HYMN OF THE MONTH

GO TO THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE THIS SUNDAY

AND JOIN IN WITH YOUR FAVORITE CHOIR SINGING THIS INSPIRATIONAL HYMN

ALL I NEED
Jesus Christ is made to me, All I need, all I need;
He alone, is all my plea, He is all I need.
Jesus is my all in all, All I need, all I need;
While He keeps me I cannot fall, He is all I need.
He redeemed me when He died, All I need, all I need;
I with Him was crucified, He is all I need.
To my Savior will I cleave, All I need, All I need;
He will not His servant leave, He is all I need.
He's the treasurer of my soul, All I need, all I need;
He hath cleansed and made me whole, He is all I need.
Glory, glory to the Lamb, All I need, all I need;
By His Spirit sealed I am, He is all I need.
Wisdom, righteousness and pow'r, Holiness forevermore,
My redemption full and sure, He is all I need.

WORDS To Live By

Holy Bible

by REV. R. T. NEWBOLD
Pastor, Grace Presbyterian Church

Do you ever have the "blues?" Discouragement, disappointment and loss are a few reasons why one finds himself in this state.

Christianity offers no immunity against this. However, it does provide a prescription for it, the record of the Judeo - Christian tradition contains many examples of those who experienced this.

The writer of the Psalms, the Israelites, Hosea and others provide us with good examples. The psalmists, especially, offer helpful suggestions.

ONE DAY one asked himself the sobering question: "Why art thou cast down, O my soul and why art thou disquieted within me?"

Such interrogation reveals that there was an individual who recognized he had the "blues"; and moreover, he was trying to face up to the reason for the same.

Frequently one hears a friend express this lament, "I feel 'blue' today. I don't know why." The great regret is, sometimes the friend dismisses the matter at this point. He is not interested in finding out why. Not so with the psalmist!

HE WANTED to find out why. Many of us become so concerned about the feelings of the moment until we fail to look beyond them for the reason.

Yet, it is unquestionably true that we only begin to help ourselves as we are willing to face causes as well as effects.

Considering the question of the psalmist further, we discover that, at least by inimation, he was looking within himself for the cause of his despondency — "the blues."

Many of our contemporary problems would disappear if more individuals would take this type of approach.

Oftimes the cause of the "blues" is not in the act of separation from a loved one; but, rather in our own immaturity.

IT IS NOT always in our loss of a treasured friendship or possession; but, rather in our own selfishness. Julius Caesar spoke truth when he said to Brutus:

The fault, dear Brutus,
is not in our stars,
But in ourselves.

Indeed many of the reasons why we have the "blues" are not in our environment, family constellation, nor "the spirit of our times." They are in us.

The challenging final suggestion from the psalmist is that he refused to remain in the clutches of despair.

AFTER FACING up to his problem and examining himself to discover how much of the fault was within, he recognized his need of a power outside of himself.

He acknowledged the need of assistance from a power beyond man.

Said he: "Hope thou in God." Do you ever think of God when you have the "blues"? Or do you realize God is thinking about you when you have the "blues"?

Many do not, thus despair captures them. They seem to believe they have to go it alone. But, they do not. For God's concern, interest and love are ever directed to his children.

Because they are, the individual can find relief and release in following the example of the psalmist in directing his hopes and expectations to God.

Donut Co. strike enters second week

22 women on picket line list complaints

Charges that sometime they worked 15 to 16 hours a day without breaks and that they were sometimes called back to work at 1 a.m. and 2 a.m. were made by women on the picket line outside the Duncan Donut Co., Inc., Aisquith near Chase this week.

The women, who say their starting wage was 75 cents an hour, are on strike asking for union recognition with Local No. 68 of the Bakery and Confectionery workers.

The plant hires 27 women and six men. All but five of the women and one man have been out on strike since July 20.

ASKED WHAT kind of work they did, the women declared they operated air pressure machines that regulate the size of the donuts. The machines, they said, had no safety catches on them.

They were also required, they said, to lift 100-pound bags of flour, load trucks, lift heavy cases, pack, cleanup during breaks, pull skids (pump trucks with 20-10 pound bags of flour), wash windows and clean out the big grease pots.

The women also stated that that they really had no special job and were required to stand up to the machines all day.

(Editor's Note: Maryland law requires that companies must have seating facilities for women and that they must not work more than eight hours a day if any part of the work is done before 6 a.m. and after 10 p.m. The only other limitation is that they must not work more than 10 hours a day or 60 hours a week.)

The Duncan Donut Co., Inc., is owned by the Capital Bakers, Inc. of Harrisburg, Pa. Local plant manager, Dave Dellago, refused to comment on the strike.

A CHECK with Mrs. Margaret Kimble, labor commissioner of the Maryland Department of Labor and Industry, revealed that her department had made an inspection of the company on the same day the strike began.

J. A. Penello, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, said a hearing had been set for Aug. 4 to determine if the board should order an election.

E. J. Ehrlich, commissioner of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, declared that his group had no notice of the strike. "If one was filed with us, we would investigate."

Meanwhile, some 10 persons have been hired by the company as replacements. Police escort them to work across the picket line and take them home at the end of the day.

UNDER GUARD—New workers hired by the Duncan Donut Co., Aisquith near Chase St., cross the picket line on leaving work with police escort.

Rights Bills Aired

Congress scored for Backward role

WASHINGTON — Congress was taken to task for its backward role in civil rights by witnesses testifying before Subcommittee No. 2 of the House Judiciary Committee, Wednesday.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Thomas Lane (Dem., Mass.) concluded a series of hearings on 51 bills involving civil rights.

The witnesses, especially Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP, and Will Maslow, director of the American Jewish Congress, strongly supported the omnibus bill introduced by Rep. Adam C. Powell (Dem., N.Y.) and a measure to strengthen the civil rights program of the Justice Department.

"APPARENTLY THERE was no agreement on the part of Democrats to avoid the issue of civil rights. A similar code of rules had prevailed in the 83rd Congress under Republican control," Mr. Wilkins commented:

"The question of whether housing and education grants or activities of the Federal government should be free from the taint of racial segregation has presented a dilemma for many men and women of good will in Congress.

"They have seen the over-riding human, need for better schools, more housing and more hospitals. Yet, they are ever conscious of the possibility that some southern members of Congress may face political doom if these bills pass with anti-segregation safeguards included.

"The real reason some oppose such amendments is because it is thought they might kill the prospects of some senators and representatives when they come up for re-election."

MR. WILKINS continued that until the civil rights bills become law, the NAACP would continue "to seek remedies against unfair and unlawful treatment via the amendment process."

He indicated that the measures involving making the civil rights section a division in the Justice Department and bill which would guarantee and protect the right of everyone to vote rated high priority with the NAACP.

Rep. E. L. Forrester (Dem., Ga.) accused Judge David Rose, chairman of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, with not being "tolerant" with the people of Georgia.

The Georgia congressman's concern stemmed from Judge Ross's statement:

"By strengthening old civil rights acts, Congress could make it crystal-clear that wilful violation of the right of school children to equality of education without segregation is a federal offense."

REPRESENTATIVE Forrester asked:

"Are you saying judge, that a state would not have the right to abolish its public school system?"

Judge Rose answered that it would depend upon whether the abolition of the school system was a "subterfuge" to circumvent the Supreme Court decision.

THE CONGRESSMAN persisted several times along the same line by asking the witness:

"What you want is a law that would prohibit Georgia from abolishing its public school system, isn't that right?"

JUDGE ROSE retorted:

"Why does Georgia want to abolish its public school system?"

REPRESENTATIVE Forrester angrily continued:

"Answer my question, yes or no. I have asked you nine times for an answer, isn't this measure designed to punish the state of Georgia?"

"No, it isn't. It is designed to counteract moves in any state whether it be Georgia, South Carolina, or even Massachusetts from defying the law of the land," Judge Rose answered.

JOHN GUNTHER, representing ADA, termed as "brazen political hypocracy" the failure of both parties to fulfill campaign pledges on civil rights legislation.

"The problems involved in obtaining enactment of civil rights legislation are difficult ones, but they must be faced up to," said Al Hartnett, secretary-treasurer of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO).

"The obvious evils and inequalities of racial segregation in education, housing, travel and employment make it imperative that there be a Federal legislative mandate sounding its destruction for all time," said Aubrey E. Robinson, director, American Council on Human Relations.

THE NEED for Federal fair employment legislation was cited by William Oliver, UAW-CIO. He pointed out that the unemployment rate of non-white workers is twice as high as among white workers.

Rep. Charles A. Boyle (Dem., Mass.), Representative Forrester, Rep. Usher L. Burdick (Rep. N.D.), and Representative Lane heard the witnesses.

Co. seniors excell in critical thinking

A high percentage of graduates from Baltimore County's Banneker, Carver and Sollers Point High Schools—now shaping careers in the workaday world or looking forward to college this fall—should do very well in their chosen spheres of activity.

This outlook is based upon results, announced today by county school authorities, of a 1,818 members of this year's county graduating class of these, some 100 were graduated from Banneker, Carver and Sollers Point.

Known as the Watson-Glaser Critical Thinking Appraisal, the test had previously been given to 5,476 students from 53 schools located in 24 states.

WHERE NATION-WIDE results indicate that some 541 county students could normally have been expected to make above-average scores, 907 county seniors achieved top marks—77 per cent jump over the indicated number.

School officials observed that "scores for the colored pupils ranked high when compared with the ability-levels of those taking the test."

This followed a general pattern that was true for the entire group.

AS A MATTER of fact, of 20 pupils ranked in the lowest scoring group, only three were colored students.

Test results further show that 48 county students scored 79 points or over. National test norms indicate that only 19 seniors normally would have been expected to reach this level of achievement.

Also of special intrest to school authorities is the fact that but 153 county seniors—10 per cent of the total—made below-average scores.

According to national test norms, 30 per cent of those taking the test, or 541 county students, could have been expected to fall in this category.

THE WISTFUL HUNCH

plays by ear and lets his mind take a holiday

The HUNCH is a manufacturer who says advertising is an art — so why try to be scientific about it?

He bets on horses by the sound of their names, draws to inside straights, and always uses a putter when driving off a tee.

He's an amateur's amateur.

Fortunately, the HUNCH is a rare creature. Most advertisers realize that there is a degree of science in all human endeavors — and advertising is no exception.

Most manufacturers carefully weigh their markets and advertise accordingly. They watch their competition closely — and throw in shock troops when sales are threatened. They time campaigns to meet seasonal opportunities. They saturate markets to gain sales supremacy.

Naturally, they use newspapers. Because with newspapers they can pin-point any market, really cover any market. More so now than ever before . . . because U. S. daily newspaper circulation is highest in history — 55,072,480.

Their national advertising starts at the local level — in newspapers!

All business is local...and so are all newspapers!
