Fine backs changes in compensation law

Several changes in the Maryland Workmen's Compensation Law were recommended on Tuesday by Melvin Fine, chairman of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

In a talk delivered at a meeting of the Frontiers Club at the YMCA, Mr. Fine advocated the removal of a ceiling on the amount of awards for injuries, the setting up of tighter safety regulations and the establishment of a state-paid panel of lawyers to represent workmen at compensation hearings.

Under the present law, Mr. Fine said, $12,500 is the average award given for total disability or death due to an industrial accident. This, he said, is not enough to compensate for the loss of a man's ability to earn a livelihood.

While paying tribute to the work accomplished by the safety inspectors employed by the Commission, Mr. Fine said their work could be more productive if they were placed in a separate state safety agency.

According to Mr. Fine, a number of the workmen who appear before the Commission do not have legal representation and he recommended that the state supply these persons with lawyers in order that their rights will be safeguarded.

In tracing the development of the Workmen's Compensation Law from 1914 to the present, Mr. Fine said that during the first year the law was in operation, $400,000 was awarded in claims with claimants receiving an average of $7 a week.

Last year $12,000,000 was awarded in claims with claimants receiving and average of $32 a week, he said.

Choir singer appears as wife gets summons

The troubles of choir - singer Albert Muldrow of the 900 block W. Boyd St. and his attractive wife, reached Northwestern police court on Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Muldrow had her husband summoned before Magistrate E. Everett Lane to complain that her mate assault her, stayed out late at nights, refused to give her any money, brought his clothes home with lipstick on them, and ordered her not to go to church.

Mr. Muldrow, who said he was a member of three choirs at Morning Star Baptist Church, came back with the claim that his wife's charges were motivated by jealousy and explained that his late hours were caused by an extra job and choir rehearsals.

'Pushed Down Steps'

Mrs. Muldrow told Magistrate Lane that the latest assault came last week when her husband allegedly pushed her down the steps.

Mr. Muldrow admitted he might have pushed his wife but explained that she was using an axe to break into a room in their house which he was occupying at the time.

After listening to the stories from both parties, Magistrate Lane asked them both to attend Reswoman Violet Hill Whyte and promised that his actions in the matter would be guided by her recommendation.

Loyally case tenants pay higher rent

Called to court, Duprees follow lawyer's advice

Arthur Dupree, principal in the housing tenant loyalty-pledge case, appeared in People's Court this week.

Mr. Dupree was summoned to court because he had refused to pay the new $33 per month rent asked for his 3-room apartment in the Douglass Housing Project.

Therefore the rent was $26 per month. The Duprees offered this amount but they balked at the increased rent which the Housing Authority said was based on a rent adjustment system for welfare department clients.

The Duprees, however, maintain that they are not welfare department clients. Unemployed for eight months, Mr. Dupree receives a $25-a-week unemployment compensation check while his wife's monthly income is $27.72.

Seek Reduced Rent

They contend, that with this family income their rent should be reduced instead of increased.

No hearing was held Tuesday when Mr. Dupree attended People's Court.

Instead, he was advised by Harold Buckman, his attorney, to pay the increased rent and let him check with the Housing Authority to see if its rent schedule for this particular family is improper and if they are due a refund.

Mr. Dupree returned home and followed these instructions.

Facing Eviction

The family includes his wife, Mrs. George Ann Dupree and four children, all under six years of age.

At present, the family faces eviction as of August 31 for failure to sign the loyalty pledge which is required by law of all tenants in public housing projects.

It is a statement of non-membership in a subversive organization.

The Duprees are the only one of the Housing Authority's 7,000 tenant families who have refused to sign the oath.

Reason, according to Mrs. Dupree is that "God forbids it if we were to sign the pledge we would be breaking the First Commandment. 'Thou shall have no other gods before me.'

"If we were to sign the pledge, we would seem to be worshiping some other God—man, in other words."

Of Baptist Faith

The Duprees are of the Baptist faith, but are not connected with any particular local church.

Mr. Dupree said that when they were asked to sign the loyalty pledge they were refused a copy of the form so they could study it.

He said "If you sign something like that, people can add anything they want to over your signature."

Weather

have their own air conditioning units and others loaded up the back of their cars with cool drinks and bathing suits and headed for Beechwood, Carr's and Sparrow's Beach.

Strangely enough the city-operated pool in Druid Hill Park had only 843 customers on Wednesday as compared to the usual average of 1,000 for a sizzling day, according to Robert W. [illegible] supervisor.

Mrs. Marie Edwards of 1721 W. Lafayette Ave., a dress-maker, has her own answer for the weather:

"I keep busy but I don't do any really taxing work. I am a dressmaker and when it gets warm I find the coolest spot in the house and begin to sew.

"When I do this I forget about the weather. A cool glass of lemonade helps too."

Ice Water Fan

Mrs. Carrie Chester, a housewife of 1328 N. Fremont Ave., has this advice:

"I drink plenty of ice water and relax. If it gets too warm I use ice packs on my forehead to keep cool."

Mrs. Grace Fauntleroy, 1928 Harlem Ave., says her way to beat the heat is:

"To keep my mind off the heat by doing something. Principally it's a psychological thing."

Booker Knowles, a [illegible] of 1411 Division St., says that he does nothing about the heat, he just accepts it.

Low Humidity

The principal factor that kept Baltimoreans from suffering any more from the heat than they did was the humidity which stayed under 35 per cent during the hottest part of the heat spell.

As a wise and unsung man once remarked, "It ain't the heat it's the humidity."

When the amount of moisture in the air begins to rise on a hot day it leaves the average person feeling as if they were in a sticky steam bath.

Perhaps the happiest people in the city this week were the purveyors of ice, snowballs, and other cooling refreshments. They did a land office business.

Eight persons linked to huge lottery ring

Bail totaling $38,000 was set on Wednesday in Southern police court for eight people linked to the operation of a multi-million dollar lottery ring.

Vice Squad officers said the lottery ring had its headquarters at 1 Mona in the 600 block of S. Hanover St., and was doing an annual business of $2,500,000, making it one of the largest numbers operation in the city.

Ordered held for the grand jury on lottery and conspiracy charges were:

Miss Maria Cooper, 35, of the 600 block S. Hanover St.

John Reaves, 49, of the 500 block E. Biddle St.

Mrs. Rose Midgett, 47, of the 600 block W. Conway St.

Henry Bradley, 21, of the 500 block N. Bentalou St.

Joseph Berry, 52, of the 500 block S. Hanover St.

Seven of the defendants were arrested in a raid on the Hanover St. house on June 26 conducted by the Vice Squad and led by Lt. Joseph Byrnes and Sgt. Arthur McGee. Miss Cooper was arrested several days later.

Under Suspicion

According to Sergeant McGee the house had aroused the suspicions of Southern district policemen several months before the actual raid. The house was placed under observation and about June 1, Capt. Frank Deems, commander of the Southern district, asked the Vice Squad to take over.

The shift was made because of the belief that the Southern district policemen who were watching the house had become too well known, to be effective and "new faces" were needed.

After additional observation of the house and the people who visited it, the Vice Squad obtained a search and seizure
