Who's oldest AFRO reader?

Aug. 3rd deadline to collect $25

Who has been a reader of the AFRO-AMERICAN longest?

There's a $25 cash award waiting for him or her.

All he has to do to collect his prize is to bring in an issue of the AFRO which is over 15 years old. The AFRO has been published continually in Baltimore for 62 years.

o o o

THIS CASH AWARD was inspired by a leadership survey of this newspaper which was prepared by Dr. Charles Allen of the Medill School of Journalism and published last week.

This survey showed that 81 per cent of Baltimoreans who buy the AFRO have been doing so for more than five years.

Two of the persons reached by the survey staff have been regular readers for 40-45 years.

o o o

THERE MUST BE some readers who have been buying this newspaper for over 45 years. We're looking for the one who has been a reader longer.

A $25 cash award is waiting for that reader of 46 years or more, assuming that he has been buying the AFRO longest. Will he be a reader of 50 years, duration, 55 years, 60 years?

He should bring his copy of the oldest AFRO to City Desk before noon, Tuesday, Aug. 3.

HURT BY BRICKS—Miss Christine Webb, 19, of the 1300 block Eremont Ave., was injured Tuesday evening by falling bricks, when a wall collasped in the 1300 block Eremont Avenue.

New found friend caught robbing 'pal' of salary

A plea for help while being robbed of his money by a friend in a parked car in the 1300 block Harlem Ave. saved Roswell Neeley, 400 block N. Carrollton St., most of his week's salary, Friday.

After downing a few drinks Mr. Neeley, Plater stated, got into a friend's car to sleep. But he awoke when he felt someone going through his pockets.
