Chesterfield Johnson, the $22-a-week bank janitor who was convicted last year for the theft of $15,000 from the Calvert bank's Pennsylvania Ave. branch, was paroled from the Maryland State prison Sunday.

Johnson, 30, was found guilty of taking the money after he went on a spending spree following discovery of the theft.

More than $7,000 of the money has never been found. About $5,000 of it was discovered in an alley off Wilmer Ct., by three young boys on May 2, the day the money was believed to have been taken.

Johnson is now on probation until December, 1953.

Noontime Collision Between Delivery Truck And Car Ties Up McMechen St. Traffic

Warning Issued To Many Drivers Without Licenses

Traffic Magistrate Max R. Israelson has become so alarmed at the large majority of defendants who appear before him on charges of driving without a license that he has warned that unless there is "an appreciable drop, jail sentences will be handed out."

On Monday, a typical day, there were eight such cases before Magistrate Israelson. Out of the eight, seven were colored defendants.

In four of the cases the court imposed the maximum fine of $100 but no jail sentences were handed out. The maximum sentence could be a $100 fine and 60 days in jail.

"From my observation this is one of the few offenses," Magistrate Israelson told the AFRO, "where the colored offenders seem to predominate."

Usually New Owners

Stating that it is becoming a "serious thing," the judge said most of the offenders seem to be people who have bought cars recently—"in the last few days or within the year."

The excuse generally given, he declared, was that the defendants claimed they were working steady and couldn't take time off to obtain their driver's licenses.

The offenders are apprehended when they have been stopped by police for committing some minor traffic violation.

No Literacy Test

Some drivers fail to obtain their licenses, Magistrate Israelson believes, because they can't read and think they would be turned down. Magistrate Israelson points out that there is not literacy test, the applicant only has to show he can read street signs and warning.

However, even in cases of complete illiteracy, a driver can obtain a limited or restricted license as long as a literate person accompanies him when he is driving, available for persons who have to wear eyeglasses or hearing aids.

Other violations in which a large number of colored defendants are charged are unauthorized use of a car and operating a car after license has been revoked or suspended.

Carried $1,000 Fine

In the latter case the sentence can be $100 to $1,000 fine, 30 days to six months in jail or both.

For unauthorized use of an auto the maximum sentence can be a $1000 fine and 1-year jail term.

Among those fined Monday were the following:

Catherine M. Bridges, 1500 block N. Carey St. —Unauthorized use of car: $100 and costs; no license: $100 and costs; failing to drive right of center: $5 and costs.

James L. Boulware, 200 block Bishop Ave., Anne Arundel County —no license: $100 and costs; Ignoring boulevard stop: $5 and costs.

George W. Smith, 1300 block W. Lafayette Ave.—No license: $50 and costs; reckless driving: $5 and costs.

Charles Clackes, 1000 block N. Gay St.—Operating on suspended license: $25 and costs; using large tags issued to another car: $25 and costs; using small tag issued to another car: $25 and costs; reckless driving: $10 and costs; no registration in possession: $1 and costs; bad brakes: $50 and costs.

Thought He Was Home When 2 Blocks Away

Leroy McDaniel, 29, 400 block Caroline St., told Chief Judge W. Conwell Smith "I thought I was home," the morning of July 26 when police arrested him in bed in the 400 block of S. Bond St.

But Leroy, who pleaded guilty in Criminal Court, Monday, to a burglary charge, lived two blocks away.

Police, who had responded to a complaint of Mrs. Audrey Hunter at the S. Bond St. address, said McDaniel was in bed with his pants and shoes off.

"I'm a hardworking man," explained McDaniel. "I thought I was home." He admitted he had been drinking.

This is the type of army transport plane used to move troops and correspondents to war fronts.

Albert Hinton, War Correspondent

Representing NNPA, lost his life a year ago when a U.S. plane crashed into the sea between Japan and Korea.

Jinx caused Hinton to wait for a shower and miss the regular plane which arrived safely.

BY JAMES L. HICKS
NNPA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—Albert Hinton said goodbye with a highball and I got high as a church this time. I remember him for the great guy he was.

Albert L. Hinton, managing editor of the Norfolk Journal and Guide, died a hero's death. His death is a salutary story about Japan and about that time in Japan when I was there. Albert and only colored war correspondent to be killed in the line of duty, he was the first and only colored war correspondent to be killed in the line of duty in the history of the Department of Defense of the United States.

I knew of him, but had never met him until that dark night in the Hotel Bristol in Tokyo. Bernard Young of the Guide is a friend of mine. I met Bernard Young in the Pacific in a foxhole on Okinawa. Bernard had been the best reporter of United States Marines.
