Mother of 4 and husband both held in Twin Pines shooting

Victim is paralyzed; remains in critical condition at hospital

A 24-year-old mother of four children, who confessed she shot her boyfriend after he beat her in a wooded area near the Twin Pines Country Club, Essex, was charged in Towson, Saturday with assault and shooting.

Bail for Mrs. Janie Bell Sanders of the 1200 block E. Eager St., was set at $3,000 after she confessed to shooting James E. Vines, 29, of the 1800 block Ashland Ave., Thursday.

The victim, a construction worker, is still in critical condition at City Hospitals. He was shot through the right shoulder and his spinal column was severed two inches below the neck.

—o O o—

PHYSICIANS HAD to cut a hole in Vine's neck in order for him to breathe. Both hands and feet are paralyzed.

Baltimore County police are holding Mrs. Sanders' husband, John L. Sanders, without bail for questioning.

The victim first told police that an unidentified man drove them to Twin Pines. Mrs. Sanders told police she knew the driver only as a man called "Wine."

The shooting was reported to Essex County police around 8 a.m. by Mrs. Mildred Miles of the 400 block Back River Rd. Mrs. Miles called police after she heard a shot fired at the rear of her home.

Before Vines was found, neighbors reported hearing a series of low moans in the woods.

In a report dictated to police, Vines said that he was in company with Mrs. Sanders about 200 feet in the rear of the club when she pulled a gun from beneath a folded blanket on her arm and fired.

Vines said that he had been going with Mrs. Sanders since last March and that they went out to Twin Pines to neck in her car after meeting in a bar at Ashland and Rutland Aves.

En route, they stopped off twice to buy liquor. Earlier Mrs. Sanders had told him that she had a gun, Vines' statement said.

The woman's husband was supposed to have been out of town, Vines related.

—o O o—

AFTER ARRIVING AT the scene—Vines told police they went into the woods together in search of a place to sit down. Vines said he was walking in front when Mrs. Sanders shot him.

When arrested Mrs. Sanders denied that she had been in Essex at the time of the shooting. She claimed that she was at the Greyhound bus station waiting for a bus to Andrews, S.C.

She did admit, however, that she had been friendly with Vines, police said, but said they broke off when the affair became serious. On one occasion she said he had threatened to get even with her by telling her husband about their courtship, police reported.

—o O o—

MRS. SANDERS changed her story after she was taken to City Hospitals and identified by the victim.

Police said she admitted that she went out with him and that he became angry when she did not submit to his advances. He told her, she said, that "I was going to submit to him before I left for Carolina," police reported.

She told police Vines then threw her on the ground and started kicking her when she refused him. After the shooting she told police that she ran back to her car and told "Wine," "James is coming with a gang of men."

Mrs. Sanders confessed that she met "Wine" on the steps of a church at Eden and Chase Sts., about 15 minutes before meeting Vines. Vines, she said, had asked her to "take a ride in the country."

Following the shooting she told police she returned home and was taken to the bus station by her husband. En route to Carolina she wrapped the gun in a paper bag and threw it in a river while crossing a bridge.

Mrs. Sanders said she returned to Baltimore on the following day with her four children who had been vacationing with her mother.

She was arrested the next day while at work at a laundry in the 800 block Eastern Ave. Mr. Sanders was picked up for questioning and later identified by Vines as the man who drove them out to the night spot.

The four Sanders children are being cared for at the Pine Street Station.

Wives flee bodily harm

Cruelty cited in divorce cases

Testifying that her husband once tried to throw her out of a second-floor window, Mrs. Evelyn Thompson, hospital employee of 1441 E. Eager St., won a divorce this week.

Mrs. Thompson said that because of continuous beatings she was forced to leave Thomas Thompson in October 1952 two years after their marriage.

She said that even physicians at John Hopkins Hospital had advised her to leave her husband, "because I had ulcers of the stomach as a result of his mistreatment."

—o O o—

ALSO REPORTING continuous beatings by her husband, Mrs. Evelyn Watson of 1108 Shields Pl. divorced James Watson of 713 George St.

She said that a beating in September 1952 was so severe that she required hospital treatment and her husband served a 60-day jail term for the assault.

In divorcing Albert Brittingham of 1107 N. Monroe St., Mrs. Mildred Brittingham testified that because her husband would not work, she had to get a job and support the family.

—o O o—

MRS. BRITTINGHAM said that when she found a job in April, 1948, she also found an apartment. So she moved out and took their two children along, not wanting to support a healthy unemployed husband too.

When she became ill, Mrs. Brittingham said, she had to put the children in a foster home. Later, the husband took the children and they are now in his care.

Mrs. Brittingham, a restaurant worker, lives at 1706 Edmondson Ave. The couple was married in June, 1937.

—o O o—

ACCUSING HIS WIFE of infidelity, James Seward of 1935 Harlem Ave. divorced Mrs. Lethey Seward who, he said, is living with another man at 909 Madison Ave.

Mr. Seward said that in June 1950, two years after they separated, he searched out his wife to see his son and found them in the household of James Jones at the Madison Ave. address.

Arguments about household bills broke up her marriage according to Mrs. Jeannette Downey of 3400 Hawkins Point Rd., who divorced Hezekiah Downey.

—o O o—

SHE SAID THAT they had been married only eight months when her husband packed his clothes and left her.

Mrs. Hallie Lee Robinson, barmaid of 1034 N. Arlington Ave., divorced Walter Robinson, saying that they separated by mutual consent.

Their marriage lasted from December 1948 to June 1949 when, the wife said, "We talked it over because we weren't getting along and we agreed to separate."

CORRECTION

A photo in Tuesday's edition of the AFRO of the widow of George C. King Jr. at his funeral erroneously identified the person on Mrs. King's right arm as her daughter. The caption should have read Mrs. Elsie T. White, a niece of Mr. King and Mrs. Sophie Gray a nurse, are flanking Mrs. King.

We regret this error.

GIANTS

- Four games ahead and 18 games left to play
- This week's series with Milwaukee may be decisive
- Hank Thompson, slugging third baseman talks to Afro

By SAM LACY
AFRO Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Among the players of the New York Giants, there is no great display of confidence that the team can and will win the National League pennant.

But neither is there any suggestion of fear that it can't and won't.

—o O o—

"WE JUST THINK," said Hank Thompson to the AFRO Thursday, "that we've got as good a chance as anybody else."

Considering the Giants' position in the race at the time, one might suspect that the slugging third baseman of Leo Durocher's Polo Grounders was guilty of a classic understatement.

At the time, Tommy and his teammates were holding a four-game lead over their closest rivals, the Milwaukee Braves, with but 18 games remaining to be played by both of them.

—o O o—

SHOULD THE GIANTS win only nine of those 18, a mere .500 pace, the Braves would have to take 13 of the 18 they have left to even gain a tie.

"I've noticed," declared Thompson, "that several of the players on each of the other contending teams have been quoted in the newspapers. In almost every case they've predicted they'd win it.

"Well now, that's not altogether accurate. Some don't make a definite prediction, but the general tone is 'we're gonna win it, we also.'

"All of which is okay for them, I guess. But our guys haven't been doing much talking.

—o O o—

"OF COURSE," Thompson cracked, "it may be that we haven't been asked. You newspaper guys might figure Leo will do enough talking for all of us.

"Anyway, whatever the rea-

Marshall is NAACP speaker

Led school fight in Supreme Court

Thurgood Marshall, the man who had as much to do with Baltimore's integrated schools as anybody, will be the principal speaker at the Baltimore Branch NAACP kickoff membership meeting, Sunday, Sept. 19.

Mr. Marshall, NAACP special counsel, led the organization's successful fight before the Supreme Court in the five school cases which brought about the historic May 17 decision outlawing segregated schools.

The NAACP meeting will be held at the Sharp St. Memorial Methodist Church, Dolphin and Etting Sts. at 3 p.m.

—o O o—

A NATIVE of Baltimore, Mr. Marshall will speak on "Implementing the Supreme Court Decision of desegregation of public schools." He will also report on the 270 communities throughout the country which mixed schools this year.

The Rev. A. J. Payne, pastor of Enon Baptist Church, will bring his choir to the meeting to furnish the music and will introduce Mr. Marshall.

Others to be present include the former plaintiffs in the court

Bride finds Baltimore stinks, ends her 9-day marriage

Baltimore Stinks!

That was the opinion of a young 22-year-old bride whose nine-day honeymoon, in this city, ended in divorce this week.

Her husband, John W. McDowell, 23, of 605 Cherrycrest Rd., was granted a divorce on grounds of desertion by Judge Emory H. Niles of Circuit Court No. 2.

The couple was married in Baltimore, June 9, 1952. On June 18, 1952, the bride, Mrs. Bernice McDowell, packed her clothing, informing her husband that:

"She didn't like the way colored people lived in Baltimore and thought New York was much better," he said.

Furthermore, "She couldn't find a decent job, here, and wanted to be single and didn't want to live in Baltimore but wanted to go back to New York," he charged.

Mr. McDowell is a hospital attendant at the Veterans Administration Hospital. The couple was living at 604 Cherrycrest Rd. before they separated.

Residents, Taxi Firm Reach Agreement

Shakedown Or-

Residents, taxi company reach an agreement

Cab garage to stand; fences to shield site

In the interest of good community relationships, neighborhood residents and the Diamond Cab Company have made a compromise, allowing establishment of a cab garage in the Walbrook Ave. area.

Fearing that the business would cause property depreciation in the residential area, the homeowners took court action against locating the garage on a four-acre site bounded by Walbrook and Clifton Aves., the rear of Braddish Ave. and Dukeland St.

After several compromise meetings, the following agreement was reached for withdrawal of the court case:

1. In erecting the garage and terminal, the cab company will install a wire fence parallel to the alley west of Braddish Ave. from Clifton to Walbrook Ave.

2. Vines must be planted along the fence so that in due time, it will be covered with a screen of green leaves.

3. Another wire fence will be installed parallel to the alley east of the 2000 block Dukeland St., running south for a distance of approximately 100 feet from Clifton Ave.

4. Cab drivers using the terminal will make minimum use of the 1900 and 2000 blocks of Braddish Ave. and the 1900 and 2000 blocks of N. Dukeland St.

—o O o—

THE RESIDENTS were represented in the compromise agreement by the Braddish Ave. Neighborhood organization headed by W. D. Barnes; and by the Dukeland Ave. Neighborhood Organization headed by Brown M. Pinkney.

The cab company was represented by the Monumental Protective Association and the Association of Independent Taxi Operators, Inc., Al Weinstein, president.

In the course of the discussions, Mr. Weinstein promised

"I saw it coming and there was nothing I could do. There are no words to describe how a person feels when struck by a 4½ ton object 30 feet up in the air."

From his bed in Maryland General Hospital, 35-year-old Thurman Phillips of 1301 Myrtle Ave., told the AFRO Thursday how he was injured when struck by a cement bucket atop the new Lafayette Courts at Orleans and Low Sts.

More than 300 persons watched the dramatic rescue Tuesday as an ambulance crew and construction workers carried the injured man down 11 flight of stairs on a stretcher.

—o O o—

THE RESCUE was performed by Fire Fighters Julian Miller and Omar Wessell who answered the alarm at the new housing project around 3 p.m.

When they arrived they found Phillips suffering from shock 200 feet on top of the wind swept project building.

The injured man narrowly escaped being crushed to death when the heavy steel bucket attached to a crane flattened him.

The accident occurred when the brake slipped on the machine. The bucket contained about a yard of cement.

—o O o—

WITH THE assistance of workmen, supervised by Louis Minton, foreman of the cement crew, construction supervisor Robey Ellsworth and crane operator Lawrence Martin, the rescuers began their long descent with their 135-pound burden.

To relieve the intense pain the ambulance crew propped Mr. Phillips legs up with three fold-

Girl who 'died' in hospital now at home

Pert Josephine Smallwood, 20, who lay dead for two minutes on an operating table at City Hospitals on Aug. 17, is at home this week recuperating from the experience.

After she had undergone anesthesia in preparation for an operation, physicians noticed that she had no sign of life — no blood pressure, no pulse, no breathing and no heart beat.

The operating physician cuts open her chest and massaged the heart until it began to beat again. He said that such an experience is "not terribly uncommon," occurring probably once in 5,000 to 5,000 cases. Miss Smallwood's operation has been postponed indefinately.

Double funeral for mother, son

4 deaths in family in past 4 months

Double funeral services were held at St. James P.E. Church Thursday afternoon for Mrs. Ida C. Biggers Short, 62, and her son, Edward George Biggers, 28, both of 740 Druid Hill.

Mrs. Short died at Johns Hopkins Hospital on Sunday. Her son suffered a brain hemorrhage and died suddenly on Tuesday.

The death of Mrs. Short and her son makes four deaths in their immediate family in the past four months.

—o O o—

RELATIVES feel Mrs. Short's death may have been hastened by grief over the August 22 death of her husband, Samuel A. Short, a retired postal employee.

Young Biggers' death is likewise said to have been hastened by shock over his mother's death. He had been ailing since his release from Army duty and he and his mother had been very close.

The fourth death in the family occurred May 9, when Mrs. Corrine Biggers Young suc-

Hold-up?

- What's behind attempted Whittier Avenue robbery?
- Have Big City gangsters invaded Baltimore again?
- High bail for five New Yorkers raises questions
- Who is Albert Williams, alias Albert Janson?

Have New York gangsters invaded Baltimore again?

Is there a fight on to gain control of Baltimore's lucrative numbers business?

Who is Albert Williams, who conducts a trucking business, and whose fortress-like home at 2003 Whittier Ave. was invaded Sept. 1 by two white men?

Did the men invade the home to stage a holdup or was the invasion part of a shakedown attempt?

Why would the New Yorkers pick Williams' home and represent themselves as NAACP solicitors to persuade his wife, Josephine, to admit them.

Is Mr. Williams a wealthy gambler?

Does he handle such large sums of money that he would attract the attention of persons as far away as New York City?

Is there any connection with the numbers business?

—o O o—

THESE ARE THE questions being asked this week as three white men with New York addresses and one with a Baltimore address, were held under extremely heavy bail in connection with what has been officially described as a holdup attempt.

Another man believe to have been wounded in the hold-up attempt is in Union Memorial Hospital and will be charged on his release within the next few days, police said.

Police said that after the men used the NAACP ruse to persuade Mrs. Williams to let them into the house, they fled empty handed when Mr. Williams dashed downstairs with a gun.

Williams fired five shots, striking one of the men who es-

1,200 classes in 47 schools mixed

Approximately 1,200 classes in Baltimore schools were integrated as the first week of the fall term neared an end on Thursday.

At week's end there were 47 schools scattered throughout the city having mixed enrolment. The majority of the new pupils have registered in elementary schools.

(See table of schools on page 6)

Official figures showing the total enrollment and the breakdown of colored and white students, and the complete list of integrated schools will be presented at the Sept. 16 meeting of the School Board.

At present it is known that there are at least 143,600 pupils enrolled this fall, which is a record school registration for the city.

—o O o—

THE HISTORICAL ending of school segregation, here, came about as results of the June 3 ruling of the School Board. Its action was in line with the Supreme Court's May 17th decision which outlawed separation of races in public education.

This integration marks the first time in Baltimore that

Principal welcomes change in policy

WASHINGTON

Expected to be on the integration "hot spot" as Virginia schools began registration, Tuesday, William Van S. Jackson was one of the happiest school officials in the state at the end of the day.

Mr. Jackson is principal of the Fort Belvoir public schools, which enrolled approximately 830 pupils Tuesday morning and assigned them to classes without regard to race or color.

"IT DID my heart good," he said, "the only thing that made me sad was that the same sort of integration could not go into effect all over at this time."

The Fort Belvoir schools, which instruct the children of military and civilian personnel living on the sprawling Army post, are the first in the D. C. area to adopt a policy of full integration.

The new policy is in keeping with a directive issued last February by Secretary of Defense Wilson ordering integration of school facilities on all mili-

Mrs. White left $113,000 estate

Mrs. Mary S. White left an estate valued at $113,000 records showed this week.

Administrators for the estate paid inheritance tax on that amount. The estate was at first estimated at $97,000. It consists chiefly of city real estate and was inherited by Mrs. White from her husband, Dr. James A. White, dentist, a brief 10 months prior to her death on Feb. 6.

—o O o—

ACCORDING TO a will left by her, the estate will go to four children: James A. White Jr., Randolph White, Lewis White and Mrs. Sarah White Johnson.

In addition, Mrs. Johnson received the family home at 806 Harlem Ave.

Dr. White, who died on April 8, 1952, not only had a lucrative dental practice here, but manufactured dental supplies.

He made a specialty of acquiring properties in sections where it was apparent that efforts were being made to bar colored residents.

—o O o—

AT THE time of his death Dr. White held properties at 1312 and 2013 Eutaw Place and at 1028, 1052 and 1056 Pennsylvania Avenue. He also owned an apartment house at 2329-2331 Madison Ave.

Mrs. White's estate contained all of the above and $4,976.37 in cash.

Marshall Levin, attorney, was executor for the estate.

Incoming students, who are expected this year to reach an all-time high of approximately 600, will be guided through an intensive training and get acquainted period designed to get them started in college "on the right foot."

—o O o—

SPECIAL INSTRUCTION will be given the freshmen on "how to study, how to read and how to take standardized reading tests," Dr. Otis D. Froe, director of student personnel and coordinator of the new program, disclosed.
