Hubby good 'til payday, wife charges

There's a Northwest Baltimore matron who dreads to see her husband's payday come around.

She's Mrs. Lillian Salter, 1300 block Pennsylvania Ave. Every time her soldier hubby gets paid, he goes on a wine-drinking spree, which results in a grand finale of chasing her through the house with a butcher knife, she charged.

The husband, Pvt. Julius Salter, stationed at Ft. Meade, getpaid once a month. Married only nine months, Mrs. Salter gotired of this monthly terror and had him arrested July 4.

Good 'Til Payday

"He's a good husband every day except payday," Mrs. Salter complained to Magistrate E. Everett Lane, Monday, in Northwestern Police Court.

Pvt. Salter could give no reason for his conduct.

Placing the man on probation without a verdict, Judge Lane warned that he would "put Pvt. Salter away for a while" if he "stages another scene" next month.

Probe reveals pact between NYC police and Justice Dep't to violate civil rights

WASHINGTON (NNPA)—The "agreement" of former Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan of New York City with the Justice Department, purporting to hold off FBI investigation of police-brutality cases in New York City until the New York Police Department had investigated each case for itself was never accepted as binding at the policy level here.

That is one of the findings of the House Judiciary subcommittee which conducted a stormy investigation of the Justice Department. The report, covering the investigations, was released by the committee Wednesday.

Among the witnesses who testified in support of the charges that an agreement had been effected between the Justice Department and the New York Police Department, providing that FBI agents would not investigate complaints of violations of Federal civil rights were Rep. Adam C. Powell Jr. (Dem.) and Jacob K. Javits (Rep.), both of New York.

No Harm Found

"The truth about this matter is not as distressing as the initial charges," the report states. "And fortunately little practical harm seems to have flowed from the episode."

The report states that the subcommittee, headed by Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (Rep., N.Y.), was "satisfied that there was discussion of an understanding or agreement which would have affected federal investigations of civil-rights violations.

"Such an agreement," the report asserts, "would have been an improper, and possibly criminal breach of duty by the high-ranking justice officer and the police officials of New York City who initiated it, if it had been carried out."

Balked By Subordinates

"Its vicious potentialities were largely defeated by the good judgment of subordinate personnel within the department and the forthright actions" of former Attorney General James P. McGranery and Deputy Attorney General William F. Rogers, "when the affair finally came to their attention," the report states.

The report recites that shortly after taking office in 1951, Monaghan became concerned "over the low morale of his 20,000-man force."

It says the "morale problem was intensified by disclosures of police graft and corruption" and "further aggravated by an FBI investigation of charges of police brutality against one of his officers named Ryan."

McGrath Approached

While the Ryan case was under investigation, Monaghan approached former Attorney General J. Howard McGrath in an effort to minimize friction between the FBI and the New York Police Department. McGrath referred him to James M. McInerney, then assistant attorney general in charge of the Criminal Division.

McInerney on July 11, 1952, after agreeing in a conference with Deputy Attorney General Myles J. Lane in New York City to drop charges against Ryan, participated in a conference with Lane, Monaghan's first deputy, Frank Firstenkp, and Chief Inspector Conrad Rothengast.

At this conference the police department representatives urged that in future police-brutality cases the FBI should not initiate an investigation until the police department had completed its own investigation and submitted a report to the Justice Department.

Said To Be Willing

McInerney is reported to have replied that he would be willing to give the arrangement a trial when another brutality case arose.

Such a case arose out of an incident on the night of Aug. 9, 1952. A complaint of police brutality was made to the FBI on Sept. 10, and the FBI undertook a preliminary investigation.

On the basis of the preliminary investigation the FBI decided that a prima facie case of violation of the civil rights of a colored man had been made against the officer, and the FBI was requested to make a full investigation.

Refuses Questioning

Assistant United States Attorney Daniel H. Greenberg on Nov. 12, 1952, requested formal permission for FBI agents to question certain police officers.

Monaghan refused, claiming that he had an "agreement" that this would not be done, and urged Greenberg to hold up the FBI investigation until a report on the case could be prepared and submitted by Monaghan's own staff.

Monaghan said he would not allow his men to be questioned by FBI agents under any circumstances and that the United States attorney would have to subpoena them before a grand jury if he wished to get information from them.

Held To Agreement

Monaghan would not budge from this position—even after Attorney General McGranery reputed the purported agreement on Jan. 12, 1952, to the moment Deputy Attorney General Rogers told him in Washington on Feb. 16, 1952, that no compromise with the department's rights in such cases would be tolerated.

Rogers became Deputy Attorney General after the Eisenhower Administration took over. After his conference with Rogers, Monaghan gave assurances that he would cooperate fully with federal authorities in police-brutality cases. Monaghan is now New York State Harness Racing Commissioner.

The incident which brought the matter to a head involved a colored man named Jackson, who was arrested in a street altercation.

According to hospital reports, Jackson was so severely beaten that radical surgery was necessary to remove a brain clot caused by concussion.

Violation Of Rights

The report states that former Assistant Attorney General McInerney should have consulted the attorney general before attempting to establish as Justice Department policy the "experiment" which he had discussed with New York police officials.

The report also asserts that the "agreement" would have been technically a violation of the federal civil rights statute, which punishes conspiracies to deprive persons of their rights.

"It carries with it a penalty of a $5,000 fine or one-year-in prison, if it had been shown that the principals entered into it with intent to deprive citizens of New York City of their protections under the Fourteenth Amendment.

Ezzard Charles honored at fete

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Ezzard Charles, former world's heavyweight champion, was honored at a testimonial here Wednesday night in the Village Room of Hotel Alms.

The occasion also marked Ezzard's birthday. Ed Kennedy served as chairman of the committee in charge, and Henry Lenoir was secretary.

Gets 15 months on two charges

The testimony of two attractive young ladies sent Steve Gary, 25, of the 2000 block Rayner Ave., to the House of Correction for 15 months on Thursday, on a separate charges of larceny and assault.

First to testify in Northwestern police court was Miss Carrie Holmes of the 300 block N. Fulton Ave., a barmaid in a tavern on Payson near Lauretta Ave. She told Magistrate E. Everett Lane she saw Gary walk out of the tavern with approximately $25 worth of bottled liquor which he had not paid for.

Came From Basement

Miss Holmes said the liquor came from the basement storeroom of the tavern. For this charge Gary received three months.

Second person to appear against the defendant was Miss Hattie Hunt of the 800 block N. Mount St., who said Gary cut her with a knife on Feb. 26. Miss Hunt said she was hospitalized with her injuries for several weeks and required 40 stitches.

Magistrate Lane convicted Gary on the second charge and sentenced him to a year in the House of Correction.

Federal painter hurt in assault

Norman (Top) Edwards, 51, of the 1300 block Myrtle Ave. was admitted to Provident Hospital early Friday, after police found him lying near the Laurens St. near Bentalou.

An investigation by police indicated that Mr. Edwards had been beaten by four men after they had forced his automobile to the curb. When police found Mr. Edwards he was lying about 20 feet from his automobile which still had its motor running.

Mr. Edwards was reportedly on his way home from a meeting of a club, "The Ten Men" in the 2000 block Bentalou St., when the assault took place. Police are investigating the assault in the attemp to uncover a motive.

Mr. Edwards is employed by the Federal Government as a painter. He suffered injuries to his head and face.

Set nationwide drive for memorial to Alain Locke

NEW YORK — A committee has been formed here known as the Alain Locke Memorial Committee, to perpetuate the memory of Alain Leroy Locke, humanitarian and scholar, who died recently.

An executive branch of the committee, consisting of intimate friends and colleagues of the deceased, is undertaking the organization of the proposed venture on a nationwide basis.

Already active are Drs. Margaret J. Butcher, Benjamin Karpman and Robert E. Martin, all of Washington; Myron O'Higgins, New Haven; Peter Pollack, Chicago Art Institute; Richmond Barthe, sculptor and painter of Jamaica, BWI and others.

NYC Executive Body

New York City executive committee members include Ross Hawkins, a cousin of the deceased; Dr. Y. H. Krikorian of City College, Dr. William Stanley Braithwaite, poet and critic; Thomas B. Dyett, attorney; Eunice Allen, Glenn Carrington, Robert Claybrooks, Pearl Bachelin, Maurice V. Russell and Arthur Wright. The present chairman is Arthur Huff Fauset.

The committee, through its correspondents and associates, plans numerous undertakings designed to perpetuate the memory of Dr. Locke and to extend the scope of his influence and former activities.

Immediate Proposals

Immediate proposals include publications of posthumous writings, re-editing of former publications, creation of college lectureships and scholarships in his memory;

Establishing cultural units and centers in important American cities, memorial meetings and in various ways to perpetuate the memory of Alain Locke as a scholar whose interests touched the lives of all people of the nation.

The committee solicits ideas and suggestions and any personal data information letters, manuscripts relating to or created by the deceased. Communications should be addressed to the chairman or to Alain Locke Memorial Committee—12 Grove St., New York City 14.

Police continue hunt for slaying suspects

A hunt for four men wanted in connection with the slaying of a BTC employee on July 2, continued today (Friday) as police indicated that they expected to make an early arrest.

James Howard, 23, of the 1800 block Ashburton St., died at Provident Hospital a short time after police found him lying on the sidewalk in the 1600 block Baker St. bleeding from gun shot wounds of the stomach and shoulder.

An eyewitness said that Howard became involved in an argument with four men and one of them shot him.

Wilkins key figure at ILO sessions

By LOUIS LAUTIER

WASHINGTON (NNPA)—The job and the man appear to have happily met in the appointment of J. Ernest Wilkins, prominent Chicago lawyer and Methodist lay leader, as Assistant Secretary of Labor for International Labor Affairs.

Mr. Wilkins, who has been in office since March 18, has just returned from Geneva, where he attended, as one of two United States Government delegates, the 37th session of the International Labor Conference.

The conference is sponsored by the International Labor Organization, a specialized agency of the United Nations, through which employer, worker, and government representatives jointly work out solutions to the world's pressing labor and manpower problems.

Other U.S. Delegates

The other United States Government delegate was Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington. He and Mr. Wilkins had a full staff of advisers, including Assistant Attorney General Warren E. Burger.

The employers' delegate from the United States was William L. McGrath of the Williamson Heater Co., Cincinnati, and the workers' delegate was George Philip Delaney, international representative of the American Federation of Labor.

Going over his experiences at Geneva, Mr. Wilkins on Friday said the International Labor Organization (ILO) is a rather unique organization.

Unique Structure

"I do not know of any other international organization just like it because of its tripartite structure—government delegates, employers' delegates and workers' delegates."

Making the jump from Chicago courtrooms to an international conference participated in by delegates from 40 nations, Mr. Wilkins said he, in fact, attended two meetings. One was the governing board of ILO.

Prior to this year the governing board consisted of 32 members—16 government representatives, eight employer representatives, and eight workers' representatives.

Comments On Speeches

"I discovered that frequently the many speakers, each allotted 15 minutes, would talk five minutes talking about the director-general's report," said Mr. Wilkins, "and then he would talk about whatever he wanted to. That is where nations got the opportunity to throw brickbats at each other."

Mr. Wilkins served on the committees on the direct-general's report, finance, and selection. The selections committee is the steering committee of the conference and arranges the agenda for each day.

He was offered the chairmanship of one committee but turned it down because he did not want to be absent from the plenary sessions of the conference and kept from learning all of the operations of the conference.

Soviet Application

At the conference this year this unusual situation developed: Soviet Russia applied to come back into the ILO with its satellites, Ukraine and Byelo-Russia. That is another political rather than labor questions.

Under the constitution of the ILO, any member-nation of the United Nations can come into the ILO by making application and agreeing to subscribe to the ILO constitution.

The ILO constitution was amended to increase membership from 32 to 40, which required increasing government representatives from 16 to 20 and employers' and workers' delegates from eight to ten each.

Cause Of Amendment

The purpose of amending the ILO constitution was to give seats on the governing board to Japan and the Federal Republic of West Germany. When this was planned, no one knew that Russia would make application to come back into the ILO.

When Russia made application, a committee of experts evaluated and determined the ten nations of chief industrial importance. Russia was one of them because it ranked, at least third, behind the United States and the United Kingdom.

But the standing orders of the conference also had to be amended to change the composition of committees. When Russia was not put on any of the committees, quite a debate occurred. That is when Mr. Wilkins made his first speech.

Wilkins Speaks

Aiming at the Russians, he talked about nations boasting of their greatness and forgetting the objectives of the ILO.

Talking of that first experience Friday, he said he discovered that the Russians are very emotional and all one has to do is come behind them and be quite calm in his statements. The vote against the Russians was overwhelming.

Mr. Wilkins' second speech concerned giving voting rights to delegates from Nationalist China, which owes five years in arrears on its obligations to the ILO.

Talks On China

Mr. Wilkins reported that the Nationalist China delegates were seated in the conference without difficulty, but to give them voting rights required a two-thirds vote in both the finance committee and the conference.

The ILO constitution provided that nations two years in arrears on payments of financial obligations cannot vote.

Nationalist China failed to get a two-thirds vote in the finance committee for voting rights: Twelve of 13 nations joined with the United States in a motion to amend the report of the finance committee to give Nationalist China the right to vote.

Takes Part In Debate

In the debate over that resolution Mr. Wilkins took a leading part because the United States was particularly interested in seeing that Nationalist China was not allowed to vote in the conference.

That was the only situation in the conference where the committee report was upset by a two-thirds vote. Asked how he had been received in the Labor Department since President Eisenhower appointed him, Mr. Wilkins said:

Relations Fine

"My relations here have been fine. There has not been a single instance that I have been able to track down where anybody has shown any resentment at my presence around here."

He added that not only had Labor Department employees been very pleasant but that members of one or two inter-departmental committees on which he has served "have been just nothing short of remarkable."

FAMILY IN GERMANY

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Capt. James H. Murray 2nd, Army chaplain, and his wife, Mrs. Mae Vernea Sanders Murray, of Houston, Texas, with their two children, James 3rd, and Malvena, are now in Germany.

NACW in new $72,000 home

After two years of shopping for larger quarters, the National Association of Colored Women moved into their new home last week.

The spacious five-story building, located at 1601 R St., NW, is a "great improvement" over the old headquarters at 1114 O St., NW. Mrs. La Ursa Snelson Hedrick, headquarters secretary, told the AFRO enthusiastically.

The association, which has grown rapidly in the past several years, bought the new headquarters building from the Washington Knights of Columbus, at a cost of $72,000, Mrs. Hedrick said.

"We needed more room to accommodate receptions, banquets, and other social affairs," the secretary explained during a tour of the building.

Busy In Office

Already busy at work in their new office were Mrs. Ruby Kendrick, public relations manager for the National Association; Miss Faire Scarville, clerk-typist; Mrs. Winsome Robotham, stenographer, and June gradu ate of Howard University; and Mrs. Hedrick.

The office is situated on the first floor where a lounge and several all-purpose rooms are located.

Downstairs, where the natural ventilation is as cool as if air-conditioned, the basement has marble floors, and several recreation rooms.

Log-Cabin Lamps

In the main recreation room, log-cabin lamps perch atop the walls, throwing light through globes fashioned like kerosene lamp chimneys.

The rooms are furnished with red leather covered steel chairs, and red topped tables. A TV set, cooking facilities, and two lavatories, are located down-stairs.

The basement compartment will accomodate approximately 150 persons.

On the second floor, an auditorium, graced with low hanging chandeliers, will seat approximately 250 persons.

Living Quarters

On the third floor are living quarters for Mrs. Hedrick, a suite for Mrs. Ifene M. Gaines, of Chicago, president of the National association, and a swank club room, furnished with light tan and striped lounging chairs.

The fourth and fifth floors consist of rooms which will be rented as living quarters to students and professional or business women.

The association is a non-profit corporation with some 100,000 members in 44 states, Hawaii and Haiti.

Its motto is: "Lifting as we climb." The group boasts that it is the oldest organization of its kind in the world.

Grandma, segregation foe, seeking Ga. governorship

ATLANTA — A 44-year-old white grandmother, Sunday school teacher and Atlanta lawyer has entered the race for governor of Georgia on an anti-segregation platform, subject to the September 8 primary.

The crusading attorney is Mrs. Grace W. Thomas who pledges herself to "work toward orderly compliance with Supreme Court decisions and to seek unity in working out our problems."

Part Of 10-Point Platform

After paying her $500 entry fee, Mrs. Thomas told newsmen that she would outline her anti-segregation platform in greater detail as the campaign progresses. She qualified just before the deadline.

The anti-segregation phase is part of a 10-point platform which also includes battling communism, better education for all children in Georgia, increased welfare assistance, lower taxes and "greater emphasis on the individual under God."

All of the other eight candidates in the Democratic primary race are pledged to fight implementation of the U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in the nation's public schools.

One of them, Arthur Neesen, broke into a circle of reporters interviewing Mrs. Thomas to declare: "I just want to put you on notice that I am in this to the finish and I will not permit the white race to be sold out."

Unruffled, dignified and amiable, Mrs. Thomas replied to her antagonist — who had been completely ignored by the newspapers—"You are entitled to your views."

Mrs. Thomas has two daughters and a two-year-old grandson. She teaches Sunday school in First Baptist Church here.

Federal worker held in larceny case

Mrs. Doris Holmes, 42, of the 2700 block Gwynns Falls Parkway, who described herself as an employee at the Baltimore Signal Depot, was ordered held in $1,000 bail on a larceny charge Thursday afternoon.

She was accused of the larceny of various items of clothing valued at $300 from Naomi M. Speed of the 2300 block Ashburton St. on March 13.

Magistrate E. Everett Lane set bail in Northwestern police court and ordered Mrs. Holmes held for a further hearing on July 13.

Plan ouster of sociologist

Wilberforce board to discuss issues

WILBERFORCE, Ohio—A report that the board of trustees of Wilberforce University will soon meet to discuss the reported issue over Mrs. Helen Baile, white sociology teacher, was confirmed this week, from an undisclosed source.

According to students attending the university, now in New York for the summer holidays, Mrs. Baile, who is said to be a Unitarian, has been continually making derogatory remarks about the AME Church as well of the bishops, and the school as a whole.

It was further learned that when the board of trustees meet, expected to be within a fortnight, the "issue" will be thoroughly discussed, and Mrs. Baile will be asked to resign, and if this request is denied, she will then be dropped from the faculty.

Grave Concern

Earlier newspaper reports stated that, the Rt. Rev. Alexander Allen, presiding bishop of the Third Episcopal District, Cleveland, Ohio, who is chairman of the board of trustees of the University, "had expressed grave concern over the dispute" which was said to be between Dr. Charles L. Hill, president of Wilberforce and the Rt. Rev. D. Ward Nichols, presiding bishop of the First District, New York, the vice-chairman of the board of trustees.

The dispute, it was reported, came about when Bishop Nichols had requested the dismissal of Mrs. Baile by the president, to which Dr. Hill had refused.
