Stanley products boycott continues, committee says

The boycott of Stanley Home Products in Baltimore is continuing and the former Stanley salesmen and saleswomen who quit in protest over segregated training sessions have issued a report describing the situation as it now stands.

The report was issued by the committee for Integration in Stanley Home Products.

The Committee has sent out questionaires to over 400 clubs asking thier cooperation in the boycott and reports that it has received over 150 replies with pledges for complete support.

The committee has also sent out thank-you letters to clubs and ministers who permitted its members to speak before their groups.

The committee also reported that representatives of the Stanley company were recently refused permission to address a ministers' conference because of a mix up in schedules and that if the company representatives are granted time in the future to state their position, the committee will also be granted a hearing.

Douglass grads get $34,000 in awards

Awards and scholarships to graduating seniors, representing a total of $34,000, were announced during the 67th annual commencement exercises of Frederick Douglass High School at the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute auditorium last week.

The awards, announced by Ralph W. Reckling, Douglass principal, included the $100 cash scholarship presented to John Robinson, star football player, who won the recently concluded AFRO Outstanding Senior Contest.

The graduating class of 379 was the largest in the history of the high school.

SPECTATORS JAMMED the balcony and downstairs auditorium and filled the entrances despite a sudden thunderstorm, which caught most of the formally-clad graduates and visitors without umbrellas and raincoats before and after the exercises.

The 242 girls in the graduating class were beautifully attired in white net formal gowns with matching stoles, while the 137 boys were summer white tuxedo jackets with black trousers.

The graduates were greeted throughout the 18-minute processional, which opened the exercises, by a continuous ovation from the packed auditorium. The ovation continued when the name of each graduate was read and again when the diplomas were presented by Dr. Elizabeth Morrissy of the Board of School Commissioners.

ONE OF THE TOP awards announced by the principal was the $450 University of Maryland Legislative Award to Miss Sylvia C. Cook. Mr. Reckling said the selection of Miss Cook was made public by Delegate Truly Hatchett of the 4th Legislative District.

The scholarship will pay half the tuition of Miss Cook for four years of college training. Other awards included:

Alumni Medal, Miss Carolyn M. Roberts; Secondary Schools Award, Daniel L. Comegys; William Leroy Berry Award, Owen Pinkney; Les Amis Club Award, Miss Justine P. Bonner;

SIGMA GAMMA RHO AWARD Miss Myra A. Harris; Charmette Club Award, Miss Barbara A. McCutcheon; The Falcom Club Award, Cornelius J. Person; Mt. Diphtheria victim leaves hospital

A 12-year-old girl of Secretary, Md., whose six-year-old brother died of diphtheria when seven youngsters in one family were stricken by the disease recently, was released from City Hospitals this week, following her recovery.

Brannie Thompson, daughter of of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Thompson, was reported in serious condition when she was admitted to the hospital. Her brother, Ruben, died three days after being rushed to the hospital.

Stricken with mild cases of diphtheria were the other five Thompson children: Helen, 5; Hattie, 3; Willie, 8; Robert, 9, and Lee. The death of Ruben from the disease was the first reported in Dorchester County since 1946.

Tax liens on Pa. Ave. stores

The city, this week, placed personal property tax liens against two Pennsylvania Ave. Business establishments.

The suits have been filed in Baltimore City Court against Henry Baker, owner of the men's apparel shop at 1503 Pennsylvania Ave., and Mrs. Lottie Johnson Moore, operator of the Charm Centre, 1811 Pennsylvania Ave.

In the suit against Mr. Baker, the city is seeking $1,200 for his failure to pay the $587.54 1954 personal property tax. His property was assessed at $18,260.

Mrs. Moore faces $1,100 suit for failing to pay the $531.70 tax in 1953 for the establishment assessed at $15,460.

Expect Report Soon On Numbers Payoff

'Mystery witness' returns

- Fingers Rose as officer at Watkins house
- Backs story of convicted numbers man

Chief Inspector Fred L. Ford said this week that an investigation of alleged lottery "protection" payments involving a member of the vice squad, which began in January, is still continuing.

Inspector Ford, who is also acting police commissioner, said that he expects a full report on the matter "very shortly."

His statement was made in response to an AFRO query concerning reports a man called a "mystery witness," had fingered Officer Wilbur W. Rose as the man he saw at the house of a convicted numbers writer.

The AFRO learned that the "mystery witness," later identified as Isaac Daugherty, a seaman, had returned from sea to testify in the investigation.

CHARGES of receiving numbers protection money were lodged against Officer Rose on Jan. 6, in Criminal Court, during the lottery trial of Dewey

The Roosevelt Era

Come 1932 and the national elections were on the horizon. The nation by now had sunk to its lowest possible ebb. Depression was all around us and unemployment affected 10,000,000 persons.

The bank holiday was declared and all banks in the land were closed to prevent further losses. Home foreclosures continued at such a dizzy pace that the government had to step in to take preventative action.

The air of failure and fear gripped the entire nation and then the election in November 1932 was over and Franklin D. Roosevelt took over the helm of government.

Like lightning things began to happen and so at the AFRO a new spark was started. AFRO readers began to see a gleam of hope. AFRO subscribers increased with new signs of the times.

Restores life to drowning victim

A Southwest Baltimore mother, whose knowledge of artificial respiration is confined to what she has read about it, saved the life of a 14-year-old youth Monday, after she helped pull him from a river in Fairfield.

She is Mrs. Estelle Hollingsworth, who applied artificial respiration to the still form of James Smith of 1518 Chesapeake Ave., for 15 or 20 minutes before the youth stirred and began to breath normally.

Mrs. Hollingsworth told the AFRO she had gone crabbing with a friend and her two children, Gloria and David, on July 4.

While standing on the bank of the river, she said, she suddenly heard the frantic cries of someone calling for help.

Faith Baptist members won't be rushed—still in mourning

Members of Faith Baptist Church have been holding periodic meetings to reach agreement on a new pastor to succeed the Rev. Simon Williamson, who died November 7, 1954, after serving for 42 years.

The church is located at Bond St. and Ashland Ave., and has an estimated 5,000 members. It is said to be the largest Baptist in the city. It is 64 years old.

Acting as pastor since the death of the Rev. Mr. Williamson has been the Rev. Walter E. Paige, who served as assistant to the Rev. Mr. Williamson before his death.

It is expected that he will be elevated to the pastorate within a short time.

HOWEVER, THERE is a general feeling in the church that a proper period of mourning should be observed before anyone is selected.

One longtime member who declined use of her name told the AFRO: "The time is not ripe yet to select a new minister. We will not be rushed. We are just like a wife who has lost her husband—we want to observe a proper period of mourning.

"Rev. (Rev. Williamson) gave his life to this church and built it up—in reverance to him, we want to wait a proper time.

"And we want to select the new minister in a Christian-like manner, when the time is ripe. Rev. Mr. Paige will certainly be our new pastor when that time comes. He is a good minister and he will make us a good pastor, but we won't be hurried

WASHINGTON

Following an inquest which lasted for more than five hours, Thursday, Police Pvt. James Barnes of Precinct 2 was ordered held for the grand jury in the fatal shooting of Nelson Marshall, 30, father of three children, on Wednesday.

Relieved by his commanding officer of his gun, which he still wore in his holster throughout the entire inquest, Private Barnes was taken to Precinct 2 and booked on a charge of homicide.

THE FINDING of the coroner's jury was in direct contradiction to an early statement made by Deputy Police Chief William J. Cunningham.

Deputy Chief Cunningham told reporters early Wednesday night that "from the information so far the officer was not at fault."

Later, the AFRO learned, the investigation was turned over to the homicide squad, headed by Capt. Richard Felber.

THE INQUEST, which began at 11 a.m., continued until 4:30 p.m., when the jury recessed. Twenty witnesses were scheduled to appear, but after 12 had testified, both the defense attorney and Assistant U.S. Attorney Austin Fickling agreed to a stipulation that further testimony would be repetitious.

The jury delivered its finding to Coroner A. Magruder Mac-

OF ALL THINGS—

NOTES TO THE EDITOR

(The following was sent to the editor this week as part of a news release)

THE CITIZENS of South Baltimore are very much disturbed about a bar seeking a license to be removed from its present location to a building across the street in the 600 block of Barre Street just a few doors from Charles Rice Undertakers Parlor and Funeral home and one block from School No. 162.

If this happens the beer will run into the funeral home for the dead to drink and make a very bad impression on the pupils of the school.

NOT EVEN THE EXPECTED

Charles Brown, principal of Douglass Summer School stopped rumors head on this week when he declared that despite the hot weather there has not even been a good fist fight at the school, which has some 1,700 pupils enrolled.

Teachers' colleges admit all students

Follow board directive that ended segregation

Segregation in the state teachers' colleges has come to an actual end with the formal acceptance of colored students in previously all-white schools.

Dr. Earl T. Hawkins, president of Towson State Teachers College, has reported that his school accepted its first colored student on Wednesday and that additional applications will be accepted, even though the deadline for applications was June 30.

At Frostburg State Teachers College in Frostburg, Miss Elizabeth Hitchins, registrar, said the school has accepted Miss Rae Allen Diggs, a Frostburg resident, as the first colored student.

She also said the school will continue to accept day students but will be unable to accept any more resident students because of the lack of dormitory space on the campus.

AT BOWIE State Teachers College, one of the two formerly all colored schools, Dr. William E. Henry, president, said that one white student had sent in an application blank and accepted.

DR. HENRY also said he believed it possible that the school would have white students by the time the doors open in September.

Here in Baltimore, Dr. Miles Connor, president of Coppin State Teachers College, the other formerly all-colored school, said on Thursday that no white students had as yet applied for admission.

THE DEATH knell of segregation in the teachers college was sounded two weeks ago when the State Board of Education passed a resolution opening all of the state supported teachers colleges to all.

The five teachers' colleges, their location and curriculum offered are as follows:

TOWSON STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE — Located in Towson. Offers courses in both junior high school and elementary teaching leading to degree of bachelor of science in education. Also offers a two year junior college course. Has a staff of

Killed to get their bicycles

- Ride away as youngsters drown
- 12-year-olds didn't even know victims

PHILADELPHIA — Two 12-year-old boys are being held here on homicide charges pending grand jury action after they admitted drowning two other teenagers in order to steal their bicycles.

Dead are:

Ellis Palmer, 10, 2228 Summer St., and Adolph Sincavage, 13, 2216 Summer St.

Under arrest are:

Theodore Armpriester of Greene St. near 19th and Joseph Ryan, Mt. Vernon St. near 22nd.

PALMER AND Sincavage were fishing off the old Callowhill St. ash pier on the east bank of the Schuylkill River near the Art Museum on Friday afternoon.

IN A STATEMENT signed by his mother, Millisa, 37, Ryan said he and Armpriester watched the unsuspecting lads, who were fishing for carp.

Moving within sight of the anglers, Armpriester, acting as though he actually saw something in the water, called to the pair, "Come on over and look at the dead white mice."

When the two went over to look, Armpriester is said to have pushed Sincavage in. Whereupon, Palmer tried to go to Sincavage's aid, pleading "Sonny is white, but don't kill him."

When Palmer leaned over as he tried to help the struggling Sincavage, he, too, was shoved in by Armpriester, according to Ryan's statement.

ARMPRIESTER'S STATEMENT was similar with the exception that he asserted that Ryan helped push one boy in the river. Police found a witness who supported this in a signed statement.

The two rode off on Palmer's bicycle, leaving both boys struggling. Their plight was seen by a motorist, Abe, 38, of 2920 Master St., who was passing on the West River Drive.

Lewis notified park guards who summoned police and fire emergency equipment to the scene. The spot, opposite Callowhill St., has a 20-foot drop to the water.

A motor harbor patrol boat was lowered into the water by ropes and fire ladders. Firemen and rescue squad members, grappling from the shore, recovered Palmer's body 20 minutes after the alarm was sounded at 4 p.m.

SINCAVAGE'S BODY was recovered by men in the boat about 10 minutes later. Both were tentatively identified by a neighbor, Highway Patrolman Robert Clark of 2226 Summer St.

Both boys were pronounced dead on arrival at Hahnemann Hospital. Deputy Examiners Ernest Dawson and Albert Rosenblatt stated.

Armpriester was pointed out

A Chance For McKeldin

(AN EDITORIAL)

Some years ago, when Thomas Dewey was elected Republican governor of New York, he proposed to nominate a colored person to the State Court of Appeals.

Timid advisers talked him out of it.

Instead, he named Ellis Rivers to the New York City Court, comparable to Baltimore's Supreme Bench.

This week, New York's Democratic Governor Harriman has announced he will appoint a colored Democrat as Associate Justice of New York State's Supreme Court.

Failure of Governor Dewey to make the more advanced step lost him Republican control of New York City.

Where are we in Baltimore? Governor McKeldin has named a colored police court magistrate and a colored traffic judge.

That is progress.

But, Governor, isn't this, after all, small potatoes?

Don't be misled by timid advisers as Governor Dewey was.

Two persons have already been picked for the new seats on the Supreme Bench but there will be other vacancies.

You, Governor McKeldin, have the opportunity and the obligation to nominate a colored attorney for judgeship.

No element of the population is without representation on the bench except us.

And in Baltimore City, colored Republicans still outnumber white Republicans, Governor.

Now long that will last we don't know. In past negotiations, colored persons have gone Democratic 3-1.

How did you keep cool last night? (Asked on July 5 when the mercury said 100. Temperatures the day before were 95 at 2 p.m., 90 at 9 p.m., 82 at midnight.) What is best way to beat the heat?

THE ANSWERS

Mrs. Celie Robinson, 71, 1730 W. Lexington St., who has 36 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren: "I sat up until I cooled off. About ten o'clock, I went to bed, fanned myself to sleep with a homemade fan. The heat doesn't bother me once. I get to sleep. In the daytime, I visit different parks. I take my water in a cooler and also something to eat. No, I have never fallen out from the heat."

Miss Gloria Offer, 18, 113 N. Bruce St. "I had no trouble at all. I sat on my front steps until after midnight. When it cooled off, I went to bed. I just sleep in a half slip so I manage to keep cool. Of course, I drink a lot of cold water, and that helps. Another way is just to sit quietly in the park like I'm doing now."

George Bentley, 428 E. 20th St. steel worker at Bethlehem Steel has wife and child: "That's the $64 question. I work nights and on the job it gets as hot as 200 degrees. Usually at work, I stay around the fans. During the day I stay around the parks. The best thing to do is to find a

Dixon explains vote of approval

Despite protests from residents in the area of the new Douglass High School, Mayor D'Alesandro signed the zoning ordinance which will permit the construction of a warehouse directly across the street from the school on Warwick Ave.

SINCE the introduction of the measure, May 24, by Councilman Walter T. Dixon and Solomon Liss, (both D-4th), the protestants, under the leadership of James H. Murphy, president of the Windsor-Pulaski Neighborhood Association, have voiced their opposition to the bill.

At a recent hearing on the ordinance, over 60 representatives of various community and civic organizations in the neighborhood appeared in protest of the measure.

AFTER THE ordinance passed the council with a vote of 15 to 2, the residents appeared before the mayor asking him to veto the bill. At that time Mayor D'Alesandro promised he would take the matter under consideration
