Hopes Voiced For Baptist Groups' Reunion

Md. delegates in Fla. at National Baptist Convention

Delegates from the Maryland Baptist Convention left here Monday evening for Jacksonville, Fla., where they will attend the annual sessions of the National Baptist Convention, Tuesday through Sunday.

Among those who left by train were: the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Butler, Mt. Sinai Baptist Church; the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Edmond D. Meade, Israel Baptist Church; the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Scott, Community Baptist Church, Jessup, Md.;

Mesdames Emma Epps, Mary Matthews, Mattie Johnson, Jerolyn Shaw, Irene Gaskins, Matthew W. Hill, Eva B. White and Della Wright. Mrs. Maude Campbell of Wilmington, Del., joined the group in Baltimore for the southern trip.

Dr. Jackson moving to heal breach

15,000 delegates invade St. Louis for convention

By-laws proposed to restrain suits within churches

By JAMES L. HICKS

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Dr. J. H. Jackson, president of the National Baptist Convention Inc., said Wednesday that he will recommend some changes in the basic Baptist Church law and disclosed that his convention has already made overtures toward sealing the breach between the two major colored Baptist groups in America.

He made the statement at his opening press conference of the 74th Annual Baptist Convention as 15,000 Baptists from all over the nation poured into St. Louis and were registered at the rate of three persons every seven seconds by three amazing machines developed by the National Cash Register Company at the suggestion of a colored Baptist minister.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson also disclosed that the coming convention will serve as the kick-off of a drive for one million dollars, which the Baptists hope to raise by next year, which will be used to pension Baptist ministers, give relief to ministers in need, extend the church work and enlarge its scholarship fund.

Dr. Jackson told his press conference at the Jefferson Hotel that he will propose a resolution to the convention which will be drawn up to "hinder local parishioners and pastors" from taking the Baptist Church into court each time they become involved in matters of controversy in the church.

—o o o—

HE DID NOT quibble when he was asked whether or not the resolution arose out of the recent actions in which dissident church members have gone to the courts with their disputes. He said frankly that too much of this has been done in recent years and that it must be stopped.

He said the Baptist Church, like other churches, have always agreed on the separation of church and state, but he said that there is "nothing specific on our church books which a judge of a court can refer to and say 'this action has no business here.'"

He made it plain that his resolution would set up machinery inside the Baptist Church through which a complainant must first go before he could enter the courts against the church.

—o o o—

DR. JACKSON, who only recently has been named as one of two colored clergymen on the all-important, 90-man governing body of the World Council of Churches, was then asked whether or not he saw any opportunity in the future of a reunion of the two big colored Baptist groups—that is a union between the National Baptist Convention, USA, Inc., which he heads; and the National Baptist Convention of America, which is now holding its meeting in Jacksonville, Fla.

—o o o—

HE REPLIED that he has the highest hopes for such a reunion and said that his hopes were based on the fact that the differences between his group and the other is "not doctrinal but economic."

He then went on to point out that the split in the church arose over a fight for the control of the publishing house owned by the convention.

He said one man gained control of the publishing house and this brought about the split because others felt that no one man should control it.

"FRIENDSHIP WILL help to bring us together," Dr. Jackson said. He then disclosed that his convention has deposited $10,000 in a bank headed by the director of the other Baptist convention.

The rapid registeration of the incoming delegates marked the first time in the history of the nation that such NCR machines had been used to register delegates at a convention.

The machines are the brainchild of the Rev. E. B. Hicks, a missionary Baptist minister of Topeka, Kansas. The Rev. Mr. Hicks, a former "tinkering mechanic," invented the machine which resembles a cash register, and sold his idea to the National Cash Register firm.

—o o o—

THEY PRODUCED the machines and sent three of them to the convention to be operated by the Rev. Mr. Hicks, his wife, and Mr. Valentine Sawyer of Kansas City, whom the Rev. Mr. Hicks trained to operate them.

Each machine is capable of registering one delegate every seven seconds and all three were in operation for hours on Wednesday as the Baptists poured in.

Rollins feted at GOP dinner

No mention made of mixed schools

By JESSE H. WALKER

The Republicans launched their general election campaign on Wednesday with a testimonial luncheon for Attorney General Edward D. E. Rollins, the man who ruled that segregated schools are still in effect in the counties until the Supreme Court "implements" its decision.

None of the speakers, including Governor McKeldin, Senators John Marshall Butler and J. Glenn Beall and Mr. Rollins made mention of the school segregation issue.

The dinner for Mr. Rollins was given by the Republican Lawyers Club of Maryland and over 500 lawyers — Republicans and Democrats— attended the affair in the main ballroom of the Emerson Hotel. Very few colored lawyers were present.

—o o o—

MR. ROLLINS is running for election to a full four-year term in office and is the second man on the Republican ticket this year. Mr. McKeldin, of course, heads the ticket. Neither Senator Butler nor Senator Beall is up fr election this year.

Noted pioneer businessman dies at shore

WILDWOOD, N.J. — Funeral services for James Alvin Johnson, 77, of 138 W. Spicer Ave., a pioneer resident and businessman here, will be held next week.

Coming to Cape May County when only seven years old, he worked with his father as a boy for the Holy Beach Development Co., one of the first real estate companies on the island.

Mr. Johnson later built the Glenn Oaks Hotel which he operated for many years.

HE WAS THE FIRST colored policeman on Five Mile Beach. His son, Parker, is a member of the local police department.

—Political Scene—

Republican Viewpoint

By HARRY A. COLE

Well, the lines are drawn and the chips are down. There remains but one thing to do to win: to convince the voter.

Whenever a candidate or political party solicits your vote you should ask one simple question: What are you going to do for me.

If the candidate makes promises, they should be weighed in light of past performances. This will enable the voter to make an intelligent evaluation of the candidate of party as an instrument for his welfare.

—o o o—

AS TO AN evaluation of a political party, the voter must take views.

He must view the party on a local level and its contribution to him in his community. He must take into account the party's contribution to him socially and economically on a national level.

He must weigh fulfillment of promise against long extended periods of office.

He must separate, in his thinking, reforms due to local administration from those gained by national influence. It is suggested that by this means he will be able intelligently to appraise the party's worth.

—o o o—

TO ILLUSTRATE this point, take a glance at the two major parties of Maryland on a local level. The Democratic party has been in power almost ten times as long as the Republican.

Yet, the Republican party has contributed a hundred times more than the Democratic party to our social, economic and educational progress. This is no idle boast but substantiated by facts.

The Republicans opened the way for police officers, equal salaries for teachers, parole of officers, representation on Boards of Recreation and parks, Schools Boards, Department of Public Welfare, a magistrate at Northwestern, representation in the office of the City Solicitor and the Attorney General, and numerous other positions.

With the exception of an assistant State's Attorney, appointed on the eve of an election, the Democrats have failed to promote our cause.

—o o o—

"THIS IS NOT to suggest that the Republicans have done enough nor that we should be satisfied. We are not satisfied.

However, it should clearly point up the fact that the material gains have come when the Republicans have been in office and that we have been ignored by the Democrats who are in office more frequently.

It is further significant to note that the progress, which has come through the Republican party could only have come because of responsible, sympathetic leadership.

This is due to the candidate who heads the party and, as Governor, seeks re-election.

It would be without merit for a comparison to be drawn between Dr. Harry Byrd and Governor McKeldin. The two men have enjoyed totally different experiences.

Each has clearly indicated his position on you and me. There should be no question as to which man merits your support in November.

Democratic Viewpoint

By LLOYAL RANDOLPH

It is a matter of record that the Democratic Party is the party of the people. Twenty years of good Democratic Administration proved this.

The Democrats left marks on the books that will never be erased, in spite of the things the Republicans are trying to do with the public funds and resources.

The creation of the USHA and the Federal Housing Administration made jobs for thousands of skilled and unskilled persons, and made it possible for people to live in comfortable, well lighted homes for the first time.

These things make up what was once termed the "family." It has served to keep the "family" together. It is the root of a democracy.

—o o o—

ONCE IN a while a man comes along on a state - level whose experience is wide enough to develop a state - wide program suited to the needs of the people.

A man who has never had any money to speak of, a man who has dedicated his whole life to the development of American institutions—that man is Dr. H. C. Byrd.

Everywhere I travel I find new things about him that he is too modest to mention himself.

His influence was felt in the decision to integrate the University of Maryland. In fact he told the Board of Regents not to try to circumvent the recent Supreme Court ruling, but to abide by it.

This was done. This, mind you, was after he had stepped down as president.

—o o o—

INCIDENTLY DR. Raymond A. Pearson was president of Maryland when Donald Murray sued for admission in 1935. The law of the land was "separate but equal" during that time.

We failed to challenge that ruling for some 40 years.

We are all grateful that Maryland through Donald Murray made the challenge, and that in 1954 the Supreme Court ruled against itself in favor of humanity.

—o o o—

THE SUPERVISORS of Elections office is recording colored Democrats by the dozens each day. They claim it is just short of amazing the numbers that are registering.

It shows you that some people are ready to rebuke the present Republican administration, the do nothing, promise ex-tion.

The nice thing about him is he admitted when he was elected some four years ago, that he was a "one-time Governor." We should make sure he keeps his word.

Another Democratic Viewpoint

By ROBERT B. WATTS

In any local election, the popularity of the party on the national level plays a very important roll in determining the results of local elections.

Maryland in one of the so-called "pivotal" states in that both the Republican and Democratic parties will go all out to win it. The question of majorities in both houses of Congress is crucial.

The Republicans want a majority so they can put over their program and the program of a Republican president.

The Democrats want a majority so that they can stop those features of the Republican program they disfavor and, at the same time, to put over some measures of their own.

—o o o—

THIS POSES for us the question of how far we shall go in looking to the national picture for help in selecting candidates. There are many who oppose the Republican national platform because of widespread unemployment.

George E. Meany, AFL President talked on Labor Day of our vanishing prosperity, citing figures to show that unemployment is now 2½ times greater than it was a year ago.

There are many who oppose the Republican Administration because they feel the Republicans have favored the rich, in the derogation of the working man and the poor, and because the fight against communism has failed.

They point with little pride at the doings of Senator McCarthy and consider his a Republican liability.

—o o o—

ON THE OTHER hand, many admire the stand of Eisenhower and his administration with respect to civil rights. They agree with Adam Clayton Powell, a Democrat, that he has done more than any other President in this field.

The Democrats, on the days between now and the general election, will attack the Republicans on these and other issues.

The local Republicans, in order to influence the colored voters, will surely emphasize the civil rights stand taken by Eisenhower, including the stand his administration made on the school cases before the Supreme Court of the United States.

WE DEMOCRATS must counter with the stand taken by Roosevelt and Truman and point out that the first Solicitor General to appear before the Supreme Court on a civil rights case was Phillip Pearlman in the covenant cases on jim crow housing.

We must then hammer away to unemployment and its adverse effect since the Republicans took over, coupled with the "favor the rich" policy of the present administration.

Herein lie the essential issues to be debated in the days to come.

ALL IN ALL this campaign should be aired and presented on issues that touch the very lives of each of us. It is hard to predict the effect national issues will have on the local campaign, but suffice it to say they will carry some weight and should be an important consideration.

I say, as I repeat over and over in this column, that we should take into consideration all of the features of a party's platform, accomplishments and promises, and intelligently debate them t the end that our vote will be intelligently cast and about all, pro and con.

Dr. Jackson's move to adopt greetings seen slap at Ike

By JAMES L. HICKS

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — President Eisenhower sent his "warmest greetings" to the 74th annual Baptist convention Thursday and President J. H. Jackson followed the unusual procedure of asking the convention to "adopt" it.

Political observers attending the convention saw Dr. Jackson's action as being a mild rap on the wrist of President Eisenhower for an action taken by the president a few weeks ago when Dr. Jackson returned from a church session in Europe.

Prior to his departure for Europe, an aide of Dr. Jackson's wrote the President telling him of Dr. Jackson's coming participation in church affairs there and suggested the President might be interested in a "report" from Dr. Jackson on his return to this country.

—o o o—

THIS WAS NOT an unusual procedure inasmuch as the President had invited Evangelist Billy Graham to the White House to "report" on his European travels.

The White House, however, in a letter signed by Tom Stevens, told Dr. Jackson's aide the President's tight schedule would not permit time for such a report.

Meanwhile, Dr. Jackson went to Europe and returned as a looming figure in the World Council of Churches, ultimately being elected to the strong 90-man central committee.

—o o o—

DURING THE same time the President was invited and accepted an invitation to address the world assembly of churches. When this became known, the aide of Dr. Jackson once more wrote to the White House asking for an audience and again pointed out that Dr. Jackson would be at the world assembly and thereby making it easy for the two to meet.

Once again, however, the White House notified Dr. Jackson that the President couldn't find the time for the meeting.

After Dr. Jackson's election to the central committee had been widely acclaimed in the press of the nation, one of his aides suddenly received a White House telephone call at the Baptist convention in St. Louis last week, informing him the President is deeply interested in Dr. Jackson's European observations and would be happy to meet with him after he returns to Washington from Denver.

—o o o—

THIS TELEPHONE call was followed by the President's personal message to the convention from his Denver headquarters.

When it was received and read at the convention by the Rev. H. J. Johnson, Dr. Jackson first asked the convention to adopt the message. Ordinarily in messages of this kind they are simply read to the body.

After "adoption" of the message, Dr. Jackson then said: "It is my hope that before this session is over this convention will have a message to send the President of the United States."

—o o o—

THE PRESIDENT's message said: "I extend my warmest greetings to all attending this year's annual session of the National Baptist Convention.

"I hope that you will have a successful meeting, giving new determination to work zealously for the spiritual health and happiness of the communities in which you live.

"And may the children learn from you that great religious ideal of self - dependence, enabling them to make the richest and fullest use of the opportunities of democracy.

"YOU HAVE MY earnest hope that you will energetically carry forward this splendid work."

Behind the scenes in the maneuvering between the two is the fact that this is election year; that Dr. Jackson supported Adlai Stevenson and is a Democrat and Republicans are out to capture the colored vote.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker of St. Louis, a Democrat, was present at the convention when the message was read.

Work Bench

WASHINGTON

Sometimes we like to believe that the problems of the human race can be settled by the application of certain standard remedies.

One of the most frequent prescriptions for sickness in the social order is education. Just give people education, we are told, and the petty little prejudices will disappear.

—o o o—

TWO OF MY friends who have often been told that education is the way to eliminate racial discrimination, live in a community where school integration is underway.

The local board of education has decided that it will end racial tags and treat all children alike. It has spelled this out in plain language so that even the most elementary mind can understand it.

Most of the school principals and teachers seem to be trying to comply. My friends had the misfortune of running into a principal who proves that the serum of education does not necessarily kill the germs of bigotry.

WALKING INTO the school office with the Board of Education in front of them and the U.S. Supreme Court behind them, my friends told the principal that they wished to enroll their child in school.

The school gives a special course and he thought he believed that their child is well qualified to profit by it. The principal's first question dealt with the residence of the parents.

On learning that the family did not live in the fashionable neighborhood of the school, the principal quickly informed them the child could not be taken because he did not live near the school.

—o o o—

THE PARENTS pointed out that under the board of education regulations a child may be admitted to any school if the principal is willing and entrance has not been restricted because of overcrowding.

At first the principal denied that there was such a regulation and produced a set of rules which govern admission. Among the rules was the one that the parents had mentioned.

The principal then said that the child needed a special test to get into the course that the school offered. He then suggested that the parents visit an assistant superintendent of schools who would arrange for the test.

—o o o—

UPON ARRIVING at the higher official's office, the parents found a warm greeting and a pleasant interview. The official expressed wry surprise, however, when he learned the purpose of the visit — namely a request for permission for the child to take the admission test.

He explained that children are first admitted to the school and later take the test. It was obvious from the conversation with him that the principal had sent the parents on a wild goose-chase.

The outcome of this incident has not yet been determined. However, enough facts are in hand to warrant a question about the effect of the principal on the lives of the children at the school.

—o o o—

HOW MUCH hope is there for reaching the solution of problems in human relations at that school? The chief officer of the institution could not properly stand for respect of the U.S. Constitution because the action of attempting to bar the child is defiance of the Constitution.

What is even more important is the question of how can honesty be taught at that school? When the chief officer is willing to violate the law by deception, what can we expect of the children?

SIMPLE RINGWORM
Leonard Turner, 1471 Prosecker St., Norfolk, Va.: "I suffered with an itching misery on my hand. It was a big ringworm. I used Black and White Ointment and in just a short while the itching misery was relieved. It helped me so much that I will always be thankful. I'm strong for Black and White Ointment."

ITCHY HANDS
Marshall Leverett, 2921 Putnam St., Detroit, Mich.: "I work in a steel mill, acids and grease get on my hands making them red, stingy, itchy. I used Black and White Ointment for relief. I was sure surprised how fast it eased the itching, burning and soreness. Can't say too much about your grand, ointment. It helped me a lot. I won't be without it for fast relief."

HICKIES (Blackheads, Pimples)
Aileen Franklin, 1216 U. St. N. W., Washington, D. C.: "I work as a waitress; my face broke out with ugly hickies. It embarrassed me terribly. The itching and smarting made me pick at them all the time. I tried many skin lotions and ointments. But none of them helped my misery like Black and White Ointment. The relief from the itching, stinging was wonderful. I only wish others could profit from your grand ointment like I have."

ATHLETE'S FOOT—ITCHY TOES
George Hollingsworth, 2189 E. 36th St., Cleveland, Ohio: "My toes and soles of the feet broke out and itched and burned something awful. A friend of mine said it was athlete's foot. I used Black and White Ointment. It sure relieved the itching, burning torment. Black and White Ointment is great. I can honestly recommend it to anyone suffering like I was. I keep a package at home all the time."

TETTER
Lillie Person, 1702 Chattanooga Pl., Dallas, Texas: "I suffered with itchy stingy discomfort when I had tetter. I tried Black and White Ointment. It sure helped relieve the itching, stinging smarting. Can't praise it enough for handy, helpful relief."

Baptists Re-elect Dr. Jackson

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Twelve thousand cheering and shouting Baptists re-elected Dr. J. H. Jackson, president of the National Baptist Convention, by acclamation Thursday, after Dr. Jackson had made his annual report.

He also proposed a series of sweeping changes in Baptist Church law, designed to tighten up and strengthen the sprawling Baptist church.

Following his re-election, Dr. Jackson's own church, the Olivet Baptist Church, Chicago, presented him with a 1954 Chrysler Imperial. It was the third car that Jackson has ever owned in his entire life. He purchased the other two himself.

The presentation of the car to Jackson by the Olivet Baptist Church made Jackson's successful conquest of control of the four million Baptists complete. What little opposition he has experienced, had come from within his own churches.
