Free man accused of shooting policeman

Jessie Harrison Jr., 28-year-old construction worker, was found not guilty in Criminal Court Wednesday on a charge of shooting a Northeastern District policeman.

Although Patrolman Nicholas Zampini identified Harrison as the man who shot him one night in April in the 600 block Sterling St. Judge Tucker ruled that the one identification was not sufficient.

The policeman said that he heard gunfire and a woman screaming for police and went to investigate. Upon arrival, he was met by a man who fired three shots.

"I was hit in the right leg. I fell and rolled toward a parked car," the policeman testified.

When Harrison was arrested about a month later on another charge, the patrolman identified him from a photograph.

HOWEVER, MRS. Bessie Young, the woman who screamed for help, told Leonard S. Freedman, defense counsel, that Harrison was not the same man who tried to rob her and her husband.

Miss Jean Pierce, 22, testified that on the night of the shooting, she accompanied the defendant to an Essex country club and didn't return until 2 a.m.

Powell Sees Victory

Says new reserve bill is triumph

By LOUIS LAUTIER

WASHINGTON, (NNPA)—The new bill to strengthen the Reserve Forces is not a compromise but a complete victory, Representative Adam C. Powell, Democrat, of New York, declared Monday.

The measure introduced in the House Monday by Representative Carl Vinson, of Georgia, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, omits the provisions in the sidetracked legislation relating to the National Guard.

THE OLD BILL was shelved after Mr. Vinson failed to get the House to strike out an amendment sponsored by Mr. Powell, which would have prohibited the assignment of men released from active training and service, upon request of the governor of a state, to the National Guard.

Mr. Powell said he had not seen the Vinson bill, but Mr. Vinson had told him two things:

1. The bill will completely eliminates the National Guard.

2. It contains absolutely no taint of universal military training.

"I do not consider this a compromise," Mr. Powell said. "I consider this a clear-cut victory."

AFTER HIS AMENDMENT to the old bill was adopted, Mr. Powell explained, when no one called him from the White House, and the leadership of neither the Senate nor House got in touch with him, directly or indirectly, he said he went to Mr. Vinson.

In the presence of members of Mr. Vinson's staff, Powell said, he told the House Armed Services Committee chairman that "the only way we are going to have a Reserve is to either have an integrated National Guard or cut the National Guard out (of the bill) completely."

Powell said he went to the House floor and told members that Vinson said "This is impossible, I will not do it."

"NOW THE impossible has come to pass," Mr. Powell said, adding: "If what Mr. Vinson said is true, I will vote for the bill. However, the problem of segregation in the National Guard still remains."

He said he sent a telegram to President Eisenhower Monday to ask the Chief Executive's office on Congressman Abraham Multer's bill to abolish segregation in the National Guard, which has been pending for nine years without any hearings."

Summing up the results of his fight against assignment of trained personnel to the National Guard, Rep. Powell said:

"1. We have eliminated federal approval of segregated National Guards as part of the Ready Reserves.

2. We have eliminated the power of Governors of States to reach into the Reserves and draft into the National Guard young men to serve in segregated units of the National Guard.

"3. We have eliminated men going into the Reserves, taking their six months of training, then leaving the Reserves and going into a lily-white National Guard."

REP. VINSON told reporters Monday that his bill will produce "a strong, virile Reserve made up of men, who, for the most part, will have had at least two years of active duty."

Under the Vinson proposal, the total military obligation for all men is reduced from eight to six years. This was the first major change from the original National Reserve Plan.

Under existing law, men who entered the Armed Forces after June 19, 1951, have a total military obligation of eight years. Vinson's proposal reduces the obligation to six years. It also contains no reference to six months' volunteers.

"IN OTHER WORDS," said Mr. Vinson, "the Ready Reserves will be composed of individuals who have been inducted, or have been enlisted or appointed in the Armed Forces.

The new bill also contains a provision for continuous screening of units and members of the Ready Reserve to insure that all members will be available for mobilization in case of a national emergency.

It provides that when members of the Ready Reserve have extreme personal hardships or possess critical civilian skills, they may be transferred to the Standby Reserve.

MR. VINSON said the Armed Forces under his proposal would be able to build up a strong Ready Reserve with an ultimate objective of 2,900,000 members.

He also said his bill in no way effects the National Guard. The bill, he said, will still continue the age of 18 years for enlistment for Guard units.

Under present law, such young men remain liable for induction up to age 35. But the Chester-approved bill to extend the regular draft law reduces this liability to age 26. The Senate-approved bill raised the House age from 26 to 28.

MR. VINSON indicated that the final age of liability for young men would undoubtedly be somewhere between 26 and 28 years of age.

He said, under his proposal, the National Guard would be able to continue its recruitment of present strength of 410,000.

Nothing in his proposal, he added, will prevent the National Guard from recruiting an additional number of young men in an effort to increase the size of the National Guard to its ultimate goal of 712,000.

MR. VINSON also indicated that if his bill does not result in a Ready Reserve of 2,900,000, existing law permits the President to reduce the draft period to any reasonable number of months that he considers feasible.

Dr. Murphy

friends, I express my warmest thanks."

He pays high tribute to Roy Wilkins, newly elected executive secretary, and cites the fact that he was one of the "great newspapermen" trained and who served as editor of the late Jesse Franklin at the Kansas City Call.

DR. MURPHY then gave a brief biography of his life, in which he said, in part:

"I was born two stories above a printing office. The type cases were in the cellar of our house and the older children and my father worked there.

"When I was 3, my father bought the AFRO-AMERICAN for $200 and set it up in a print shop a block away.

"Two years before he died in 1922, he wrote a letter to his children. He said I would like to live to be 100. Just in case I do not make it, I will celebrate it now by writing this letter which you are not to open until Dec. 25, 1940!"

"In that letter, he said:

"'NOBODY WANTS his wife to believe him a failure. He sometimes doesn't care what his children think, but he always likes to be a hero to her. If the AFRO-AMERICAN lives, it will be because I couldn't let her down.

"The AFRO-AMERICAN has its own building now and a circulation of 8,500. It has 16 employees and pays them every week, but that is horseleathers to what it can do.

"'I measure a newspaper not in buildings, equipment and employees—those are trimmings.

"'A newspaper succeeds because its management believes in itself, in God and in the present generation. It must always ask itself—

"'Whether it has kept faith with the common people;

"'Whether it has no other goal except to see that their liberties are preserved and future assured;

"'WHETHER IT IS fighting to get rid of slums, to provide jobs for everybody;

"'Whether it plays out of politics except to expose corruption and condemn injustice, race prejudice and cowardice of compromise.'

"'The AFRO,' he said, 'has always had a loyal constituency who believe it honest, decent and progressive. It is that kind of newspaper now and I hope it never changes.'

"That is the end of the letter.

"So, for a father who wanted to be around on his 100th birthday to see what his children did with the newspaper he left them, I accept this Spingarn Medal.

"To him, to my mother, my brothers and sister, to my wife who has put up with me for 39 years, to my five children and to the 200 employees of the AFRO, who mark this as a special occasion, I dedicate the larger part of this award.

"FOR THE MURPHY family, this has been a great day for the Irish.

"I dedicate a second share of this Spingarn Medal to my fellow publishers of the weekly press.

"For more than 100 years they have held up a light in their individual communities so that their readers might find the way to freedom and citizenship.

"Every editor I know advocates and supports the civil rights program of this association as though it were his own.

"SECRETARY WILKINS advised me in his official notification, and Governor Meyner repeated it today ,that this award is for achievement in civil rights and cooperation with the NAACP.

Dr. Murphy then recalls the words: "Omnipresent and inescapable are the evidences and results of segregation which challenge him to crusade against them," and added:

"The first editorial I ever wrote—37 years ago—pointed out the unjust Maryland State law under which the minimum salary for colored teachers was fixed at $378 a year and the minimum for white teachers at $504 a year when both were doing the same work.

"For 17 years we made no headway because it is one thing to advocate reforms. It is a different thing to set up an organization to effect them."

HE THEN POINTS out that 20 years ago, the Baltimore NAACP branch was revived and today "it is one of the largest in the nation under the magnificent leadership of Lillie Jackson, the city's most remarkable woman."

It was under Mrs. Jackson's administration, he says "that things began to happen." Dr. Charles H. Houston, the NAACP's first chief legal counsel, being called upon to test the state law fixing different salary scales for teachers according to race.

"We won that first case in Montgomery County, then filed suits in five other counties before the rest of the state capitulated and struck the words 'colored' and 'white' out of the law," he says.

ASSERTING THAT the "first NAACP case to compel a state university to open its doors to all the citizens was filed in Maryland," he points out that "the only reason it did not get to the Supreme Court first was that both the lower state court and the Court of Appeals ruled in our favor."

After opening the law school, he says, they found it necessary to sue 6 enter the schools of engineering and nursing, adding that finally, last year, the summer school and collegiate departments voluntarily dropped the color bar.

Other Maryland NAACP victories cited by Dr. Murphy included:

The right of employment in a private library supported by state funds, the right to use municipal golf courses (3 cases) and the right to "travel on railroads without sitting in jim-crow cars."

Citing the fact that "When the Supreme Court acted May 17, 1954, in the public school cases, we had suits in Baltimore City courts asking integration of high and vocational schools," he points to the following pending suits:

1. To open municipal swimming pools to all without discrimination — in U.S. District Court.

2. To require the state and city to end the color line in public beaches—U.S. Supreme Court.

HE ADDED that Maryland's Governor McKeldin has on his desk a petition signed by 18 Korean War veterans asking that he, as commander-in-chief of the state militia, integrate the Maryland National Guard.

Expressing the hope of Marylanders that Governor McKeldin—"Who has the power to do so"—will integrate the guard without delay, he says "If he fails to do so, we have no recourse except to the federal courts."

"In these and many other cases involving racial discrimination," Mr. Murphy says "Baltimore attorneys, educated in the University of Maryland law school through efforts of the NAACP, have served without pay.

"The national office has furnished chief counsel and perfected our briefs.

"THURGOOD MARSHALL, my fellow Marylander, the NAACP's distinguished chief counsel; Bob Carter, Jack Greenberg of the national legal staff are as well known in Maryland as they are anywhere.

"In every instance they have not only come willingly, but they have been unsparing in their time and patience.

"So that, to us, cooperation with the NAACP is not a slogan; it is a necessity. Without such cooperation, we get nowhere. With it we are on our way toward making our city and state a decent place in which to live and educate our children."

Dr. Murphy then dedicates "a third, large share of this Spingarn Medal award to "Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson, president of the Baltimore branch and the Maryland State Conference of the NAACP Branches, and Thurgood Marshall and his associates in legal defense.

"Now, what of the future?" he asks.

COMPARING THE current situation under the Supreme Court's anti-segregation decision on public schools with that in 1866 after the Congress had passed the Civil Rights Act and the states ratified the 14th Amendment in 1867, he asks if conditions are not similar.

"Then as now," he declares, "the 14th Amendment guaranteed to all citizens identical privileges and immunities and absolute equality before the law.

"The individual states were restrained from the use of their police powers to discriminate against citizens on the ground of color.

"Then as now the alarm was sounded that the Federal Government had usurped the powers of the states and they said no laws could be enforced which was not supported by public opinion.

"But we know that a law can be enforced if it is counter to public opinion, when public opinion is wrong. They said then, as they say now, that laws cannot overcome prejudice.

"WE KNOW THAT prejudice is a state of mind and when the individual translates that attitude into public action the law can restrain him. We know that the very existence of the law and its threat of punishment is a deterrent.

"They asked then and they ask now should colored persons 'force themselves' upon white persons in public places where they are not wanted?

"We know that places are licensed or supported by all of the taxpayers and are the common property of all the citizens. No special group has a right to preferment in public institutions, whether attendance in compulsory or voluntary.

"They said then and they say now that integration will lead to intermarriage between the races and that, that is to be abhorred.

"WE KNOW THAT all the marriages that we have ever heard anything about require the voluntary consent of two contracting parties and that either side can say no."

He then cites the fact that judges were jailed for refusal to permit colored persons to testify as witnesses in courts, to obtain marriage licenses, use waiting rooms in stations or to be parties to contracts, then adds:

"In the light of some utterances we have heard recently in Virginia—this will interest you —in 1867 Maryland Legislature passed a law to reimburse magistrates or justices for costs and fines to which they were liable for rendering decisions adverse to the Federal Civil Rights Act.

"JUDGE McGRUDER of Maryland was arrested seven times for refusing to permit colored persons to testify in his court. Five magistrates in Norfolk, Va., were similarly arrested and convicted.

"Judge Thomas was arrested in Alexandria, Va., and jailed in Richmond, but these were the exceptions.

"The great majority of the judges and citizens accepted the Federal Civil Rights Act and the 14th Amendment as the law of the land.

"And they lived and prospered under it for nearly 30 years, until 1896 the Supreme Court approved the infamous theory of 'separate but equal' in the case of Plessy Vs. Ferguson.

"A while ago, I raised the question whether or not we today are in approximately the same situation we faced in 1866-67 when the Civil Rights Act and the 14th Amendment were proclaimed the law of the land.

"I say the situation is not quite the same.

"THEN AS NOW the law guaranteed equal citizenship and due process.

"But in the 90 intervening years we have qualified for a citizenship that the Civil War bestowed upon us. We have earned our bread, purchased our homes, educated our children, learned the power of the ballot.

"But, most important of all, we have organized and operated an NAACP to secure these rights and to maintain them against all odds. Because of the NAACP we find ourselves in a far better position than we were at the close of the Civil War.

"Then the Charles Sumners and the Thaddeus Stevenses spoke for us. Today we speak for ourselves.

"Then, the Abolitionists and the so-called radicals were our chief allies.

"TODAY A GREAT American chorus consisting of the Protestant, Jewish and Catholic Churches, leaders of the Republican and Democratic parties and millions of fairminded people of all races sing together the hymn of freedom and democracy without regard to race, color or religion.

"I was especially struck by a statement of principles issued Tuesday by the Central Conference of American Rabbis to support desegregation moves in every community.

"To achieve our goals there are many struggles ahead. Every community which deserves equality must demand it, fight for it and earn it."

Warning system on solons asked

By JAMES L. HICKS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.—Clarence Mitchell, director of the NAACP Washington office, Wednesday asked the convention to set up a nationwide warning system to report on activities of Congressmen who seek to kill civil rights legislation.

The request was made following his charge that Republicans and Democrats in Congress have united in a bi-partisan program to "smother" civil rights measures.

Mr. Mitchell called for a system "so perfect that overnight we can blanket the country with information on what individual members of Congress are doing about civil rights legislation—in committee or on the floor."

URGING that the program be put into effect immediately, Mr. Mitchell asked the 30 state organizations to report on their members from each of its conference to work together "riding herd" on Congress where civil rights legislation is concerned.

He explained to the convention that "the complicated nature of the legislative maneuvers used to kill civil rights makes it imperative that we have a nation-wide team of technicians who can move into action on short notice."

Elaborating on his charge that the move to kill civil rights legislation is a bi-partisan agreement, Mr. Mitchell said Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas stands at one end of Pennsylvania "ever ready to douse the smallest spark of positive action with a bucket of harmony."

AND "at the other end the President maintains complete silence on much needed civil rights bills, but becomes extremely vocal in opposing vital civil rights amendments."

"We must," he added, "become students of double-talk in order that we may identify those who use it; and to withhold our votes from them when they seek public office."

The Washington official's call for a warning system was directly in line with the aims and objectives announced by Secretary Roy Wilkins on the opening day of the conference.

At that time Mr. Wilkins stated that one phase of the convention would be devoted to political action in which delegates would be instructed on how to use their political power.

Dr. Murphy is being honored for his work in journalism, in the cause of civil rights, and for his cooperation and support of the NAACP.

Powell Gets Support

Convention raps Ike's Reserve Bill stand

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.—The NAACP convention Thursday unanimously adopted an emergency resolution supporting Congressman Adam Clayton Powell in his fight for anti-segregation amendments on the Military Reserve Bill and condemned President Eisenhower for his opposition to Mr. Powell's effort.

The resolution, which was immediately wired to both Houses of Congress, urged Mr. Powell to "stand firm" and stated that the NAACP "condemns" all efforts to force withdrawal or circumvent the amendment, whether by President Eisenhower and his denouncement of this so-called rider or by Congressman Vinson in his efforts to substitute another bill.

THE RESOLUTION was the third slap at the President since the convention opened and came on the fourth day of the session. Mr. Wilkins hit at the President in his opening press conference, Thurgood Marshall took another shot at him in his Wednesday night address and the convention as a whole came in with the emergency resolution Thursday.

Vice President Nixon is scheduled to address the conference on Sunday.

His statement harmed branch, says secretary

on request today scheduled to act 3-man committee

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — A three-man committee was scheduled to meet Friday, June 24, to act on a request that Dr. Monta Joe Cobb of Washington be disciplined by the National Board of the NAACP for actions in 1954, which Eugene Davidson, president of the Washington Branch considered "harmful to the branch and the National Association.

THE LOCAL branch had dequested the resignation of Col. West Hamilton and Wesley S. Williams, an attorney.

Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Williams demanded the resignation of the two men when they failed to support Dr. Margaret Just Butcher in a Board of Education fight.

Roy Wilkins, NAACP secretary, has named Judge Carl R. Johnson of Kansas City; Judge Theodore O. Spaulding of Philadelphia and Alfred Baker of Connecticut, all Board Members, as a committee to hear both sides of the controversy between Dr. Cobb and Mr. Davidson.

The controversy dates back to March 4, 1954, when I. Cobb, then a member of the National Board, resigned as a member of the local branch when it ce-involving school segregation.

His letter gave information as to business going on inside the branch and Mr. Davidson charged that its publication was "harmful" to the branch.

He asked the National Board of Directors to censure Dr. Cobb.

The real estate has been turned over to Carol Hynson and William Johnson to sell.

Freedom fund drive in '54 success, convention told

ATLANTIC CITY — The first year of the "Fight for Freedom Fund" campaign "has been a success."

This note of optimism was struck here Wednesday, June 22, at the opening session of the NAACP's 46th annual convention by Dr. Channing H. Tobias, chairman of the board, who recommended the campaign to the 1953 convention.

He reported that the association raised $1,072,544 in general, legal and local funds in 1954, that enabled the organization to intensify its work.

DR. TOBIAS said in his report to the delegates:

"We have not reached our goal, but we are well on our way.

"Only our own apathy or a complete reversal in the present climate of opinion can halt our forward march."

"THE MOST significant event of this year has been the Supreme Court's ruling of May 31 reaffirming and implementing its historic decision of May 17, 1954, which laid down the principle that segregation in publicly-financed education is unconstitutional.

"Many southerners who were at first entranced by the disarming simplicity of the court's language in the May 31 ruling have taken a second look.

"They now realize that they were not given an indefinite time in which to start desegregation.

"THEY ARE beginning to realize that the court did not give them until next year, or to the year 1973.

"Governor Hodges of North Carolina and others have awakened to the realization that the court means for them to start desegregation now.

"Today is the deadline, not 1956 or 2045 — the date acceptable to the attorney general of South Carolina."
