Loumell Morgan 'Jams' The Village

NEW YORK — Loumell Morgan, one of jazzdom's most popular modern pianists, is still going strong at Arthur's Cafe in Greenwich Village.

Although Morgan is the only musician working professionally at the village spot, he is flanked nightly by the top jazz musicians in New York, who continue to come in for "jamming" purposes.

NABBED! — Retribution catches up with a crazed killer, William Talman, in this gripping scene from "City That Never Sleeps," which opens at the New Albert, Thursday.

GUN TOTERS! — Barbara Hale accuses Joel McCrea of being a member of an outlaw gang in "The Lone Hand," which opens at the Harlem, Wednesday.

LOVERS! — Susan Hayward and Robert Mitchum in a scene from "White Witch Doctor," which opens at the Carver Playhouse, Friday.

MYSTIFIED — Richard Carlson and Veronica Hurst seek the solution to an astounding mystery in this scene from "THE MAZE," 3-D thriller coming to the Met on Friday.

The Lone Hand New Harlem Hit

"The Lone Hand," a hard-hitting heart-warming story of the West, co-starring Joel McCrea, Barbara Hale and Alex Nicol at the Harlem Theatre.

The incomparable scenery of "The Lone Hand" is matched by a tender story of a father and his son as well as top portrayals to make it one of the finest outdoor entertainment features of the season. Joel McCrea as Zachary Hallock, father of an adoring young son, plays one of the most strenuous and engaging roles of his career.

McCrea proves again that there are few on the screen today who can top him as a man of the open. He is aided by one of the finest moppet performers of this or any other season, Jimmy Hunt, seen in the engaging role of Joshua.

New Festival Begins At Lenox, Mass.

LENOX, Mass. — The 16th Berkshire Festival began its six week ends of 15 concerts, Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the Theatre-Concert hall at Tanglewood Shed, summer home of the world famous Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch, director.

Mr. Munch conducted the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach Saturday and Sunday.

Featured in the Bach concerts were the famous young American composer-conductor - pianist, Lukas Foss, at the piano as soloist in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5, and the first appearance of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Appearing in Bach's Cantata No. 28 was the lovely Hartford, Conn. mezzo - soprano, whose voice register also includes the deep alto - notes, Betty Lou Allen, with Sarah Mae Endrich, soprano, John McCollum, tenor, Mack Morgan, bass.

Camilla Williams To Do 'Music Room' Guest Shot

NEW YORK — Soprano Camilla Williams will sing a group of classical and modern songs and two spirituals as guest soloist on CBS Radio's new Sunday series "The Music Room" Sunday.

For her program, Miss Williams has chosen a little known aria of Handel, "Spring Is Coming" from the opera "Ottone." Next she will sing two contemporary songs, John Duke's "I Can't Be Talking of Love" and Dougherty's "The Key."

She will close the program with two spirituals, "Steal Away," arranged by White, and "O, What a Beautiful City", by Boatner.

Miss Williams, a native of Danville, Va., has won the annual Marian Anderson Award and the Philadelphia Orchestra Youth Concert Audition.

CAMILLA WILLIAMS

Teacher's Song Hits Recorded

Odessa M. Crooper, a teacher at Boys' Village and a resident of Fruitland, Md. is also a songwriter who only this month signed 14 contracts for her musical work.

Last month her popular tunes "Please Be Sure" and "Neither You Nor I Are To Blame" were recorded by Johnny Creach and his Trio on Dootone record.

Two of her spirituals were also recorded last month on the West Coast. They were "God Can Set The World On Fire" and "Ocean of Prayer," recorded by the Sims Brothers sextet and scheduled for release this month.

Miss Cropper's work consists of all types from blues to semi-classics and her tunes have been played over all the local radio and tv stations.

The Maze, Is New Met Feature

Allied Artists introduces a sensational mystery shocker in "The Maze," filmed in three dimensions, which starts Thursday at the Met theatre.

The picture is from a novel by John Wayne in "IN OLD CALIFORNIA."

New Albert Has Police Drama

A spine-tingling action drama which builds for taut suspense in an atmosphere of big city color and excitement is "City That Never Sleeps," which opens Thursday at the New Albert Theatre.

Starring a powerful cast headlined by Gig Young, Mala Powers, William Talman and Edward Arnold, the cinematic thriller presents a vivid and sometimes lurid cross-section of the great city of Chicago from the viewpoint of the part of it which never sleeps—the gallant police force.

"City That Never Sleeps" is a powerful document with an entertainment wallop. It tells of a young police officer, Gig Young, who would leave the police force and his adoring wife, Paula Raymond, for an unknown future in another city with an angel-faced strip tease artist, Mala Powers.

He is fed up with policing, first through his father, Otto Hulett, who is still on the force, and then through his own experiences. He is also fed up with a nagging mother-in-law who is continually telling him how much more money his wife makes than he does.

Mitchum Film At Carver

A 3500-mile safari through the dark swamps, trackless jungles and vast plains of the Congo Basin in Central Africa will be viewed in background scenes of Twentieth Century-Fox's adventure drama, "White Witch Doctor," starring Susan Hayward and Robert Mitchum, which comes to the Carver Playhouse, Friday.

Producer Otto Lang spent three months with a camera crew penetrating deep into the areas seldom reached by white men obtaining rare photographic records of activities of four different tribes, the Bakubas, Wagenias, Bakubas, Wagenias, Mangbetus and Pygmies.

Lang discovered that the Bakubas, a strange group of people locked away in the very heart of the Congo, some 1200 miles inland from the West Coast were the first to conceive of the prefabricated house.

College Fund Air Schedule Set Up

August 9; Xavier University, New Orleans, La., August 16; Livingstone College, Salisbury, N.C., August 23; and Benedict College, Columbia, S.C., August 30.

Arts Players List Play For Veterans

LOS ANGELES—Kurtiz Hurtte and the Creative Arts Players have accepted an invitation from Capt. Colonil of the Sautell Veterans Center to give a performance of Ladislas Fodor's "The Vigil" at the Sautell Veterans Theatre on Sunday afternoon, July 26, at 2:30.

This play, as done by the Creative Arts Players, whose managing director is Ruth Turner, is creating a very successful season for this company of 25 actors.

Moments Musical

By ADAM K. JENKINS

Thirty pupils from the studio of Mrs. Alma Johnson Caswell performed at the annual piano recital Friday in the auditorium of Payne Memorial "AME Church.

Mrs. Veola Coleman presided over the annual concert by her students, held last Monday at Union Baptist Church. The participants ranged from 4-year-olds who had just begun music study this year, to a grandmother who became interested in music for her own pleasure.

The program opened with a class song "The Children's Prayer" and was concluded with "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You," sung by one of the students with a pupil accompanist.

Studio Recital

Pupils of Mrs. Florence Turner Carter appeared at her 11th annual studio recital at the Masonic Temple on Eutaw Place. The performances of the younger as well as the more advanced students, were especially notable for the careful phrasing and pedaling and attention to details of touch and expression.

Sears Community Hall was the setting for the annual recital by the Emma E. Poulson Studio on Tuesday evening. In addition to piano solos and duets, there were four performances by trios of pianists at one instrument. A group of boys and girls also gave a demonstration of songs and drills.

The fact that at least nine full length student recitals were given by local piano studios this season is evidence of a rapidly increasing interest in the performance of music.

Seeks Doctorate

Thomas Minter, director of music at Rowie State Teachers College and choir master at Grace Presbyterian Church will leave this fall to pursue his doctorate in sacred music at Union Seminary.

His work with the local choir has aroused praise from both musical as well as religious leaders throughout the community. Able leadership in religious music is at a premium in other places as well as in Baltimore.

Music lovers trust that the officials of Grace Church will be fortunate in securing a worthy substitute for Mr. Minter during his sabbatical leave. We wish him Godspeed.

The annual program of concerts by the City and Park Bands, Nos. 1 and 2, have begun under the supervision of Earl Foreman of the Municipal Music Bureau. Weekly concerts in the Rose Garden of the Baltimore Museum of Art and at the Peabody Conservatory of Music are under way also. These events are open to all citizens and those who brave the humid weather are well rewarded for their efforts.
