By E. B. REA

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT for the Provident Hospital benefit show at the Regent Theatre.

TRY AND BE THERE when the bells toll for midnight. A good program has been arranged and there will be a good time for all.

EVERY PENNY of the $1 you pay for admission will go to the hospital fund. The theatre and all of its facilities, services by stage hands and operators are being donated gratis.

LIKEWISE, THE ARTISTS, both local and out-of-towns, are contributing their services gratis, for this great cause.

THERE WILL BE surprise entertainment for all—picture-lovers will see the premiere of a new Hollywood film; there'll be surprises for lovers of classical, semi-classical and popular music; dancing, and what have you.

DON'T TAKE MY WORD for it, but drop down to Ike Dixon's NEW COMEDY CLUB, and, I do mean new. You've often heard the boast of "Baltimore's Finest." Well, here it is. There's nothing like it in Baltimore. You'll be thrilled. Your cup of surprise will runneth over.

THE HILLTOP supper club, closed for the past few weeks, will reopen for white patronage under another management.

JOHNNY OSBORNE, the musician, doing double duty. He's a cabby by day and a band leader by night.

PAUL D. M'ALLISTER, 1 238 Fremont Ave., sent in a memorial poem to the late George D. Tyler. We thought it good. So, here it is:

GATEWAY TO GAYWAY

A little path that many know and often came its way,
That took you to the rendezvous
Where all was live and gay.

No lattice fence or garden wall,
No lilting flowers growing,
For here is where the quiet stops,
And all is bright and glowing.

This is but a one-way street,
Some tears—some laughs—some sins;
For when you reach God's Gates of Gold,
That's where the Gateway ends.

INTERESTING ITEMS— Johnny Hudgins will make a short visit home soon to see his aunt, Mrs. Laura Brightman, 1346 N. Stricker St.

Famous stars of show business will dramatize in song and story "The Life of Oscar Hammerstein," famed American lyricist, in two hour-long installments on the CBS Television Network's "Toast of the Town," hosted by Ed Sullivan, Sun, Sept. 9 and Sunday, Sept. 16. Left to right (top), are Mimi Benzell, of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and Gertrude Lawrence, co-star of Hammerstein's "The King and I"; and, left to right, bottom: Dorothy Sarnoff, also of "The King and I," and sensational songstress Lena Horne.

Baltimore-D.C. Area Rich Grounds for Vocal Units

One of the strangest phenomena in modern popular music is the sudden emergence of several extremely successful vocal groups and a completely original vocal style from the area around Baltimore and Washington.

The newest of these groups, The Clovers, has followed such units as the Cardinals, Orioles, Swallows and Dominoes into national prominence.

The Clovers skyrocketed to fame just a few months ago with their best-selling record on the Atlantic label, "Don't You Know I Love You." The platter became a hit almost immediately upon release and is today among the top five records in the country.

Invades Hill-Billy Field

Curiously enough, aside from it being a leading rhythm and blues hit, the record is selling well in the so-called "hill-billy" areas.

The Clovers received their first break by winning an amateur contest at Baltimore's Royal Theatre. They were quickly signed by Atlantic Records and were shortly after appearing on the stages of the Apollo in New York and the Howard in Washington.

The Clovers, all in their early twenties, is made up of John (Buddy) Bailey, lead tenor; Harold Lucas, baritone, and Harold Winfly, bass, all from Washington; Matthew McQuarter, tenor, of Dallas, Texas, and Bill Harris, guitarist, who hails from North Carolina.

Canfor and Davis Top Fair Stars

READING, Pa. — Three of the biggest names in show business—Eddie Cantor, Janette Davis and the Mariners—will perform at the eight-day and seven-night Reading Fair which opens Sunday, Sept. 9.

John S. Giles, fair president, said each of the three "name" attractions will appear one night only. Miss Davis and the Mariners, who have attained widespread fame as singers with Arthur Godfrey, will head the big grandstand show at the fair on opening night.

Cantor will head a big stage bill, which also includes the Roxyettes revue, on Monday night, Sept. 10. This year's fair will mark the 100th anniversary of fairs in Reading.

Shriners Have Moonlight Cruise

WASHINGTON

Students Serve as Guest Announcers

When Professor Clemmon King had several young high school students and a student from the Albany State College serve as guest announcers on the program "Your Time," Radio Station WDWD Dawson, Ga., among them were L. A. Jones, graduating senior from Monroe High School, and Miss Audrey McAlpine, sophomore of Albany State College. Shown at the home of the president, they are, left to right, facing camera, L. A. Jones, president of the Senior Class, Miss McAlpine; Willie Terry, president-elect of the Student Government; (backs to camera) Men's Dormitory Club at ASC; Mrs. Karl Brown, and Prof. J. L. Elkins, head, Music Department. Dr. Brown sits at left and Mrs. Brown at right.

D. C. Population for '50 Up 50%

WASHINGTON

The 1950 nonwhite population for the District of Columbia was 284,031 according to the latest figures released by the Bureau of the Census. This number shows an increase of 50.5 per cent over the 1940 figure.

In contrast to this the white population increased only 8.2 per cent and the total population was upped 21.0 per cent. The group designated as nonwhite by the Census Bureau includes colored Americans, Indians, Japanese, Chinese and other non-white races. Mexicans who are not Indian or of another non-white race are classified as white.

Females Outnumber Males

Of the 284,031 non-white persons listed, 135,837 were males and 148,194 were females. In 1950 there were 89.1 males for every 100 females as compared with 91.9 in 1940.

The number of persons 65 years old and over increased by 15,610 or 37.9 per cent, while the number of children under five years of age was boosted by 21,468 or 28.8 per cent. The smallest increase, 2.7 per cent, occurred among persons 15 to 24 years old. Total population for Washington was 802,178 as compared to 663,091 in 1940.

Miss Evans to Return to Oxford

WASHINGTON

Miss Doris V. Evans, 1226 Irving St., NW., has been granted a renewal of a Fulbright Award to continue studies at Oxford University, England, for the 1951 - 1952 school term.

She is a graduate of the Howard University School of Music, having finished summa cum laude in June 1945. She received a bachelor of arts degree from Liberal Arts College the following year.

M.A. From Radcliffe

In 1947 Miss Evans received the master of arts degree in Musicology from Radcliffe College and taught for three years at Howard as instructor of music and theory in the School of Music.

She received the original Fulbright grant last year in the field of history and musicology. Because of the brilliant record that she has made at Oxford the school recommended renewal of her grant. Normally Fulbright awards are granted for only one year.

Miss Sepia '51 Gains Interest

PHILADELPHIA

Unusual interest in the 1951 Miss Sepia Philadelphia Contest is reported by the sponsoring group, The Artist and Models Guild.

"Miss Sepia of 1951" and runner-up will vie for prizes which include: 1500 in cash and merchandise; two scholarships; The Mayor's Trophy; personal appearances at an attractive figure and the title of top beauty of the year.

Many business concerns are cooperating by giving prizes for contestants. The contest is open to all girls between the ages of 17 and 25. Free private training will be given any entrant.
