opened to the public.

"A year ago, civic and religious leaders joined with a number of organizations in protesting to Mayor Titus and city officials against the policy of white private swimming pools which barred colored persons on the pretext that they were "private clubs."

Color Bar Hit Spark

The matter came to a head when owners of the Circle Pool refused admission to colored persons who were enrolled in a Red Cross swimming instruction program.

Public opinion against this form of discrimination was mobilized by several groups:

The Citizens Committee, headed by the Rev. Randall C. Mason, pastor of the First Congregational church; The Committee on Negro Participation in Government, Arthur Holloway, chairman; the Paterson Human Relations Commission, commissioner John S. Lacz, chairman.

Also the local NAACP, the Interdenominational Ministers Union; several labor and civil rights organizations, and the Paterson Morning Call.

Voters Okayed Pool

The Citizens Committee campaigned successfully to have the voters approve the construction of a municipal swimming pool, open to all citizens, by a referendum last November.

Both the officials of the Circle Pool and those of the Lakeside Beach Club pool were warned by the Division Against Discrimination that their refusal to admit other than white persons was in violation of the state's anti-discrimination law.

The complaints of colored parents whose children were barred from the Red Cross swimming program by the Circle Pool were processed for presentation to the DAD with the assistance of the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Tarter, pastor of St. Augustine Presbyterian church.

Dr. Tarter was appointed last year as the first colored probation officer in Passaic county.

Mayor Speaks

In his dedicatorial address, Mayor Titus promised that the city would operate another pool in addition to Memorial Pool.

"We are sharing to it," he said, "that social justice granted in the Bill of Rights and the Constitution is carried through here."

The Rev. Mr. Mason recalled the fight against discrimination in private swimming pools a year ago, when "a storm arose over the city and many people rallied together to make sure that the damages were not great."

Mr. Lacz reviewed the legal steps taken against the Circle Pool because of discrimination.

Restrictions Banned

He pointed out that Memorial Pool "was born because of the need for such recreational facilities free of segregation, intolerance and discrimination."

He added: "Now that the city is operating these facilities, our children will swim together, play together and laugh together regardless of their nationality, race or their creed."

Emil Weissner, president of the Park Board, declared: "No one need belong to a club to get in here. All you need to be is a human being."

Purchase of the old Circle Pool property also gave the city a nice skating rink, which the mayor said will be ready for use next season.

has a copy of a marriage certificate and two affectionate letters to bolster her claim.

"Publicity"

Tuesday afternoon, reporters returned to the Baylor residence and the soldier's mother still insisted that her son was not married.

"It's just some one trying to obtain publicity," the mother said. "I had heard some gossip about my boy being married, but I know it isn't true."

The reporters left the Baylor home and went to the apartment of the wife, about seven blocks away.

When they arrived they were let into the apartment by Lester Costen, the wife's brother. The wife was talking over the telephone at the time. A large photo of Private Baylor was on the living room table.

"You called me, I didn't call you," the wife was overheard to say. "Page married me and he was over 20 when he did, so there is nothing you can do about it."

Hung Up

After the conversation went on for about 20 minutes, the party on the other end evidently hung up because the wife remarked, "I wasn't going to hang up on her." She identified the other party as her husband's another.

The wife said that she married Private Baylor on Sept. 9, 1950, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Roberta Majors, 1531 Simms pl., se.

She stated that the Rev. John M. Peters, former pastor of Ebenezer church, married them.

On Sept. 18, the wife said, "He went overseas."

A Letter

To support her statement, the wife produced a copy of the marriage certificate, No. 348826, which is on file in the District marriage license bureau.

She displayed a letter which was written by Private Baylor on March 26, 1952, from North Korean Prison Camp No. 5. It bore an APO July 10, 1952, postmark.

It was addressed to Mrs. Marjorie Baylor, 1531 Simms pl., se.

It read:

Love Is Burning

—Dear Hon:

What's wrong back there? You froze up in your writing (smiles). I am well and hope you are, too.

I know you must have been worried about me when you heard that I was missing. But I have been doing OK since I have been a POW. Tell everybody I said hello and keep love is still burning for you in my heart. Sometimes I feel blue just thinking of you, I just wish I could take you in my arms and squeeze you. In my heart is your heart.

And I hope you still feel the same about me as before we parted two years ago.

A Poem

I know someone who loves you, guess who?
And loves those sweet things you say and do,
He tries to tell you in his song, can't you plainly see,
The one who loves you, darling, is me.

Well, I seem to have run out of words but the next time I will make up for them.

And don't forget to tell everybody to write. Love,

Page Baylor"

The wife said that she met Private Baylor about four years before their marriage through her brother, Lorenzo. She said her husband liked to dance and play baseball.

Mother Gone

After talking with the wife, reporters returned to the home of the mother. She had gone out.

However, young Theodora remarked after an inquiry:

"If Page is married, he didn't want anybody in the family to know it."

When asked to see one of the latest letters she had received from her son, the mother said: "They will be difficult to find."

The Letter

However, she stated that her son's letters were usually very short and the last one read:

"I am well and getting plenty of food. Pray for me and I will be home."

Private Baylor, 25, volunteered for the army and was attached to the infantry when he was captured Nov. 28, 1950. He had been in Korea about a month at the time.

'This Is His Home'

His mother says that she is planning a big family reunion when he returns. Private Baylor has six brothers, two of whom are in the armed forces, and two sisters.

The wife asserted: "I am going to give him a reception when he gets home; and this is his home. I have been getting an allotment of $91.38 a month to keep it for him."

portunity for all qualified persons employed or seeking employment on government contracts because such persons are entitled to fair and equitable treatments in all aspects of employment on work paid for from public funds.

Elmer W. Henderson, director of American Council on Human Rights asserted:

"We are gratified that president Eisenhower has recreated the government committee to enforce the non-discrimination clause in all federal contracts. The new order is in some respects stronger than that issued by President Truman. We will cooperate with the committee to help assure its full effectiveness."

Walter White, executive secretary of the NAACP, said: "The President's action merits the gratitude of thousands who are use their high skill in the mills or factories that hold government contracts.

"He has reaffirmed the important principle that those who do business with the United States shall not refuse employment to qualified persons solely because of race, religion or national origin."

"This move of the chief executive is a challenge to Congress to erase discrimination in all other major industries by passing a Fair Employment Practice bill."

cil mentioned only an "Officer Trott" but the AFRO learned that two officers, brothers, were involved — Officers Robert Trott and Henry Trott, both white.

J. Franklin Bourne, Washington attorney, submitted the affidavits to the City Council. The Council, passed a motion, made Monday night by Alderman T. Norwood Brown and seconded by Alderman Roscoe C. Parker, both colored, requesting a probe.

A meeting was held Tuesday morning in Mayor Pilington's office attended by Police Commissioner George W. Rawlings, members of the council's police committee; Alderman Parker Brown and Robert H. Campbell; City Attorney James B. Wright and Mr. Bourne.

Commissioner Rawlings said Wednesday that he was investigating the case but withheld police details on the matter pending the magistrate's hearing.

Mr. Bourne said Thursday he had heard nothing since Commissioner Rawlings said he would be in Annapolis today (Friday). He has expressed a preference for a departmental investigation instead of a court action.

In her affidavit Mrs. Roberts, 29, said she was arguing with a roomer in her house Friday afternoon when the latter called police.

Mr. Bourne identified the roomer as a Mary Matthews.

Mrs. Roberts said she told the officer the roomer had tried to "stand her down" and he told her to "stand there." She said she said her husband across the street and called to him and that the officer grabbed her in the back, "slung me around" and struck her with his nightstick.

She claimed when she protested he told her to "shut up" and struck her with the nightstick again."

At the pawnshop, Mrs. Roberts charged, the officer "slung me through the front glass window, breaking it," put handcuffs on her and carried her to a police car.

She said she was later taken to the hospital where stitches were taken in a cut over her left eye, then later to police headquarters where she was eventually released.

Mr. Roberts, 23, charged in his affidavit, that when he saw the officer beating his wife he walked across the street to protest.

He claimed he was pushed into a police car, and "kicked in the side." Later at the police station he claims he was struck on the jaw when he fell to the floor each time and while down kicked in the ribs three times.

Mr. Roberts charged that later he was told to go home as there were no charges.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Roberts did not learn until they filed their affidavits with the council that charges had been placed against them.

Mr. Bourne told the AFRO that Mrs. Roberts had to have "one or eleven" stitches in her injuries and that Mr. Roberts was treated by a private physician.

A meeting concerning the case was scheduled to be held Wednesday night by the local branch NAACP and another civic organization is upset over the case, the AFRO learned.

Mr. Bourne has contended that the situation involved charges of "gross misconduct" on the part of two police officers, charges which, if sustained, amounted to criminal acts.

He said there was a question as to whether they should remain on active duty pending final action on the case. He said he would rather the police department look into the situation than seek criminal warrants against the officers.

Neither Mr. Roberts nor his wife has any criminal record.

Secretary tied up in office robbery

Northeastern district police continued their search Thursday, for two holdup men who entered a former police magistrate's office Wednesday and trussed up his secretary prior to ransacking two rooms.

Before leaving the scene of their intended holdup empty handed, the duo tied up Miss Sarah Collins, 32, secretary to Stanley Paul, and forced her to lie on the floor while they searched the rooms.

The bandits entered the law offices at 1315 Orleans st., and demanded money. While one covered the secretary with a silver plated revolver, the other climbed upon a chair and bolted over a five foot partition that separated the desk from an anteroom. Miss Collins was alone at the time.

After tying her hands behind her back with strips of bed sheeting, the two men went through office drawers but were unable to find any money. Following their departure, Miss Collins struggled to a nearby window and called for help.

She described both men as young. One she declared wore a sport shirt and khaki trousers and needed a shave. The other she described as being dressed in dark clothing.

Md. Court of Appeals rules gambling raid was illegal

The Maryland Court of Appeals has ruled that a raid on a Howard County private club, in August 1952, was illegal and ordered a new trial for the club owner.

Before the appellant court's decision, Edward (Pip) Wanner had been found guilty by a jury of five gambling counts and two liquor violations. He had been sentenced to 1½ months in jail and fined $500.

Due to lack of supporting evidence, the Appeals Court's decision amounts to a virtual dismissal.

The raid, conducted August 31, was in response to a complaint filed by a Rev. Moore, who lived across the road from the Nipwa club.

When the minister called police, complaining of loud noises coming from the club grounds, a State police trooper, a county police sergeant and a local justice of the peace arrived at the scene.

Enter Club Grounds

The state trooper peered through a fence surrounding the property and saw about 50 people of both races "milling around."

The two police officers then entered the grounds and started arresting every one in the place for disturbing the peace. At sight of the uniforms, however, about 100 persons fled in the near-by woods.

Thirty-eight persons were arrested. When more officers arrived on the scene, Justice of the Peace Sasser fixed collateral and signed arrest warrants on the spot.

The trooper's point, as delivered by Chief Justice Simon Sobeloff, said in part:

"It is established that a breach of peace is such a misdemeanor as will authorize entry by the police upon private premises.

"There is a split authority as to what constitutes a breach of the peace. Some decisions tend to broaden the definition by including any violation of order or decorum, and hold that fighting or rioting or show or threat of violence is not an essential element.

Cites Common Law

"But we think the better rule is that of the common law which required evidence of an affray, actual violence, or conduct trending to or provocative of violence by others.

"We hold that the entrance of the police on the appellant's lawn and then into the house and the seizures made were illegal. We have no occasion to consider whether if the entry on the lawn had been legal the search could lawfully have been extended to the house.

"As there is no sufficient evidence independent of the discoveries made in the search to warrant a verdict of guilty, the judgement will be reversed."

In Business 3 Weeks

According to neighbors the Nipwa club had been in business approximately four weeks when raided. It was situated almost 50 feet from the main road practically hidden from view.

One of the attractions was a 27½ by 10½ dance pavilion. Two green shacks nearby, housed gambling devices.

Also found on the premises were two well-stocked bars, small fish pond, barbecue pit, gambling table, and an electric warning system.

—Gospel tent

1800 block W. Mulberry st., was reported in serious condition Thursday.

Charged with shooting May, having a deadly weapon and discharging a firearm is George A. Blackburn, 18, who gave his address as the gospel tent.

Blackburn reportedly arrived in Baltimore last week from Detroit, Mich., and, having no place to stay, was given permission to stay at the tent site by an official of the Seventh Day Adventist church, sponsors of evangelistic services being held in the tent by the Rev Billy Robinson's Crusade

Slept In Tent

The youth was sleeping in one of the smaller tents provided for a caretaker of the grounds.

The shooting occurred about 5:30 p.m., hours before services were due to begin.

May told Police Sgt. Andrew John and Officer John Brawner that he had been wounded accidentally "by a friend at the tent meeting."

According to May, Blackburn exhibited the gun and, when asked by May to let him look it over, removed three bullets from the gun. Thinking it then unloaded, Blackburn pulled the trigger, May said.

The resulting shot struck May in the right wrist and abdomen.

Held In $3,000 Bail

Blackburn was ordered held in $3,000 bail pending a hearing in Northwestern police court following May's recovery. He was unable to post bail and was taken to City Jail.

The Rev. Mr. Robinson, Thursday, disclaimed any responsibility for Blackburn.

"He was not one of our group," the minister said. "I just saw him around, like I see a lot of others."

He added that his crusaders were nevertheless willing "to help him any way we can."

He did not indicate what plans he had for aiding the jailed youth, however.

The crusade, which arrived here from Pennsylvania, has been in the city six weeks and will be here for an indefinite period, the Rev. Mr. Robinson said.
