cident police said Edmonds gave them:

On March 29, about 9:05 a.m. Edmonds went to Provident Savings Bank at Gay and Mott Sts., where he made a deposit.

Upon leaving the bank, he noticed a man admiring his car. Edmonds and the man (here after referred to as No. 1 man), struck up a friendly conversation concerning the vehicle.

EDMONDS THEN drove away. At Gay and Asquith St., a block away, Edmonds stopped for a red light. Stamper approached and said that he was a seaman just off the ship and he had a lot of money and wanted to have a good time with some women.

Meanwhile, the No. 1 man reached the car and asked Edmonds: "What does this fellow (Stamper) want?"

Edmonds then told the No. 1 man of Stamper's request and confessed that he knew of no place to have a good time, exclaiming: "I am a married man."

Meanwhile, the light had changed and traffic was snarled behind the Edmonds car; so the man pulled over to the curb.

BY THIS TIME, Stamper had flashed a big roll of money — which later turned out to be a "Michigan bankroll," one which has a real bill on top and paper or play money inside.

"I want to spend this money on some women," Stamper said as he popped the rubber band on the roll of money.

No. 1 man then said: "Wait a minute. I know where to get a woman." With that he left, returning a few minutes later.

No. 1 man said that the woman he had in mind was busy with some other men and suggested that they ride around until she became free.

NO. 1 MAN got in the front of Edmonds' car and Stamper took a seat in the back. The two men playing a short while, No. 2 man said that he would go and see what had delayed Stamper's return.

The woman finally went to the Charles St. address herself, where she was told that Stamper was not known there. She called police.

Stamper's accomplice in this case is also still at large.

POLICE ARRESTED Stamper and Barnes on June 3, after Carlin Brown reported that two men had attempted to trick him out of some money.

John C. Weiss, assistant state's attorney who prosecuted the case, said that Brown was on the alert after having read in the papers about a series of flimflams occurring in the city.

Police reported that a search of the men's home turned up play money, "Michigan bankrolls," and other confidence equipment.

Stamper and Barnes were both convicted of attempting to confidence Miss Ida Thursday on June 1, as she was returning from the bank for her employer.

IN THIS CASE, police said, the men were using the "lost pocketbook" gimmick, when they saw a policeman approaching with a woman who had been swindled out of $125 days before and they fled.

Both men had lengthy criminal records. Barnes was paroled in 1954 after serving nearly all of a 15-year second-degree murder conviction. Stamper received 40 days in 1954 for larceny by trick.

State Sen. Harry A. Cole represented Stamper. Joel Hochman was attorney for Barnes.

Francis Meagher, assistant state's attorney, also prosecuted.

there was never any doubt in my mind that Bud would win.

"I felt from the beginning, when he told me he had signed for it, that my husband would win. And I never once felt otherwise, at the start of the fight, in the middle of it, and at the end."

THE FIGHTER'S mother, though sending his son home for the first time, was equally sure he'd win. Said she:

"I know very little about this sort of thing. I had never seen a fight until a few weeks ago when Bre (Wallace's real name) took me to see Ray Robinson (box Johnny Lombardo) in Cincinnati.

"I don't know much about what's going on, but I do know I was sure if anybody was supposed to win, my Bre would be the one."

WALLACE SAID he had no definite plans for the immediate future. "I'll just have to wait and see what happens," he explained.

"We have an agreement that calls for a return match in 90 days," he went on, "but they say Carter has some cuts about the eyes and they don't know how long it'll take them to heal.

"Anyway, whenever he's ready, I'll be there."

called "Crip" stood next to the restaurant. This was his—David's chance to be a real member of the mob.

"When they started talking about robbery," David said, "I ran away as fast as I could. It paid off too."

His decision paid the biggest dividend known to man — freedom.

JUDGE HERMAN M. MOSER in convicting members of the gang noted that David "is entirely different from the rest."

David was given an 18-month suspended sentence, placed on probation for two years, ordered to pay the court costs and to make full restitution of $6 contained in a tip box he took from the restaurant the day before the robbery was stopped.

This boy fits perfectly the theme of this "series for parents," which is "parents whose children are brought up in broken homes are placing a tremendous burden on society.

DAVID TOLD court authorities that his parents have been separated since he was very small.

His father is a bartender at a golf club in Washington. He has not seen him in three years.

The youth said that his father has never given him a gift that he can remember.

His mother, David said, works from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Sometime between those hours on a March day, David met Paul Benjamin, a scheming criminal who lured young boys to his side by his boastful words.

"Paul was always telling us about the robberies he got away with," David said.

THE FIRST job they pulled together was to get money for Paul's marriage license. On the second job, Paul, the big dumb "Goliath," roared into the restaurant and robbed the place.

Things were happening too fast for little David to take time to load his slingshot. He did the next best thing and took to the road "as fast as I could."

David's first known contact with authorities came when he was a pupil at the Carver Vocational School. The charge — truancy.

FATE PUSHED little David past the big hole in life which swallowed up "Goliath" and the other boys. He should turn his eyes to the Heavens.

Here now is David's story as he told it to police. It reveals how this product of a broken home almost drowned in the river of no return that flows through life and claims many victims.

Statement of David Harris Jr., 14, 527 Laurens St., taken at the Northwestern District Police Station on April 23, 1955 at 5:30 p.m. Interrogated by Lt. Walter Hoffmeister, in the presence of Sgt. Casimer Mensowski. Typewritten by Clerk Paul R. Byrne.

Q—What is your name and address?

A.—David Harris Jr., 527 Laurens St.

Q.—How far did you go in school?

A.—Eleventh grade.

Q.—Can you read and write?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—Are you married or single?

A.—Single.

Q.—What kind of work do you do?

A.—I am a busboy in the White Coffee Pot on Howard St.

Q.—Are you working now?

A.—No.

Q.—Now David, I want to talk to you about a larceny of a tip box from Harley's Sandwich Shop, 211 McMechen St., on April 11, 1955, and also about the holdup of Harley's on April 12, 1955. But before I do, I want you to know that everything you say must be free and voluntary and that everything you say—can be used for or against you in court. Do you understand this?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—Now in your own words tell me what you know about the larceny of the tip box?

A.—About 4 p.m. on April 11, I was sitting on my steps at Laurens and Etting Sts., when Paul Benjamin, Leroy (a juvenile), and Ole Man, (George Fray), came along. Paul asked me where was I going and Paul said "Come on and take a walk." I said "okay," and we all started to take a walk. Ole Man and Leroy wanted a sandwich. I didn't have any money. I thought Paul was going to buy me a sandwich. We were standing in line waiting to get a sandwich when Paul picked up the tip box from off the counter and stuck it under my coat and told me to get out.

I walked out and started up the alley and Paul came out and went back in to get his coat. He came back out and caught up with me and took the box and opened it up there and gave me half which was about $1.90 and then he asked me to go to the court house so he could get a marriage license. We grabbed a cab and went to the court house and got the marriage license. After we got the license we went to the movies.

Q.—Now on April 12, Harley's Sandwich Shop was held up; what can you tell me about this?

A.—About 5:30 p.m., I met Paul on McCulloh St., near McMechen and started to walk with him and then we met "Crip," who was walking ahead of us. Paul asked "Crip" did he want to make some money and "Crip" said, "Yes, I want to make some money but I don't want to go to jail for the summer." We were walking on McMechen St., towards "Crip's" home and when we were across the street from Harley's Paul said, "Let's rob that place," nodding his head toward Harley's.

I said "I'm not for it." so we all walked across the street to the alley alongside of Harley's. "Crip" said he was not for it either. Paul persuaded "Crip" to rob the place, and then they both tried to persuade me. Finally I said, "Man step out of the way. You two layed here, I'm going in."

Then they said, "Man you really going in." Paul told "Crip come on" so they both went into the store. Just before they went in, Paul wrapped a handkerchief around a green shield and a white shield off of a soldier. As they hit the door I started to run. About an hour and a half later, I met them near Pennsylvania Ave. and Wilson St., but I did not ask them for any money.

Q.—After reading the two-page statement and finding it to be true, will you sign it as your true statement?

A.—Yes, sir.

Signed DAVID HARRIS
527 Laurens

Statement completed at 5:50 p.m. April 23, 1955.

From her hospital bed she told her mother to make the first heated some water, mixed two teaspoonfuls of sodium fluoride in a tea cup, then carried it upstairs to her room.

Mrs. Hargrove said her daughter had been despondent all day. "She didn't eat a thing and that was unusual for her.

"Around nine I was in the living room and I heard her in the kitchen. I thought she was fixing her dinner.

"I ASKED her if she would do the dishes," Mrs. Hargrove continued, "and she said, 'Yes, Mother, my stomach hurts.'

"I thought nothing more about it until she ran into the bathroom, then came down to call the police. "When I asked her why she said, 'Mother, I'm sorry I did this.'

"I knew something was wrong with Bea," Mrs. Hargrove continued. "Last February she came home from New York, bag and baggage. She never told me what was wrong.

"Later her husband visited her and I overheard her saying, 'You mistreated me.' Other than that I'll never know what that girl had in mind.

"I was with her all night at the hospital. Most of the time I was holding her hand. The last thing she said was, "Mother, I'm sorry.' She tried to tell me something else but she never finished."

POSTAL CLERK HELD IN SLAYING

PHILADELPHIA — Suspicion on the part of a postal clerk when his wife, a school teacher, drove away from their West Philadelphia home in one of the couple's two cars on Saturday resulted in the husband's death.

Charles Ervin, 39, of 60th St. near Thompson, a claims adjuster for the Pennsylvania State Employment Service, was held in the fatal beating.

The post office employee was Howard Grant, 33, of 5409 Chestnut St. His wife, Alice, is a member of the faculty of a West Philadelphia school.

FOUND GUITY OF EMBEZZLING CASH

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Britania E. Parmes, 40, former North Carolina Mutual Insurance Co. assistant chisher, was led weeping from the courtroom, Friday morning after she was sentenced to serve from one to three years in prison.

Mother of a teen-aged son and daughter, Mrs. Parmes pleaded guilty last month to two counts of a six-count indictment charging her with embezzling company funds.

OFFERED DEANSHIP OF NONEXISTENT SCHOOL

WASHINGTON — School Supt. Hobart M. Corning: appears to have stirred up a major fracas, last week, in the de-segregated assignment he proposed for President Matthew Whitehead of Miner Teachers College when Miner merges with its white College, on July 1.

The post offered to Doctor Whitehead has been locally termed "Dean of Something That Doesn't Exist."

FUNDS AXED FOR MANUAL SCHOOL

TRENTON — Gov. Robert B. Meyner last Thursday tossed back to the Republican-controlled legislature the future of Bordentown Manual Training School which the majority party has turned into a political issue, thanks to the alumni.

The Democratic governor annulled plans of the Republicans to continue operation of the school for another year, by invoking for the first time his constitutional prerogative to eliminate specific budgetary items in the appropriations bill.

He indicated that the core of the objections to the integration of the program was the fact that girls would be included on the cruises.

Mr. Van Deusen said no consideration had been given by the committee which drew up the program to the possibility of separating the cruises from the other activities and opening these activities to all youths.

The summer program was submitted to the branch board of directors as a package deal, following two meetings of the committee, Mr. Van Deusen said. The entire program was approved by the board.

ASIDE FROM deviating from the integration resolution adopted by the city-wide board of YMCA directors, the initiation of a segregated summer program is also in opposition to the desires of young members of YMCA organizations.

In a three-day meeting in Hagerstown, Md., on Dec. 10, 11 and 12, Tri-H-Y and Hi-Y members lived, played and worked together on an integrated basis.

The major accomplishment of the young conference delegates was the issuance of a recommendation to their elders urging more democracy in YMCA facilities.

IN PRONOUNCING sentence, U.S. District Judge Edward A. Tamm refused to consider probation for Mrs. Parmes. He cited at length from the pre-sentence investigation of the probation office.

That report stated that prior to October, 1954, Mrs. Parmes had embezzled $4,580 from the local office of the insurance firm at 2002 11th St., NW.

Since October, 1954, Judge Tamm said, Mrs. Parmes had taken $12,000 in a period of several months.

The judge said she had also slipped a statement that her responsibility for $16,000 in shortages shown on the company's books.

COMMENTING ON a statement by Wesley S. Williams, attorney for Mrs. Parmes, who told of how the woman had worked late at night, Judge Tamm said she was working those late hours "keeping the various misentries she had made."

Mrs. Williams told the court she had used the money to help care for her family. She had "matrimonial unhappiness" Judge Tamm admitted.

Limited IQ keeps youth alive

Sentenced to life for brutal attack on mother of six

AWARDED DEGREE — Miss Sara Peace Johnson of Baltimore received her master of arts degree from Teachers College, Columbia University, N.Y.C. Miss Johnson received her bachelor of arts degree from Philadelphia Museum School of Art in Philadelphia. She is instructor in related arts at the Carver Vocational-Technical High School and superintendent of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church School.

His tender age and borderline intelligence saved James Johnson, alias James Richardson, from a death sentence, Tuesday.

THE 18 - YEAR - OLD YOUTH convicted of criminally assaulting a 43-year-old mother, May 1, was given a life-term in the penitentiary by Judge Herman M. Moser.

Johnson showed no emotion as the sentence was pronounced but he did pull a handkerchief from his hip pocket to wipe the perspiration from his face and hands.

EXPLAINING that the disposition of this case would not set a precedent for future cases of this kind, Judge Moser said, "Due to the boy's age and limited intelligence, the court will impose the death penalty."

Young Johnson, through his attorney, Alexander Stark, entered a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity. While a member of the Department of Education testified that he had an IQ of 81, Dr. Jerome Stewart, medical officer of the Supreme Bench, said that the youth showed "no serious signs of mental disorder."

Judge Moser ruled that the youth was sane at the time of the crime and is sane now.

The incident occurred at 3 a.m. in a vacant garage in an alley near Penn and Westwood Sts. According to the victim, a mother of six children, the youth grabbed her as she was approaching the alley-way.

THE MOTHER explained she had just left her place of work and was on her way to a store to get some cigarettes, when she was attacked.

The youth knocked her down, the mother said, and dragged her to the garage where he forced her to have relations with him.

A practical nurse at University Hospital, who testified she heard the women scream while working on the fourth floor of the hospital, said she watched the youth "straddle an object in the street, lift it up and drag it in the alley."

Police officers were summoned to the scene by a complaint from the hospital that a woman was screaming for help, it was testified.

SGT. RAYMOND SUTER of the Southwestern District said he saw the youth as he entered the vacant garage. "He was choking the woman," the officer testified.

"I had to force him to let her go," he added. The woman looked brutally beaten. She was filthy, torn, bruised and her slip was torn. She couldn't talk."

Medical reports showed that the woman suffered multiple bruises and abrsions of the face and had been criminally assaulted.

Taking the stand in his own defense, Johnson insisted that the woman had invited him into the garage and that he was merely submitting to her wishes when police arrived.

The youth, who has served two terms in the Reformatory for Males, once on a burglary conviction, the other on a charge of criminally assaulting a 14-year-old girl, appeared calm on the stand.

He was relaxed as he sat in the witness chair and he spoke in a clear voice.

JOHNSON told the court that his parents were dead and that he had been living with a brother and sister-in-law in the 500 block Archer St. He said that he attended church every Sunday and was a member of the Highway to Heaven Gospel Singers.

Giving his version of the incident, he said:

"I had been at a restaurant talking with some girls. When I left I noticed the bars were closed. I went to Penn and Redwood Sts., where I saw a lady running up the street.

"She ran towards me. Then she fell and she started crying and cussing. I bent over her and tried to lift her up and she stared at me."

He said that the woman enticed him to go the garage with him and he agreed. He added that they walked down the alley, her arm was around his neck and his arm was around her waist.

"WHEN the police came in I was not choking her," the youth declared.

However, when cross examined by the Assistant State's Attorney J. Robert Brown, about the marks discovered on the woman's neck, the youth lowered his eys and muttered, "Yes, she did have marks on her neck."

In disposing of the case, Judge Moser commented that it was the clearest one of criminal assault he had ever had. He said, "The court can't believe the story the boy tells. The police description shows the woman was forcibly (attacked)."

County plans for integration

Board expects report soon

The Baltimore County School Board is expected to meet sometime in July, possibly the third week, at which time Edward G. Stapleton, superintendent of schools, and his staff will present a report regarding integration in county schools this fall.

The Board passed a resolution on June 23 accepting the ruling of the Supreme Court on public schools. The statement reads as follows:

"The Board of Education of Baltimore County accepts the ruling of the Supreme Court regarding segregation and the reversal thereby of former state laws.

"We accept the letter dated June 20 from Attorney General Sybert to Superintendent Stapleton in good faith and have referred the administrative problems involved for implementation to the superintendent and his staff."

FOLLOWING THE June 23 meeting, Mr. Stapleton declared that "it is possible that we can work out a partial implementation plan for 1955-56," implying that complete desegregation this fall was doubtful.

He was asked this week if some schools will be integrated this fall.

"I hope so," he replied. Then he added emphatically, "There will be no more segregated schools in Baltimore County."

BALTIMORE COUNTY has 3,850 colored pupils distributed in three high schools and 11 elementary schools.

The County has 54,000 white pupils and expects at least an increase to 57,500 in September, while school officials predict a decrease in the number of colored pupils. Fifty-two schools, previously all white, are operated in Baltimore County.

The previously all-colored-high schools are Sollers Point in Turner Station, serving the south eastern part of the county; Banneker in Catonsville, serving the western section, and Carver in Towson, serving the northern area.

Most of the colored pupils live in the Turner Station, Day Village, Sparrows Point area.

THE PREVIOUSLY all-colored elementary and junior high schools are Sollers Point, Banneker, Carver, Reisterstown, Towson, Benjes, Lorley, Walters, Sparks, Shepherd and Pease.

The Benjes, Lorely and Walters Elementary Schools were to be consolidated this fall but, "that will not be necessary now," according to Mr. Stapleton.

ONE OF THE administrative problems Mr. Stapleton and his staff have to work out regards the parttime classes held in some of the all-white schools.

"We have a situation in some schools," said Mr. Stapleton.

As an example, the school superintendent pointed out that the Milford Junior - Senior High School for whites had 1,300 pupils on partime classes this past school season while the Carver High School for colored had no partime classes.

"I don't think it would be fair to put a colored pupil now attending Carver on full time in a parttime school just because he lives in the Milford area," Mr. Stapleton stated.

"I don't think you should upset a child's school program simply to get him in an area he lives in if the result will result in additional overcrowding."

COUNTY SCHOOLS are divided into school attendance areas for white pupils.

Colored pupils have not always attended schools in their particular school attendance areas because of segregated schools. Those who lived in areas where there were no colored junior high or high schools were transported to other areas by school buses.

Meanwhile, while the County School Board and school administration plans the desegregated schools this fall, there has been no evidence of any community-wide hysteria on implementing the court's decision.

Mr. Stapleton said he knew of no meetings between any colored and white PTA groups as there have been in some of the other counties.

Colored and white teachers in Baltimore County have been meeting together for the past five years.—J. H. W.

Given 2 years for manslaughter

Grant Doctry, 65, 1800 block Brunt St., received a two-year suspended sentence in the House of Correction, Thursday in Criminal Court where he pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the fatal shooting of John Manuel, 1800 block N. Carey St.

Testimony was that Manuel died instantly from one shot fired by Doctry in the 500 block Laurens St. on May 24.

Doctry said that he fired when Manuel advanced toward him with a knife. Michael F. Freedman was defense attorney. John C. Weaver, assistant state's attorney prosecuted.

The case was heard by Judge Joseph R. Byrnes.
