Says Church Must Teach As Well As Feed World

WASHINGTON

The findings of this year's conference of the International Missionary Council will not be made public until sometime in September, but according to Howard University Professor Dr. Flemmie P. Kittrell the Council is almost certain to agree that economic aid alone will not stem the rising threat to Christianity throughout the world.

Dr. Kittrell, who heads Howard's Department of Home Economics, returned this week from Willigen, Germany where she served as a specialist in home ec at the conference. The conference which was held in association with the World Council of Churches.

Ideals Required

At Willingen, Dr. Kittrell addressed the assembly—about 250 delegates representing 43 countries—on the subject: "Man Cannot Live By Bread Alone."

"We are living in revolutionary time," she said, "and the church must find a way to serve the world in the best ideals of Christianity."

Declaring that although the economic aid programs had done much by system The current threat to the Christian countries of the world, Dr. Kittrell told the group that we are still short of our goal. "Bread is necessary to sustain life," she asserted, "but what shall we do with it after it has been sustained."

The Howard University professor called upon the delegates to go on record as favoring provisions in the economic aid program for a homemaking education concerned not only with teaching people how to do a particular job, but also how to develop a social function as members of the family and society.

All Need Aid

At the same time, she said, there must be a broad base of formal education made easily available to all people. "This is the only way that the longtime goals and gains of Christianity can be realized," she concluded.

Dr. Kittrell, who represented the Methodist Church at the conference, is the Washington president of the Woman Society of Christian Service. She came to Howard University in 1944 and is a former Fulbright professor of Home Economics at Baroda University in India.

Incidentally, serving on the same faculty will be Miss E. Louise Young of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Charles Moore (Wed in Revised)

Back in Dallas, Tex., this week, was A. Maceo Smith, president of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, who has been visiting chapters in Little Rock, Shreveport, New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Houston.

Off again he goes, this week, to address the National Funeral Directors Association in Atlanta, Ga.

For the first time in a couple of years, Dr. J. H. N. Waring Jr., head of Downington (Pa.) Industrial School (in Pa.) and Mrs. Downing are able to absent themselves from the institution for a short rest. They left, Friday, for Spring Lake, N.J., where they plan to be until the 10th.

CUPIDODDLING

Last week, comely Jeanne Anderson gently broke the news to her parents, the William Andersons of Washington, that she had been Mrs. Charles N. Moore Jr. for a couple of months.

The lass, a student at Howard University, has made quite a name for herself in theatrical circles of the capital, being a member of the famed Howard Players. She also did a yeoman job in the cast of "Cinderella Lee" in the presentation of the New Faces Guild Theatre, last year.

Airman Moore is a native of Cambridge, Mass., now stationed at Simpson Air Force Base in New York. While he is attending officer candidate school they will live in Ithaca, N.Y.

And another bit of news in the same vein comes from Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Harris of Lafitte, N.C., this week, who announced that their daughter, Emma Louise, has been Mrs. Odell G. Harris Jr. since December 16, 1951.

She's a schoolmate at Mather Academy, Camden, S.C., having graduated from Saint Augustine College. He's (the son of the Rev. Mr. Harris of Fort Valley, Ga.) in the air force and stationed at Lake Charles, La.

Naomi Jones, daughter of the Clifford P. Simsek) and Lancelot C. Thompson of Jamaica, BWI, both recent Morgan State College (Baltimore) graduates, made their vows in St. Matthews Episcopal Church, Detroit, Mich., Wednesday.

Only immediate members of her family attended the ceremony which was read by Father Meyers.

Miss Jones, of Detroit, flew out to attend the ritual. Robert Jones and Robert Knuckles Jr., both of Detroit, took on roles of maid of honor and best man, respectively. The newlyweds dashed off to Idlewild for a honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Marshall of Lynn, Mass. have told of the engagement of their daughter, Ellen Louise, to Washington's David H. Fisher Jr., Bethune Teachers' College senior and Kappa Alpha Psi frater.

She's AKA, Boston University School of Physical Education graduate, and currently on the staff of the Kabat-Kaizer Institute in Washington.

And also in the romance category is that party given by bridesmaids and Delta Delta sorors Jerry W. Jones and Betty Powers in Hartford, Conn., Saturday, for Elizabeth Lambers, of the music faculty of Elizabeth City Teachers' College, Elizabeth, N.C. She is the daughter of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Lambers's Protestant Episcopal Church, Hartford.

Mrs Lambers is to become the bride of Albert Martin, head of the Chemistry department at the same college on the 16th.

The Powerses' lovely home and grounds were used in Hartford as was the scene of the affair, and among those who came laden with gifts and stayed for the elaborate buffet were:

Mrs. Albert Lambers, Mrs. Alfred Powers, Rachel Powers, Lillian Fletcher, Dorothy Friedlich, Glynn Duggan, Madelyn Seymour, Dorothy Pugh, Ellen Culiers, Edythe Taylor, Bailey Brown, Arneita Taylor, Millicent B. Tyson, Louise F. Taylor, Miss Murray and Mrs. Caudell.

WITH THE LADIES

Out in San Francisco, last week Sue B. Thurman was honoree at a luncheon given by Mrs. Fairmont Graves, author of the recent publication of her new book, "Pioneers Of Negro Origin In California."

Garnering a teaching post in Raleigh, N.C. is Mrs. D. N. Henderson, the former Annie V. Jordan, Winston-Salem Teachers College grad and Juilliard School of Music student. She's the wife of the chief counselor for Virginia State College.

Principals In Johnson-Hulin Wedding Ceremony

Among the colorful church weddings which attracted notables from the Eastern Seaboard to Newark, N.J., was that of Miss Juanita Hulin of Newark, who teaches in Elizabeth, and Dr. Randolph Johnson of Montclair, a resident physician at Jersey City Medical Center. The rites were performed at St. James AME Church, by the Rev. James C. Nelson, pastor of Clinton Memorial AME Zion Church. Left to right are Nevin Greene, James Randolph, William Johnson, ushers; Duncan Walton of Jersey City, best man; the bridegroom and bride; Miss Florence Hulin, maid of honor; Miss Eloise Hulin and Miss Roberta Hulin, bridesmaids, all sisters of the bride; and Mrs. Anise Butler, sister of the bridegroom. The newlyweds, both graduates of NYC, will reside at 101 Astor Pl., Jersey City.

Easterners At Johnson-Hulin Reception

Cornell Accepts Miss Williams

LINCROFT, N.J. (ANP) — Mrs. Lewis S. Thompson, former Republican National Committee woman from New Jersey, announced this week that she presented a $1,000 college scholarship to 17-year-old Barbara Williams of Middletown Township.

Miss Williams, who has been accepted for admission to Cornell University, had a high school scholastic average of 92.

The scholarship, named in honor of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, reportedly will be the beginning of such awards to worthy colored students by Republican organizations, according to Mrs. Thompson.

NACW Opens 28th Conclave

LOS ANGELES (ANP)—A forum on "The Importance of Giving," the election of officers, and the awarding of honors occupy the attention of delegates to the 28th biennial session of the National Association of Colored Women's now meeting here.

The convention formally opened Sunday, Aug. 3, with a public education meeting at Shrine auditorium with Moss Kendrix, of Washington, as guest speaker.

Among speakers at the forum on voting held Wednesday were:

Miss Bertha S. Adkins, executive director of the Women's Division of the Republican National Committee; Mrs. India Edwards, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Mrs. Venice Spraggs, of the National Democratic Committee, and Mrs. Thalia Davis Thomas, assistant, Republican National Committee.

John E. Despol, secretary-treasurer of the CIO California Industrial Union Council, served as moderator.

To Elect President

Mrs. Ella P. Stewart, national president of the NACW, is completing two consecutive terms, a new president will have to be elected during this meeting.

The southwestern regional, one of the five sectional divisions of the NACW, met for a special session Sunday to pay tribute to the NACW in Oklahoma, California, New Mexico, Texas, Arkansas, and Arizona at Fort Worth, Texas in 1935.

To Be Honored

The association paid tribute to Mrs. Suzie Redden, who served for 15 years as director and chairman of Art and Crafts department of the organization, for having made that department an outstanding feature.

Dr. Waring presented arts and crafts awards. Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune and Mrs. Mary Church Terrell crowned queens of the art and crafts department
