Gadabouting in the U.S.A.

By Lulu Jones Garrett

BALTIMORE

Down at closely - knit little Arundel-On-The-Bay that smart Chesapeake spot selected by some 40-odd couples in which to while away their summer hours, the Douglas Kings set up some high type "whiling," Saturday afternoon.

Some 70-odd guests were about their beach-front lawn, their enclosed breeze porch, their long living room and their garden of yard to sip, have supper, and play a spot of cards. And some mighty fine togs they did their sipping, supping and playing in.

Guests of honor were Alice Hayes of Niagara Falls, N.Y., who is visiting Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Adams at their Morgan Park home, in Baltimore; and the Roosevelt Griggses of Detroit. She's one of the Baltimore Naylors, who married the Michigan interior decorator. They are vacationing with her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs William Taylor of Washington at the latters' summer place at Arundel.

When we kidded Myra Reeder of Washington about soloing for the day, she explained that the soft-spoken tall and handsome Adam Thomas, with whom she had been partying the previous week, was tied up in a business deal in Washington. And when Yvette Murphy (week-ending with Dr. and Mrs. Ted Phifer) turned up alone, 'twas because her Jimmy was having himself a time in Idlewild, Mich. And the same question put to Anne Smith and Margaret Grant (Baltimore) revealed that their mates, Dr. A. A. Smith and Dean George Grant were on that annual stag vacation that a half-dozen men make to up State New York every summer; and to Odelle Payne, who explained that the Rev. Mr. Payne was in New York for the nonce.

Dr. Fay Allen, also of the Arundel colony, who is busier than a hive of bees keeping an eye on her husband's (Dr. Arvis Allen) office while he finishes a stint in the Army, her own practice and a post on the staff of Crownsville State Hospital, was letting down for a moment. And there were a lot of other Arundel neighbors about, including:

Dr. and Mrs. George MacDonald, Dr. and Mrs. W. Berkley Phifers, Juanita Goodloe, Dr. and Mrs. Stewart Johnson, Amanda Nunley, Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Christmas, the Carroll Hynsons, the James Browns and Dr. and Mrs. Roy Berry.

There were a batch of Baltimoreans, including the Adamses (Catherine wearing the snarkiest multi-colored halter frock, with cute detached cuffs just above the elbows) the Talmadge Hills, the Edward P. Hurts, Dr. and Mrs. George Spaulding, Dr. and Mrs. Martin Jenkins of the Morgan State college set; the Charles Fletchers, the Mark Pattersons, Sue Clark, Gwendolyn S. Lewis, the Frank Phillipses, Theresa Waters, the Herbert Wilsons, the Roy Craggways and Freddie Hill.

The Horatio Joneses were there from Princess Anne, the George Dreddens from Bridgeville, Del., the Cecil Burtons, Lula Hardesty, the Harrison Thomases, the James Becks, Ellen Butler from Annapolis; and Pauline Waters Smith from Jacksonville, Fla.; Dr. and Mrs. John Phillips were among Washingtonians there.

And speaking of clothes, Lillian Berry did the startling and attractive trick of wearing high lotus blossoms as earrings, matching them with the same flower bracelets worn on her upper arm.

And hostess, Vandola King drew comments on the prettiest of party aprons, with husband Doug quipping, "Wait for the shock when she leaves." True, the briefest of puffed shorts!

PEREGRINATORS

Joseph Franklin flew in from London, a week back, for the marriage of his brother, Roger, and Joan Allen of Cambridge, Mass. The bridegroom, a Cambridge U (England) and M.I.T. grad, is studying in the research department of meterology at the latter institute. She's a senior at Simmons.

In Portsmouth, Va., over the week end were Mrs. Evelyn Murphy and Mrs. Elmira E. Harris of Baltimore.

Susie V. Perry, science teacher at Washington High school, Raleigh, N.C., sailed from Montreal, Canada, last week for Southhampton, England. She was among 30 other science and mathematics teachers composing Tour D sponsored by the School of Education at Boston University.

The members of the tour will visit England, Scotland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, the Netherlands, Germany, Switzerland and France.

Mrs. Perry is the wife of Dr. Nelson Perry of Raleigh.

Ann Cooper, Talladega College senior who has accepted a tuition scholarship and position as departmental librarian in the department of French and Italian at Indiana University for the coming year, is off to France. She will study for six weeks at the Sorbonne in Paris.

Mrs. Daisy Satterfield of Burlington, N.C., has been visiting her granddaughter, Clara E. Harrison Library of Congress staff, in Washington.

Elie Hunt, Baltimore, is back home from a flurry of parties in New York, the chief of which was a birthday surprise given by her son-in-law and daughter, Vernon.

Dinner at eight, a champagne party following, found Dr. and Mrs. Warren Brown, the Harry Manns, Dr. and Mrs. James Thornton, Mollie Moon, Isaac Smith, the Larry Andrewses, Dr. and Mrs. Joselyn Carey, the Jack Washingtons, Isia Smith, Hilda Proctor and Major and Mrs. William Maize, about.

Josephine Stanley entertained at luncheon, the O. E. (Thelma) Austins at dinner for her.

Helen Tyson of Portsmouth, and the Pentagon in Washington, Va., who has been doing a stint will sail for Tokio, Japan, this week, to join her husband, Sgt. Pilar J. Drake.

National Junior Leaguers Work As Hard As They Play

CHICAGO — National Junior Leaguers may look like fun-loving butterflies, but the truth is these young women do a volume of voluntary service for the less fortunate.

The NJL creates opportunities for and fosters the personal development of its members. But, of its three major departments —civic, fine arts and publicity—the civic department is the most important. This department, which covers a broad scope of volunteer community service, operates under and appropriate motto: "Useful, Intelligent Service."

Welfare Work

In the cities where National Junior League chapters are established, members are active in virtually all welfare agencies, hospitals, welfare affairs, school programs and social bureaus. They participate in tag days, work with teen-age groups, serve in nurseries, and teach Sunday school classes. The programs of medical organizations and the Community Fund receive valuable aid from Junior Leaguers.

These young women demonstrate a militant spirit through their support of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

In all their activities the young ladies are volunteer workers. They are cautioned that 'volunteer service must not be considered as a stepping stone to paid employment.

No proper [illegible] remember) can become a full fledged National Junior Leaguer —regardless of her qualifications —until she has done a minimum of 300 hours volunteer service in the community.

Junior Leaguers are especially proud of the scholarship fund. Each year some deserving girl high school graduate receives a $500 educational grant. Selection of the beneficiary is based on (1) the girl's need and (2) her scholastic record. She, of course, reserves the choice of college or university.

The National Junior League had its beginning in Chicago in 1934, the inspiration of Mrs. William E. King, civic leader. A group of high school and college graduates, together with college students, met in the home of Mrs. King to form the first NJL chapter. It was called the Mid-South Side.

In Major Cities

Since that time, the League has divided the nation into 15 regions, with chapters in the major cities. Among cities boasting NJL chapters are New York City, Newark, Montclair, Kansas City, Detroit, Baltimore, Denver, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Chattanooga, Evanston, Ill. and Washington, D.C.

The League maintains its national headquarters in the city of its origin — Chicago. The first national president was the late Janie Smith. The current chief executive—the sixteenth—is Miss Harriett Maxwell of Denver, Colo.

Working in the field are the regional directors and the national organizer.

An allied junior unit within the national organization is the alumni group. Members of the alumni group are various affairs from which the NJL derives operation.

MR. AND MRS. WILBERT L. BOYKIN

Boykin-Stith Pledges Made In Double-Ring Ceremony

NEW YORK — Miss Lorraine Bernice Stith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Stith of Crewe, Va., became the bride of Wilbert L. Boykin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Boykin of Clinton, N.C., in a double ring ceremony at Abyssinian Baptist church, here, recently.

The assistant pastor, the Rev. David Licorish, officiated. Nuptial music was furnished by Howard Dodson, organist of the church, and the bride's mother was soloist.

Miss Taylor Attends

Given in marriage by her uncle, Clarence Stith of Englewood, N.J., the bride was attended by her maid of honor, Miss Madeline Taylor, dietician at New York City Hospital; four bridesmaids, Mrs. Rosa Boykin, public school teacher of Clinton, N.C.; Misses Shirley Christopher, laboratory technician of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore; Joan Archer, student of New York City public school; and Rubye Jackson, dietician at Freedmen's Hospital, Washington.

The bridegroom's best man was his brother-in-law, Willie J. Boykin, of Clinton, N.C. Ushers were John L. Boykin, Carence Boykin, Roosevelt Powell, and Cesear Shepherd, all of this city.

Wears Net Gown

The bride wore a gown of net over taffeta and a bodice of Chantilly lace. Her two-tiered veil of French illusion was attached to a cap of pearl-beaded and rhinestone satin. Jewelry used consisted of one strand pearls and matching earrings. She carried a white prayer book with lace cover, topped with carnations and white streamers.

The bridesmaids wore ballerina length net dresses of rainbow shades over taffeta and net stoles, matching one - strand pearls and earrings, linen opera pumps, and headdresses.

The honor attendant carried a nosegay of red talisman roses and confetti. Other attendants carried nosegays of seasonal mixed flowers.

Mrs. Mable Archer Stith, mother of the bride, wore a blue dress with navy accessories and a purple orchid corsage.

Reception Held

Following the ceremony the couple were received on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hayes, uncle and aunt of the bride, in Englewood, N.J.

For her wedding trip to Norwalk, Conn., the bride wore beige with white accessories.

On the evening of June 8th, the bride and her party were entertained with a dinner at the home of Mrs. Rozella Scott, godmother and aunt of the bride, New York City.

On June 9th, she was entertained with a reception at the home of her parents, Mrs. Bettie Harris and Mrs. Rosa Boykin were in charge of the gifts. Serving as hostesses were Mrs. Cora Vaughn and Mrs. Mary Stith.

Among other festivities planned for the couple is a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie J. Boykin of Clinton, N.C. on July 18.

The new Mrs. Boykin is a graduate of Virginia State college and has done further study at Columbia University. She held positions as dietician at New York City hospital and A. and T. College, respectively, and is a member of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and Alpha Kappa Mu National honor society.

Mr. Boykin is a graduate of Fayetteville State Teachers college; has completed residential requirements for the M.S. degree at A. and T. College, and has held positions as teacher and principal in North Carolina and Georgia, respectively.

The couple plan to reside in Virginia where the bride will complete graduate study in research in dietetics and institutional management at Virginia State college, on an assistantship which has assigned her as instructor in home economics there. The bridegroom plans to teach in the Virginia public school system.
