SEASHORE 9 Witnesses Agree

● Court voids private lease of state park

NORFOLK, Va. — The Virginia State Conservation Commission was permanently enjoined from denying colored persons the use of Seashore State Park, Thursday, by Judge Walter E. Hoffman in Federal District Court.

Judge Hoffman's decision held also that if the park is leased to a private operator, the lease must not permit discrimination against members of any race.

SEASHORE STATE PARK is one of eight facilities owned and, until this year, operated by the State of Virginia for white persons. A ninth park is operated by the state for colored persons.

Following suit for admission to Seashore Park by four colored residents of Norfolk four years ago, the Conservation Commission decided last winter to lease the park to a private operator.

The plaintiff's plea for an injunction to prevent granting of a lease which would have the effect of barring colored persons from the facility was heard by Judge Hoffman last week.

In granting the injunction Judge Hoffman said that his decision was made with "full realization" of the impact upon the state park system in Virginia, and that future action "rested in the hands of the peoples' elected representatives."

Liquor Board rule challenged

The legality of a Liquor Board regulation which denies a tavern owner the right to serve both white and colored patrons was challenged Thursday.

Samuel Drue, attorney told the Board of Liquor Commissioners that in his opinion Regulation 38-A is unconstitutional and the Board cannot determine who an owner can sell to.

Mr. Drue made his statement while representing Edward P. Stapf owner of the Crossroad's cafe at 220 W. Baltimore St.

THE LICENSEE holder of a Class "D" beer wine and liquor permit, had requested permission to change from white to colored trade. The Board withheld a decision in the case.

Mr. Drue told the Commissioners that in light of recent cases before the Circuit Court of Appeals and the Federal District Court, the Board should not have the authority to force a man to sell to one person and not another.

He said that such a decision should remain in the hands of individual tavern owners. Nine tenants from the area filed protest against the application.

IN ONE CASE, the Board turned down the request of Atatha L. Smith, owner of the S. and M Lunch Room at 506 Eutaw St., for a new Class B permit.

Meanwhile, Judge Michael J. Manley of City Court is studying a similar question posed by George W. DeAngelis, a S. Pace St., tavern owner who appealed to the court after the liquor board denied his request to serve colored patrons instead of white.

To assist Judge Manley in his decision, Robert Watts and Tucker Dening, NAACP attorneys, filed a "friend of the court" brief pointing out the recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

It is not known when Judge Manley will make the decision.

Marshall was fatally wounded by two bullets from Private Barnes' gun at Fremont Street and Florida Avenue, NW.

Scores of horrified motorists and pedestrians witnessed the shooting of Mr. Barnes, a Safeway employee, who was driving a Safeway truck at the time.

A spokesman for his employers described him as a good worker who only a few months ago had received an award for safe driving during 1954. He lived at 1200 58th St., in Chapel Oaks, Md., and was a native of Charlotte, N.C.

He had been employed by Safeway for seven years.

"I CAN'T BELIEVE he's dead, I just can't believe it," Mrs. Flora Marshall, 26, wife of the dead man, told an AFRO reporter Thursday morning. The three Marshall children are Barbara 9, Harry 11, and Gregory, 8.

Mrs. Marshall attended the inquest Thursday and wept during the testimony. She was accompanied by her crippled mother Mrs. Florine Johnson.

DR. CHRISTOPHER J. Murphy, deputy coroner, reported that Mr. Marshall died of wounds of the abdomen from two bullets, both of which lodged in the pelvic bones.

One bullet went through the victim's left arm before piercing the abdomen, Doctor Murphy stated.

Inspector Anthony Ritchie and Lt. Robert L. Rison attended the inquest as observers for the police department.

Private Barnes was represented by Bernard Margolis, Washington attorney.

William Gardner, a local lawyer, represented Mrs. Marshall, and Assistant Corporation Counsel Andrew Conlyn was among the observers.

Among the spectators was Eugene Davidson, president of the Washington NAACP.

Mr. Marshall was pronounced dead by Dr. Donald Brooks on the emergency operating table at Freedmen's Hospital at 6:45 p.m., after an initial incision had been made.

Death was due to shock and and hemorrahage, caused by the gunshot wounds, it was reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Holmes of 4655 A St., SE, told the coroner's jury that they were driving in their car behind the Safeway truck when they saw Officer Barnes pass them in a taxicab and stop the truck to speak to the driver.

Mr. Holmes said he then saw the police officer open the door of the truck with one hand and leap up on the running board, all in one motion.

The officer leaned into the cab of the truck, Mr. Holmes continued. The witness stated he then saw Private Barnes reach for his gun, pull it up, and two shots were fired.

Mr. Holmes said he then saw Mr. Marshall slide forward and fall on his face, still wearing his glasses.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes both declared, that the policeman then straddled the wounded man, reloaded his pistol, and told the crowd of spectators that if they didn't get back, they'd get some more of the same."

The couple said that a man in a white uniform approached the wounded Mr. Marshall and felt his arm. They stated that the man in white said that he was licensed to give first aid, but Private Barnes told him:

"I don't care who you are, get back on the sidewalk."

you to give me your driver's license."

"All the while he was talking he raised his stick and hit the boy once. He raised it again to hit him. Nelson reached up to grab the stick to ward off the blow and the officer let the stick go and pulled his gun.

"You got my stick, haven't you?" the officer said. Then he jumped back and fired twice. Band, bang. Nelson fell out of the cab to the sidewalk. When I saw the shooting, I got out of the cab on the other side and side and ran," Mr. Fitton concluded.

MR. McAVOY, who was driving a cab directly behind the truck, said he saw the officer first approach the driver and say something.

"The driver said something back and pulled around the cab in front of him. Then I saw the officer jump in a cab behind me and catch up with the truck. He went to the side—opposite the driver and said a few words.

"I SAW HIM get down from the cab, go around to the driver's side and open the door. He said a few words and raised his stick. I saw him raise his stick again, but then his hand seemed to freeze.

"Then I saw him pull his gun and fire twice. The boy fell forward out of the cab onto the ground. I thought he was dead."

Mr. Henry, and Mrs. Henson also said they saw the actual shooting. They said there was absolutely no tussle between the officer and the truck driver.

MR. LYONS said he didn't see the actual shooting, but when he heard the shots he ran to his door and saw the officer standing over a man with his gun.

All of the witnesses said the shooting happened in the mid-afternoon when the streets were lined with homeward pedestrians and cars inching along when the officer fired.

After the wounded man had fallen from his cab to the ground, the policeman waved his gun to keep shocked pedestrians from coming to the scene, said one of the witnesses.

"A white man tried to do something for the man who was shot, but the policeman told him to get back," a bystander reported.

Mr. Marshall was taken to Freedmen's hospital in a police patrol wagon. He died two hours later of gun shot wounds of the stomach.

Here's record of 'shooting cop'

WASHINGTON

Here is the police department record of Pvt. James E. Barnes, of Precinct 2, who fatally shot Nelson Marshall, 30, Safeway truck driver, near First St. and Florida Ave., NW, on Wednesday:

Born April 27, 1925; lives at 3501 E. Capitol St., SE; appointed to force Nov. 13, 1950. From the police training school he was transferred to the Eighth Precinct on Jan. 1, 1951; on Oct. 16, 1952 he was transferred to the Second Precinct.

On Feb. 15, 1953, Pvt. Barnes was assigned to plainclothes duty at the Second Precinct; on April 5, 1953, he was relieved from his plainclothes assignment.

PVT. BARNES was injured twice while off duty. There is no record of any trial board action against him in the department. He has been commended three times, twice in groups along with other officers.

One group commendation was for Christmas traffic direction in 1951; the other was for service during the Capital Transit strike on 1951.

His individual commendation came in 1952 for arresting several persons who had broken into and robbed a local warehouse. Pvt. Barnes is married and was born in Norfolk, Va.

Second wife divorces Carr

She gets all of wedding gifts

Milton J. Carr, building contractor and a former city school teacher, was divorced a second time, Wednesday, when the former Mildred Carter won a much contested suit on grounds of cruelty and desertion.

The decree came after a court battle in which both sought to prove the other had deliberately attempted to end the marriage by studied mental cruelty.

MRS. CARR fired the first shot when she filed a petition asking for the divorce. She said that Mr. Carr had habitually subjected her to physical and mental violence, abuse and indignities without cause.

He constructively deserted her on Oct. 1, 1954, she said, and there was no hope for a reconciliation.

She asked for restoration of her maiden name and temporary and permanent alimony.

THEY WERE married on Dec. 5, 1954, following his divorce from Mrs. Ruby Reid.

MR. CARR responded with a denial of all of her charges except the marriage, the separation and any claims for reconciliation. He said that she needed no alimony because she had resources of her own and was gainfully employed.

Then he filed a cross bill charging that she habitually subjected him to public embarrassment, treated him with disrespect, surrounded her activities with secrecy and frequently absented herself from home without explanation, often remaining away for days at a time.

He said that she deserted him on the Oct. 1, 1954 date, at which time she removed from their home a large number of his personal effects. He said, he wanted the divorce.

FOLLOWING a hearing in open court, last week, Judge Dealy K. Nice signed a decree, Wednesday, giving the divorce to the wife, dismissing the bill filed by the husband and restoring her maiden name.

The court also ruled that all the effects owned by Mr. Carr prior to their marriage on Dec. 5, 1950, should belong to him. But the wedding gifts and effects purchased after the marriage will go to the wife.

Mrs. Carr gave her address as 1638 Gwynns Falls Parkway, and he, as 1328 N. Fulton Ave.

standing on a wharf, Mrs. Hollingsworth saw a white youth, about 17 years old, supporting the unconscious form of young Donald shortly after 5:15 p.m., approximately 24 hours after Mr. Smith and trying to hoist it onto a wall.

She said she ran to the spot and caught hold of the youth and tried to pull him over the wall, but found him to be too heavy.

She held on until the youth, who had been supporting Smith, climbed over the wall and helped her pull the youth onto the bank.

Mrs. Hollingsworth said she immediately turned the youth over on his stomach, straddled him and began the artificial respiration. She said she worked for 15 or 20 minutes before young Smith started to breathe well and opened his eyes.

THE SOUTHWEST Baltimore woman said several people were standing around while she administered to the youth. Two men went to get a police officer, who summoned an ambulance, which took the revived youth to the South Baltimore General Hospital.

Young Smith was released from the hospital Wednesday. Mrs. Hollingsworth said she could not determine whether the youth fell into the river, or was swimming and caught a cramp.

Although she is currently studying practical nursing, Mrs. Hollingsworth said she has never had any training in artificial respiration. She said she has only read about it.

Undaunted by her experience, Mrs. Hollingsworth returned to her crabbing after saving young Smith's life. After returning home, she called the hospital and was told the youth was doing fine.

Jersey Joe urges tighter youth laws

WASHINGTON

Jersey Joe Walcott, former heavyweight champion of the world, took a verbal swing Wednesday at juvenile delinquency before a Senate subcommittee probing the youth problem.

The retired fighter, who is a special investigator for the bureau of juvenile delinquency in Camden, N.J., told the committee that he was raised in a neighborhood described as "the wrong side of the tracks."

He said that when he got out of hand, "Pa and Ma stepped in and stopped the smart alecks conduct before it had fairly started."

JERSEY JOE said that his father used to take him and his brothers into the woodshed and give them a dose of "strap oil."

He said, "We need more old-fashioned fathers and mothers."

The former champion said that bad children "ought to be punished and not coddled."

He approved the Juvenile laws provide that children under 18 must have special treatment. "It is about time to stop coddling habitual offenders," Jersey Joe said.

WALCOTT MADE five recommendations to the subcommittee headed by Senator Herbert Lehman (Dem., N.Y.):

1. Hold parents responsible for payment of fines levied against their children to property or individuals;

2. More severity in dealing with the actual wrong doer;

3. Stricter enforcement of legislation against the sale or gift of alcoholic beverages to minors with harsh punishment meted out to procurers;

4. Immediate adoption by constituted authority of whatever additional laws are needed to put teeth into acts for the suppression of crime by juveniles;

5. Provision by communities to drain off the pent up energy of youth by substitution of wholesome activities to replace the excitement of wrong doing.

JERSEY JOE pointed out that in Camden, N.J., a youth council had been formed that is operated entirely by the teen-agers, aged 14-18.

The council is made up of youngsters of all races and come from six areas in the city. A full program of sports competition, handicraft classes, dances and other competition are sponsored by the council, the former champion said.

JERSEY JOE said he was appointed by the mayor to work with the juvenile delinquency bureau in Camden after he had retired from active fighting.

Walcott said that he had dedicated his life to assisting in the fight against crime among juveniles.

Senator Lehman praised Jersey Joe as a shining example of a wholesome influence on the youth of America. The senator said he had great respect for the former champion.

The hearing was held in the old Supreme Court chamber in the Capitol building.

articles was received in Youth Court in June, when a 21-year-old bridegroom and four youth members of the "Black Stocking Gang," were sentenced to a total of 65 years in prison.

They have passed this way and failed.

Most of them were products of broken homes. It is hoped that these articles will help other children and their parents in the daily struggle for the pursuit of happiness.

The tragic stories told in these articles, unfortunately, are dived and relived daily all over the nation.

THE NEW YORK Welfare Council is now conducting a study on the use of narcotics among teen-age youth. It is estimated that the final count will show that there are some 7,500 juvenile narcotic addicts in that city.

EXPERTS SAY that an addict needs between $20 to $30 daily to support his "habit." These funds are usually secured through criminal activities.

Youths, with their natural inclination to seek out new experiences, represent the most logical potential victims for narcotics peddlers. Those who succumb are headed for trouble.

JUVENILE COURT delinquency cases reached an all-time high in 1954, with 435,000 children being brought before the court.

In Baltimore, however, the figures show a 6 percent reduction in juvenile delinquency during 1954, and a 13 percent drop from the 1952 figure.

This shows that a serious effort is being made in our town to keep the problem within reasonable bounds. That's good.

However, a six percent reduction means that 2,629 petitions charged children with delinquency in 1954, as compared to 2,793 in 1953. There's still work to be done.

The job society faces is to find out what circumstances are behind each case and to strive to remedy them.

WHILE THIS SERIES of articles has placed much of the blame for delinquency on parents, this writer is fully aware that the causes of delinquency are many and complex.

In the interest of our youth, community leaders and other interested persons are urged to join the parents in writing recommendations to help curb delinquency to the Juvenile Editor, AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers, Baltimore 3, Md.

A ray of light may come forth to brighten a black mark now known as juvenile delinquency.

Watkins home, returned to Baltimore.

Inspector Ford said that Daughtery was brought to police headquarters where he identified Officer Rose as the man he had seen at the Lanvale St. house.

Rose was picked out by Daughtery, Inspector Ford said, from among a group of other painclothes officers.

The chief inspector said that a decision on what if any action would be taken against Rose, would be determined after he received a full report from Inspector Murphy.

Ike repeats 'extraneous'

Says it applies to aid-to-schools

WASHINGTON

President Eisenhower reiterated an observation during his weekly press conference, Wednesday, that anti-segregation amendments to bills were "extraneous."

The President made the observation in answer to a query by a reporter for the Maine newspapers as to whether he would consider anti - segregation amendments to the Federal aid to education bills "extraneous."

President Eisenhower replied that his views were well known on that score. He said he felt that all issues should be handled on their individual merit.

HE POINTED out that the U.S. Supreme Court had declared that segregated schools were unconstitutional and the District Courts were dealing with the school problem.

The President said that he felt the schools were necessary and such amendments might defeat the bill and served only to "Muddy up the water."

Fought in mixed outfits in Korea

Brand single jim-crow unit in Maryland 'unconstitutional'

The men signing the petition included one colonel, three majors, five captains, four lieutenants and two warrant officers each having served the United States on the battlefields of Korea in integrated units.

Their petition was presented to the governor by a delegation consisting of Jack Greenberg of the national office of the NAACP, Robert Watts and Emerson Brown, Baltimore NAACP attorneys; Carl Murphy, chairman of the NAACP Legal Redress Committee; and Major Melvin A. Cade, representing the officers.

THE OFFICERS signing the petition, in addition to Major Cade, included:

Lt. Col. Vernon F. Green; Majors Charles D. Parker and Ernest W. Shervington; Capts. James H. Gilliam, Lester C. Hudgins, Redford T. Bentley, George M. Brooks and S. Anthony Porter; 1st Lts. Joseph B. Bracy, William A. Harris, Leonard A. Brooks and Lt. Nathaniel B. Young; WO-1 Wilbert E. Armstead and WOJG Earl W. Jackson.

The governor informed the delegation which waited on him that he would give the petition "serious consideration."

The request called upon him as commander-in-chief of the state's National Guard to exercise his powers and order an end to racial segregation in the Maryland National Guard.

"EVEN BY THE grossest standards of equality, the Maryland National Guard violates the Constitution," the petitioners point out, adding that facilities offered "no uniformity in the Guard are clearly and measurably inferior to those available for whites.

"The single unit for colored guardsmen is in Baltimore. But white persons throughout the state may participate in National Guard activities in more than a score of armories in other sections of the state.

"Colored men may join only a Transportation Battalion. White persons may join the Infantry, Artillery, Engineers, Fighter Squadron, a Medical Unit and an Armored Tank Company.

"Quite apart from the disparities in choice during National Guard service alone, it is clear that white persons may avail themselves of the National Guard to obtain training which may be of use to them in civilian life or in further military training. Colored citizens do not have the same opportunity."

THE PETITION pointed out that segregation in the National Guard weakens its military efficiency and impairs its fighting effectiveness as a constituent part of the armed forces of the United States.

In conclusion, it stated:

"It cannot be said that the colored members of the Marine and National Guard who served with distinction in the Korean conflict—indeed they were the only units of the Maryland National Guard which served there and suffered Maryland's only casualties in that war and came home with decorations—are unfit to associate with their white comrades in arms.

"In Korea, in battle, members of Maryland's colored units served with or commanded mixed units.

"IT CAN HARDLY be suggested that the administrative know-how in the Maryland National Guard is inadequate to the problem of integrating its 177 colored personnel among 5,716 guardsmen.

"Considerations of the military efficiency of the units involved, of public policy, the requirements of the Constitution of the United States and even the gross waste of manpower in a time of crisis are irrefutably for our petition."

The officers who signed this petition have refused on their return from overseas to join the Civil Transportation Battalion, which is the only Guard unit in Maryland.

This battalion now is commanded by a former sergeant, who was given the rating of a warrant officer when he was promoted to the command. Maryland is thus losing the battle experience, skill and administrative keenness of some of her best soldiers because of racial bias.

Vitamins for expectant moms help raise I.Q.s of their children, tests show

Do Junior's questions about everything under the sun — and in the outer space, too — baffle you? Have you, secretly of course, asked the question, "Are the kids today smarter than in my day?"

There is some evidence that all those vitamins we take are increasing the intelligence of the younger generation, and making life tougher for parents. Recent experiments seem to show that extra vitamins taken by mothers during pregnancy and nursing may increase the I. Q. of their children.

Some 2,400 expectant mothers took part in a test conducted by Teachers College, Columbia University. Some of the mothers got extra vitamin C, some got B Vitamins, and others were given placebos or "dummies" containing no vitamins.

AT THE AGE of four the children were tested by psychologists and all the "Vitaminized" children surpassed the place group by an average of 5.2 in intelligence quotient.

The best response to vitamins was in city tenement families where the regular diet was the poorest, most meager.

So, the test doesn't prove conclusively that mothers who regularly get in their diets for the recommended amount of vitamins can improve their children's I.Q. by taking extra vitamins.

But it certainly shows how important a proper diet is to the expectant mother.

MAYBE a mother can't guarantee a great brain for her child by getting plenty of vitamins during pregnancy and nursing. But there is much she can do to give him the best possible chance for a healthy, vigorous body and mind.

To solve the problem of The diet should include plenty such as meat and eggs, and such as vegetables, proteins, rich foods Junior's bright questions? Better of milk, citrus fruits, leafy green keep the encyclopedia handy.

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

"I'd tried three brands," says Levi Jackson, "before I changed to Luckies. Now I've switched to Luckies for good, because they taste better." Luckies taste better for good reasons. First of all, Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So next time you light up, light up a Lucky. You'll say it's the best-tasting cigarette you ever smoked.
