One Woman's Antics Draw Crowd, Fine

A young woman's whose antics—inspired by beer, whiskey and tomato juice—caused a crowd of 200 to gather Saturday night at Druid Hill ave. and Paca st. was fined $25 and costs, Sunday, in Northwestern police court.

A young bystander whose use of profanity was provoked by someone in the crowd stepping on his foot was fined $15 for disorderly conduct by Magistrate E. Everett Lane.

A third young woman was found not guilty when it was revealed her role in the disturbance had been simply that of a peacemaker.

Started In Bar

The cause of the whole fracas was Miss Mary Knox, 25, of the 1000 block Argyle ave. Lee Stein, a manager of the Smith Hotel Bar, said the young woman became intoxicated and started a fight in his place around 7 p.m.

Miss Thelma Jordan, 25, 800 block Druid Hill ave., a friend of Miss Knox, carried her out and tried to take a knife away from her at the corner. It was then the crowd gathered.

Someone put in a call for police and when Officer Alexander McDonald of the Northwestern District arrived he placed both Miss Knox and Miss Jordan under arrest for disorderly conduct.

Gets In Act

Then John Patton, 25, 100 block Pennsylvania ave. got into the act. Officer McDonald said Patton became loud and began using abusive language when someone stepped on his foot. So he took him along in the wagon, too.

Miss Knox admitted to Magistrate Lane that she had been intoxicated and didn't know what was going on.

When the judge asked her what she had been drinking she said: beer, whiskey and tomato juice.

Magistrate Lane fined both Miss Knox and Patton but dismissed the charge against Miss Jordan.

Lady Medic Sent To Jail

Dr. T. K. Pullens Guilty Of Assault

DETROIT—A prominent woman physician who fought her mother-in-law and greeted two women patients in the nude, was sentenced to 60 days in Wayne county jail to await commitment to a state mental hospital.

She is Dr. Thelma K. Pullens, 41, former wife of Dr. Edgar Keemer, well-known Detroit physician.

Dr. Pullens was found guilty by Recorder's Judge George Murphy of simple assault on the complaint of Mrs. Mabel Keemer, her ex-mother-in-law, growing out an altercation Nov. 22, 1950, over Dr. Pullen's children, who were living with Mrs. Keemer at the time of the incident.

Police said during the altercation Dr. Pullens threatened Mrs. Keemer with a butcher knife. She was disarmed by Edgar Keemer, 73, husband of Mrs. Keemer.

Patients Called Police

The doctor was arrested later in her office, after two women patients of hers reported to police that Dr. Pullens greeted them in the nude when they called at the office for treatment.

The case was referred to Recorder's Court probation department which made a throughly investigation of the charges, and Dr. Pullens failed to appear in court on the day of her sentence.

Returned From Jersey

She was returned last week to Detroit from New Jersey, where she has been working on the staff of a Jewish Hospital. She was married to Dr. Edgar Keemer in 1938 and was divorced in 1946. The couple have two children, and she has a third child reportedly by another physician, who denied that he is the father.

Information in the probation report said Dr. Pullens is suffering from mental illness. She denied all charges.

Olivia's Own Story

it reminds me of old times." I said, "let's don't think about the past. I promised my mother I would never see you again."

He said "It is impossible for me to do that when I am looking at you as you are now."

He came a little closer to me. I kinda pushed back toward the lounge, and tried to move out of his way. He said, oh you can't do that to me. I said, oh yes, I would. You better not come by me.

He said, "Oh I'm not going to hurt you."

'Don't Worry About It'

I said, "I know you are not going to hurt me, but still I don't want to think about the past because my mother would be very much hurt if I broke my promise and I wouldn't have a home to live in after this.

"If my mother put me out then what are you going to do?"

He said, "don't worry about it. I said all right then. You stay over there on your side, and I'll stay on my side. Finally, he came near me, and kissed me.

I hadn't kissed him since the last time before my mother broke us up. He never kissed me, you know. I guess we were friends for sometime, he went on and kissed me. So I didn't object.

I hadn't seen him for a period of years. By not seeing him, even though I told him I didn't want to be bothered, I was over anxious at the time. I presume. And he was too. So I guess that's the way things happened.

He said don't you think you could love me one little time. I said, oh yes, I think so. So I did.

I didn't see him any more in 1950 after I became with child. I didn't go back any more.

I saw him again when he visited my home during the time I was carrying the child.

He came to talk to me and to bring me some change. Sometimes $10, $20—whatever he had.

'Take Load Off His Neck'

Mrs. —— a member of the church and two church officers came or were sent to my home. They urged me to take the load off his neck and he would support me.

I went to Mrs. —'s house, I forget just what month, but I have it down in a book, and talked to him on her telephone. His wife then was away in have her teeth pulled and I talked with him on the phone.

He told me he was worried. I understood he would support me if I took the lawyer off his neck. If I would help him. I said, look here, I'm around here with no hose on.

I said, don't you know its cold out here? He said, I know it is. And I said, I came all the way out here because Mrs. —— told me to come up here and talk to you on the phone.

I said, I wouldn't do anything to hurt you.

I said why would I hurt you if I love you.

I was supposed to go to Lawyer —— office and sign some papers. I was told there was some money down there for me if I signed the papers.

But I told them I would sign the papers only if I could read them and if I could take my brother with me.

But they didn't want my brother with me and they didn't want me to see what I was going to sign. I told them I might be signing my own child away from me, or signing away my own rights.

Refused To Sign Papers'

If I had to sign my rights away from me, I said I wasn't going to sign the papers, so I refused to go and did not go. And that's why things happened as they are happening now.

My lawyer told me, no. Anything they wanted me to sign, he would have to get into it.

Mr. ——had come to my home several times. He told me he would give me $50 a week if I promised them I would take this thing out of court. I had had my blood test already, and he said if you take it out of court, he would support me.

How would you support another man's baby? I said the baby doesn't belong to you? He said "don't worry about how I would support it. If I shoot crap, or if I play numbers to support it, that's my business — as long as you get the money.

'Not My Baby; It's His'

I said, oh I'll tell you what I'll do. Yes, I'll take your offer but sign your name to a statement that I'll write on a piece of paper saying that you are willing to support it. He said, no I'm not going to sign my name to it. After all, it is not my baby, its his. That's what he said to me.

I didn't know what to do about the blood test, but I talked with my lawyer. I went down there on 14th st. or 13th st.

I said to my lawyer the last day I was down at court, how did the blood test come out. He explained, but I didn't get it clearly.

If he'd kept sending money and supporting the baby, there wouldn't have been any problem. There wouldn't have been any trouble. Everything would be going on—it has been going on for more than 14 years, the approximately 13 years we've been good friends.

porters that he spelled his name "Li'Rae." He sat on the stairs as his attractive mother told the AFRO she did not care to discuss the matter of the registration card.

Mrs. Robinson denied that she had listed Earl Harrison, pastor, Shiloh Church, as the boy's father. Golden brown skinned, the stately woman said that if this name was listed "then somebody else must have done it."

She said that she had nothing to say against "Dr. Harrison" and was not going to discuss the matter with anyone.

She admitted that her son did attend Monroe School, located on Columbia rd., between Georgia and Sherman aves., NW.

On the mantlepiece in the well-appointed living room of the two-story corner house was a double frame that carried a picture of the Rev. Mr. Harrison on one side and that of a young baby on the other.

Church members told the AFRO that Mrs. Robinson and her son attend Shiloh. The boy, they said, often serves as an usher at B.T.U. (Baptist Training Union) meetings.

Lawyers Win Hearing Delay

A battery of five lawyers defending the pastor in the paternity suit filed by Miss Olivia Holmes, also a church member, won a postponement of a hearing on a motion for a new trial last week on grounds that they had uncovered new evidence and misconduct by a juror.

They were allowed until Thursday to amend their motion for a new trial and a hearing has been set for Aug. 28 in Juvenile Court.

The pastor was convicted on Aug. 5 and was due to have been sentenced on Aug. 14.

'Gossip,' Pastor Declares

Dr. Harrison told the AFRO that he knew nothing about the listing of his name on the school registration card.

"I refuse to be questioned about somebody else's child," the pastor said. "I have nothing to say about it. It's not my child. I didn't birth it. It's hers, so ask her . . . I don't know anything about that gossip."

The pastor said that Mrs. Robinson was a member of the church, but declined to discuss her activities further.

Queried about his picture framed with a child's on the mantlepiece in Mrs. Robinson's home, the pastor stated.

'Never There In My Life'

"Well, I suspect you'll find my photograph on a thousand mantles. I have never been in the house in my life."

Dr. Harrison said that he had never talked about the school record. When the AFRO sought to question him about the oddity of the boy's name spelling his when read backward, the pastor ended the interview.

pecially when Sugar Chile Robinson and Fats Waller appeared on the screen. The short was narrated by Claude Barrett.

Bowery Boys Tops

As soon as the feature attraction was shown, "Pirates of Tripoli Fools," starring the Bowery Boys, the rafters shook. Had the doors been open the screams of delight would have been heard in Druid Hill Park.

It was evident the Bowery Boys had scored again. A cartoon in technicolor, and a news reel completed the show. Other than the Bowery Boys, the two busiest people in the theatre, were the young ladies in charge of the canteen.

They decided, it was a toss up, as to whether the youngsters came to see the show, or to eat. But they did both. And in very good order.

300 Strong

Led by their petite supervisor, Mrs. Doris Bailey, 300 Clean Blockers from Holabird arrived almost simultaneously. It was reported that several transit buses refused to stop when they saw the large crowd out in Holabird. A call from Manager Buddy Newton, just before curtain call, brought four friendly policemen from Northwestern, who directed the street crossing without mishap. Thus, bringing a happy ending to another Regent Jamboree.

Final Meeting

The final Clean Block meeting will be held at the McCullon Homes, Friday morning at 10 o'clock. It is imperative that ALL captains be present.

Bus Rider Who Lost Arm Is Reported 'Out Of Danger'

Authorities at Bon Secours Hospital report that the 38-year-old man who lost his arm while riding a No. 20 bus is "past the danger point."

Norman A. Truitt, 2300 block W. Lexington st., had his left arm mangled when the bus collided with a furniture truck at Baltimore and Carey pl., Friday afternoon.

Mr. Truitt was seated on the left side of the bus, with his arm on the windowsill, when the accident occurred.

The truck, driven by Nathaniel Davis, 29, 700 W. Lexington st., was passing close to the left side of the bus when the rear door swung open and crushed Truitt's left arm.

Rushed To Hospital

Not wishing to wait for an ambulance, the bus driver, Paul Hooper, 35, 3400 block Sixth st., Brooklyn, rushed the injured man to the hospital in the bus.

Surgeons at Bon Secours later found it necessary to amputate the mangled arm.

This is the second instance, in less than three months, where a bus passenger suffered loss of an arm.

The first such incident occurred on June 6 when Miss Sylvia Downes, a circus acrobat, lost her arm in an accident at Lexington and Liberty sts.

The bus on which she was riding drove too close to a power pole and caught her arm between the pole and the bus. Since being released from the hospital, Miss Downes has filed a damage suit against the local transit company.

Man Is Found Not Guilty Then Guilty Of Burglary

John R. Hill, 32, 2000 block Boone st., was clear innocent in one burglary case Friay because there was no corroborating evience as to his identity.

But he was found guilty in a second case because an officer caught him as he attempted to flee...

After the conviction Judge John T. Tucker sentenced Hill to 3 years in the State penitentiary.

Girl Identifies Him

In the first case, a 16-year-old white girl, Shirley, Weaver, now living in the 1000 block Forest st., identified Hill as the man she awoke to find standing over her bed around 5 a.m. July 19 when she was living in the 200 block N. Broadway.

The man fled, she said, when she jumped out of bed screaming.

The young girl later picked Hill out of a police lineup.

Hill denied he had been in the girl's home. He said on the morning of the incident he was at home sleeping after moving to the Boone st. address from his former home in the 1300 block Lombard st.

Is Not Guilty

Since the girl was the only person to identify Hill he was found not guilty.

The second case concerned a July 29 incident. This time Hill entered the basement home of W. Biddle st. around 5:30 a.m.

When she found him in the kitchen Mrs. Tuber screamed and attracted the attention of Officer Robert Ross of the Central District.

Officer Saw Him

The officer said he saw Hill run out of the house and up an alley with his shoes in his hand. When the fleeing man refused to stop at his shouts, Officer Ross fired a shot into the air. Hill then stopped running.

Hill admitted being in the second apartment but explained that he had been drinking and felt dizzy. He said he thought he was in an empty cellar and ran because the woman's scream scared him.

In neither case was anything stolen.

He Knew The Judge And He Said So, Too

"Good Morning, Judge Lane," shouted Leroy Peters as he strode hastily into Northwestern Police Court Sunday morning.

"Good Morning," Judge Lane replied, startled but glancing at his book at the same time to see what brought Leroy before him.

He found it: "Leroy Peters, you have been charged with being drunk in the streets. How do you plead?"

"I plead guilty," answered Leroy in a voice that refused to adopt the moderate tones demanded in a courtroom.

Found At 8 P.M.

"You were found around 8 p.m. at Lanvale st. and Pennsylvania ave.," continued His Honor. "Was had you been drinking, whiskey and beer?"

"No sir," said Leroy quickly. "I only drink beer. I had nine bottles."

"Judge," continued Leroy in a rush of words, "I'm an old man. I'm 54. I can't take it like I used to. And I know you. I knew you when you were a little boy."

His Honor Tries

"Yes," His Honor tried. "I used to live ——"

"Yes sir," shouted Leroy. "You used to live on Pitcher street and my father had a store there."

"I'll bet he's turning over in his grave, right now," Magistrate Lane muttered. "All right," he continued hastily before Leroy could get in another word, "suppose you go on back in the cell until noon and we'll turn you out."

"Thank you, Your Honor," grinned Leroy. "I thank you for your hospitality." And he reached over and shook the judge's hand before waking out on feet still unsteady nine bottles of beer.

Stevenson To Back Anti-Filibuster Rule

NEW YORK — Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic nominee for President, will support the move for a change in Congress rules to shut off filibusters in the Senate and permitting of smoother flow of legislation in the House.

This was the assurance given Roy Wilkins, NAACP administrator, in an hour-long interview Aug. 7 in the executive mansion in Springfield, Ill.

Mr. Wilkins, who has requested and secured an appointment for a similar interview with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican nominee, told Gov. Stevenson the NAACP is a non-partisan organization that is seeking the best possible action on a civil rights program.

Civil Rights 'Football'

Political commentators and others are trying to present civil rights as a mere political "football," he told the Illinois chief executive, "but to millions of Americans it is a deadly serious business that affects their lives each and every day."

Gov. Stevenson said he had called the civil rights plank in the Democratic platform "an excellent one" and that he intended to run on it.

He said he had previously stated that he was opposed to filibusters that endanger the national welfare and that he would support the platform plank which urges action in the 83rd Congress to prevent a minority from blocking the will of the majority.

Approves FEPC Bill

On FEPC, Gov. Stevenson repeated his belief that there should be no discrimination in employment and he cited once more his approval of the Humphrey-Ives FEPC bill which came out of committee in the last days of the 82nd Congress. The Humphrey-Ives bill provides for enforcement powers.

The nominee also told Mr. Wilkins of his sponsorship of an FEPC bill, with enforcement powers in the state legislature of Illinois. It was passed by the Democratic lower house, but defeated in the Republican-controlled state Senate.

Gov. Stevenson recalled that he had sent troops to quell the Cicero housing riot and that state troopers had been sent to Cairo on the occasion of a bombing in connection with a school case. He said he wanted to accomplish something" on civil rights and not just "talk about it."

Missing Toaster Figures In Browns' Divorce Case

A letter from a jewelry store, indicating that William J. Brown had bought a toaster for another woman, was the chief evidence used by Mrs. Mary Brown, 2116 W. Saratoga st. to obtain a divorce, this week.

The wife, who charged desertion, said that Mr. Brown, left her when she confronted him with the evidence. They were married in 1946 and lived together until 1950, she said.

Wife Wins Decree

A divorce went to Mrs. Thelma Madison, 2004 Barclay st., on a cross bill, after her husband, Emizer Madison had lost his petition in which he charged desertion.

Mr. Madison will also pay court costs and his wife's attorney's fee.

Mrs. Madison testified that she left her husband after he had beaten her. Upon advice of her mother, she said, she returned to the home, next day, only to find that her husband had cut and burned her clothes.

A divorce also went to Mrs. Ella Rush of 1337 Grinder ct. after she testified that she and Charles Rush voluntarily separated in 1948 after ten years of marriage. Mrs. Rush was represented by Roy S. Bond, attorney.

Mrs. Ada Cook, of Cedar Hill, divorced Joseph Cook of 606 Round View rd. on grounds of desertion, and George J. Harris, 49 Jane st., won a divorce from Mrs. Alelia Harris, 824 Sharp st. on grounds of voluntary separation.

Mates Deserted

Charles J. Patterson, 535 Mechen st. divorced Mrs. Mozell Patterson of NYC, after charing that she left him without cause in 1948. And a divorce went to Mrs. Mozell Jones, 108 E. Lexington st. from Robert Jones, whom she, too, charged with desertion.

not used in his conversation with the general.

Not For FEPC

Mr. Garner also professes to be strongly in favor of FEPC.

While admitting that Eisenhower did not approve of compulsory FEPC, Mr. Garner said the general, was for FEPC, all social rights and any other rights a man deserves."

He also expressed confidence that Eisenhower would go as far "as (his) honest opinion will permit." on the question of civil rights.

failed to support her. She said that they had lived under the same roof but in separate quarters for five and one-half years.

In answering those charges, Wynne denied the accusations and said that she had deserted him more than once. In November, 1945, he set forth, she told him that she did not love him and left the home for a considerable length of time.

Tells Of Rendezvous

He accused his wife of having relations in her own home with one C. C. and said she patronized a bingo parlor on Wednesdays and Saturdays with male friends, and would leave the parlor with those friends and go to a bar or to an adjacent park.

He specifically mentioned April 7—saying that Mrs. Wynne and H. B. associated together on that date at the Jackson Hotel, Hartsson, Pa. On Aug. 29, 1949, he said, she went to NYC to meet H. B. after leaving home on the pretese of visiting relatives.

Call Her Violent

Wynne's petition charges that his wife is a periodic drinker, who when under the influence of alcohol resorts to violence of the lowest degree. More than once, he says, she has thrown zinger ale bottles or "anything else she might grasp" at him.

He also charges that his wife uses vile and abusive language and is untruthful, unfaithful and vindictive toward him and his clients and associates.

Mother Of Four Arrested In Raid

A 38-year-old mother of four children was ordered held in $2,500 bail in Pine st. police court Friday on lottery charges.

The woman, Mrs. Maggie Johnson, was arrested when a squad of Northwestern district plainclothesmen entered her second floor-rear apartment in the 1200 block McCulloh st. about 11:45 a.m. Friday with a search warrant.

Hearing Waived

The officers were Sgt. Joseph Heagerty and Patrolmen Wilbur Rose, Leroy Moody and Calvin Lyles.

No testimony was heard in court after the woman's attorney waived a preliminary hearing.

Police declined to reveal what lottery items were seized in the raid.

MARYLAND OR VIRGINIA???:

Hearing To Decide Which State Gets 'Big John'

End Of Big John's Trail

A hearing to be held before a U.S. Commissioner in Detroit, this morning, (Tuesday) will determine whether one of the nation's ten most wanted criminals will be returned to Maryland to face a murder charge.

"Big John" S. Hill, 40, a native of Chester, Md., was arrested in bed by FBI agents, Saturday morning—without a struggle.

He is wanted in Maryland for the 1950 murder of an elderly storekeeper. Authorities in Virginia want him on a charge of felonious assault.

When the FBI agents nabbed him, Hill was living in limbo, a suburb of Detroit, using the name of James Smith. He had been working in a Detroit junkyard for the past three months.

When the federal men swarmed into the room and awakened the fugitive, Big John sat up in bed and casually stated:

"I guess you've got the right man."

He told the authorities that he was getting ready to leave Detroit and go to California to lead a "clean life," when arrested.

Although both Virginia and Maryland list the elusive criminal, S. S. Alden, in charge of the local FBI office, declared that Big John will probably be returned to Maryland to face the murder charge.

The man has a long record of vicious assaults. He attempted to kill his wife by forcing her head under water in a stream until she lost consciousness.

Shortly afterwards, he threw a man out of an automobile that was moving at a high rate of speed.

Assaults Nephew

Later arrested on a charge of attempting to kill his nephew, Big John was out on bail when he allegedly beat an elderly storekeeper to death during a holdup.

While still being sought for this murder, Big John invaded the home of his mother-in-law in Portsmouth, Va., and brutally choked his estranged wife.

He then stabbed the woman five times in her breast and bed before making his escape.

His presence in Virginia while being sought in Maryland, indicated that Big John had crossed state lines in his attempt to avoid prosecution.

This is a federal offense and agents of the FBI then entered the case. Since May, 1950, the criminal had been the subject of an intensive search by federal authorities.

Traced To M.Y.

At one time the man was traced to an address in New York, but he eluded a net that was spread for his capture.

An FBI poster described Big John as being extremely dangerous and "gets terribly evil when drunk." The criminal was also said to be armed with shot gun.

The man's criminal record began when he was 23 years old. Big John was then sentenced to three years in Trenton, N.J., on a charge of assault.

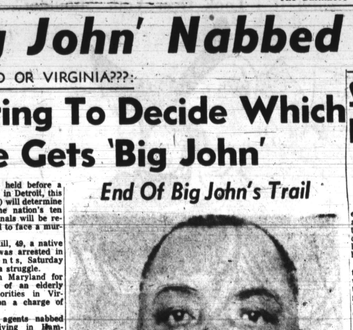
In January, 1941, he received a six-months sentence in Bridgeton, N.J., on a drunk and disorderly charge.

Evidently finding New Jersey a little too hot, Big John returned to Maryland. On November 28, 1946, he was charged with murder in Easton, Md.

He was later dismissed for lack of evidence.

Then followed in quick succession, the assaults against his wife, nephew, and the murder of the Queen Anne County storekeeper.

Police records reveal that Big John at one time lived in South Baltimore in the 500 block W. Barre st.



FBI No. 600,921

Ending an intensive manhunt which began in May, 1950, FBI agents in Detroit early Saturday morning nabbed "Big John" S. Hill while he was asleep in bed. Described as one of the nation's top ten criminals, Big John offered no resistance when captured.

July 28 Execution Delayed By Lightning

RICHMOND

A condemned man, who escaped execution on July 28 only because an electrical storm knocked out the power lines to the electric chair, will die here on Aug. 25 unless Gov. John Battle commutes his sentence.

The case received no mention in the press until the freak accident which caused postponement of sentence made it of interest to Virginia newspapers. Governor Battle was stated to hear appeals for commutation on Monday, Aug. 18.

Albert Jackson Jr. was convicted of criminally attacking a white woman in this city. The arresting policeman testified that as he came on the scene, the woman was asking Jackson "Where is my five dollars?"

Virginia citizens who have interested themselves in the case cite this testimony to show that whatever happened was not criminal attack.

The Virginia Commission to Save the Martinsville Seven, which fought the execution of seven Virginia men in 1951, has been revived in an attempt to save Jackson.

See for yourself why LUCKIES TASTE BETTER!

How to prove to yourself Luckies are made better—to taste cleaner, fresher, smoother

Strip the paper from a Lucky by carefully tearing down the seam from end to end. Be sure it's from a newly opened pack, and that you don't dig into the tobacco. Then gently lift out the tobacco cylinder.

Free from "hot spots"

Here's why Luckies taste cleaner: You can see that Luckies hold together without crumbling—without loose ends to get in your mouth and spoil the taste. Lucky Strike remains a perfect cylinder of clean tobacco—round, firm and fully packed.

Free from "harsh spots"

Here's why Luckies taste fresher: Note how free Luckies are from air spaces—those "hot spots" that give you a hot, harsh taste. Luckies' long strands of fresh, good-tasting tobacco give you a fresh, smooth smoke.

Here's why Luckies taste smoother: L.S./M.F.T., Lucky Strike means fine tobacco—fine, light, naturally mild tobacco. So, for a smoke that's cleaner, fresher, smoother, for truly mild tobacco, for a cigarette that tastes better ...make your next carton Lucky Strike!
