City Pattern Bars Telephone Operators

Colored Personnel Fill Many Jobs On Segregated Basis

Baltimore's jim crow social and economic pattern was blamed for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company's informal policy against hiring colored telephone operators by a company spokesman Friday.

In a talk with the AFRO regarding the NAACP's complaint filed with the Government Contracts Compliance committee in protest of the ban on colored telephone girls as operators, the spokesman declared:

"Generally speaking, we conform with the community pattern—whether it be on wages or working conditions. Quite naturally, when the pattern of the community changes, the company will change."

In Many Other Jobs

The spokesman pointed out that colored personnel are hired by the company in numerous other capacities, many of which excel in responsibility and salary that of a telephone operator. In practically every instance, however, the colored employees work as separate units.

If hired, colored telephone operators would have to be integrated with white operators because of the company setup, it was explained.

"Our prime responsibility is the furnishing of service," the spokesman said. "We can't afford to take any steps from an employment standpoint, or any other standpoint, that would jeopardize the services to the community," he added.

Points To Progress

The company official also declared that he felt "the company has made substantial progress over the past ten years in job opportunities."

Although no figures are kept as to the actual number of white or colored employees, the spokesman said, the company does hire a large number of colored personnel.

At the company's Division st. business office, 30-odd persons are employed, including commercial representatives, two senior clerks, a supervisor of accounting and a commercial manager.

All-Colored Groups

The company's all-colored blueprinting and reproduction department has approximately 8 workers, including a supervisor. All of telephone coin box collectors in the city are colored.

Other colored personnel include mailers, shipping clerks, garage attendants, administrative clerks, warehousemen, a janitorial force, elevator operators, including a supervisor, and a line crew headed by a foreman.

Women Claim Prejudice

Announcement of the complaint against the company for refusing to hire colored telephone operators came last week from Bowen K. Jackson, Baltimore NAACP branch co-ordinator, who said the action was the beginning of a drive to open up the local all-white field.

Mr. Jackson sent copies of statements by four women—each alleging to have been refused employment as a telephone operator solely on the basis of color — to Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington NAACP, asking that he bring the matter to the attention of the president of the Government Contracts Compliance committee.

The four women applied for jobs, Mr. Jackson said, during a period when the telephone company was advertising openings for operators.

'I Rode With The Klan---'

—Here Is The Story of a Southerner Who Joined the Ku Klux Klan And Turned the Information He Obtained Over To The FBI.

By STETSON KENNEDY

I was a citizen of the "invisible empire"—a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

For seven years I attended Klan Sunday schools, I served as a "Kleagle" (organizer), which entitled me to a share of the "kleagle" (organizer) fees, I attended the regular meetings of the "ordinary" Klan, I participated in "terrible tribunals" and I wore the white robe and hood.

Eventually I attained the rank of "Klaliff" (vice president), which entitled me to wear the purple robe instead of the ordinary white one, and to participate in terrible tribunals.

Although I was not a member of the Klan's Executive Kloncilia, I was privy to many secrets, because I was sent to take down the minutes of the meetings of the Klan's Executive Kloncilia.

I was also sent to take down the minutes of the meetings of the Klan's Kloncilia in Atlanta, Ga., and I was privy to the secrets of some Klan officials.

Any citizen who feels I was a "Communist" or "Communist sympathizer" because I was a member of the Klan, I can only say that I thought I was doing the right thing at the time. I was a patriot, I was a Christian, I was a Protestant, I was a Democrat, I was a white man, I was a native Southerner, I was a Gentile, I was a heterosexual, I was married, I was a family man, I was a Klansman, I was a Kleagle, I was a Klaliff, I was a Klaliff, I was a Klaliff
