Mother insulted on witness stand

Tenderly identifies ring worn by son, removed from his body

Governor's special prosecutor calls Chicago mother 'Mamie'

SUMNER, Miss.—In a dramatic highlight of the lynching trial here, Mrs. Mamie Bradley took the witness stand Thursday and tenderly, but without tears, identified the ring taken from her murdered son's hand when his body was dragged from the Tallahatchie River, Aug. 31.

The pretty, pert mother stepped to the witness stand as the prosecution's first witness on the fourth day of the trial.

She was immediately asked about the ring because all day Wednesday the defense had hammered at six prosecution witnesses in an attempt to prove that the body taken from the river was not that of Emmett Till.

The ring, taken from the boy's finger by an undertaker, Chester Miller, was turned over to the sheriff and not sent to Chicago with the body.

ROBERT B. SMITH, white prosecutor specially assigned to the case by Gov. Hugh White, began questioning his own witness, Mrs. Bradley, by referring to her as "Mamie" instead of Mrs. Bradley.

After Mrs. Bradley told how she had identified her son's crushed body through careful study of what was left of his face, Prosecutor Smith handed her the ring.

She tenderly identified it as belonging to her dead soldier husband, Louis Till, and said her son was wearing it when he left Chicago.

The defense immediately jumped to cross-examination and defense counsel J. J. Breeland of Sumner began by making the unusual request that he be allowed to remain seated while cross-examining her. The permission was granted, but Breeland soon got to his feet to question her.

HE BEGAN BY ASKING her if she had been born in Mississippi.

She replied that she was born in Webb, a town about three miles from Sumner, but that she had left here when she was two years old.

Addressing her all the while as "Mamie," Breeland then began an attempt to question her about the newspapers she reads.

When he asked her if she is a subscriber to the Chicago weekly, the prosecution sternly objected.

Prosecutor Smith pleaded with the court not allow the defense to follow this line of questioning. He did not say so, but he apparently had the tense racial situation in mind here.

JUDGE SWANGO ORDERED the jury to leave the courtroom while he listened to what the defense had to offer before he ruled on the objection.

When the jury left Breeland revealed that he planned to question Mrs. Bradley on a number of clippings and articles from the colored press.

Judge Swango finally ruled that he would not permit her to be questioned about news articles or photographs with the exception of one photograph which the defense presented.

BREELAND THEN asked her if, when her son left Chicago, she had cautioned him on how to act around white in the South.

She answered that she had cautioned him on how to act and speak when he came here.

At this point Judge Swango then ruled that all such questions from the defense were objectionable and said he sustained the objections of the prosecution.

He then ordered the jury brought in again after warning Breeland that, that kind of questioning was definitely out.

IN SUMNER, Miss., Mr. Mose Wright, 64-year-old cotton sharecropper, and his son, Maurice, 12, on their farm just before he left to testify at the kidnap-murder trial of his great-nephew, Emmett Till. On the stand, Mr. Wright pointed to J. Milam, 36, white, and said "There he is," identifying him as one of two men who took young Till away. Roy Bryant is the other accused man.

MOTHER OF LYNCHED BOY TALKS TO REPORTERS—"I wanted everybody to know what they did to my boy," says Mrs. Mamie Bradley, mother of 14-year-old youth who was slain in Mississippi as she talks to reporters at trial. That's AFRO's Jimmy Hicks on left. Mrs. Bradley declined to attend trial until State promised her protection.

Cholmondeley Held

Surprise husband move fails to score

PHILADELPHIA—Dapper Dr. Walter V. Cholmondeley was held in $500 bail for the grand jury, Thursday, following failure to confront the widow who accused him of extortion with "a living husband."

Dr. Cholmondeley, who is assistant grand exalted ruler of the Elks Eastern District, is charged with obtaining money under false pretenses by Mrs. Ouida H. Copeland, 47, of 412 S. 24th St.

Described as Elk Exalted Ruler Robert Johnson's "right arm," Dr. Cholmondeley is accused of extorting approximately $700 and $200 in jewelry.

TALL, ATTRACTIVE Mrs. Copeland alleges that the former exalted ruler of Quaker City Elks Lodge received these sums in payment for funeral expenses of her late husband and his fraternal brother, Ernest B. Copeland, also a ranking Elk.

Mrs. Copeland stated that she found that her husband's funeral expenses of $475 had been borne by the Elks. Dr. Cholmondeley, who preached Mr. Copeland's funeral in February, told her the funeral bill was $750, the widow said.

Dr. Cholmondeley's surprise move was ignored by court officials when his attorney, Leroy Humbert, asked James H. Boyd of Atlantic City to step up to the bar as Mrs. Copeland's husband.

Magistrate Thomas J. Connor agreed with the district attorney's contention that Mr. Boyd's presence had no bearing upon the case. Mrs. Copeland had never married Mr. Boyd at the age of 15. The marriage was annulled, she explained.

MRS. COPELAND denied that the signature on a receipt stating that she had received $750 for the ring that was hers, Mr. Humbert, offered the signature on the receipt and her admitted signature on a letter to the court for comparison.

It was made clear that Dr. Cholmondeley had not received a $150 check from the Veterans Administration or a $75 check from the County Commissioner from Mrs. Copeland.

The Reynolds Funeral Home at 2044 Ridge Ave., refunded $150 to Mrs. Copeland.

ASSISTANT DISTRICT Attorney Vincent G. Gianti received a complaint from Miss Alice Schlumpf of 924 S. Eighth St., Allentown, who alleged that Dr. Cholmondeley received money from her upon strength of his promise to marry her.

Miss Schlumpf, who is white, has filed suit through her attorney, Marvin Levin, for recovery of the money which with interest thereon, amounts to $1,726.75.

When she telephoned Dr. Cholmondeley for at least the return of her ring, Mrs. Copeland declared that he brushed her off, calling her a nuisance.

Mrs. Copeland also stated that Dr. Cholmondeley called her a "frustrated woman" and said the presence of friends that he had no time to be bothered with her.

others at the colored press table who saw them leave in a car driven by a white man.

The farm managed by Milam is in Sunflower County. If the prosecution can definitely fix this as the murder site, the trial here will come to an end and a new one will begin there.

Woman in lynching case weaves fantastic story

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

SUMNER, Miss.—Mrs. Roy Bryant, the white woman whom 14-year-old Emmett Till allegedly whistled at, thereby causing his brutal lynching, began Thursday afternoon testifying as to what occurred in her Money, Miss. store on the night of Aug. 24.

The testimony of the 21-year-old woman stunned the court when she never once mentioned the alleged wolf whistle.

Instead she charged that the Chicago youth grabbed her around the hips, asked her for a date and told her he had "been with white women before."

Mrs. Bryant, speaking in a typical Southern accent, took the stand following the noon recess.

A SLIGHT brunette, she charged that young Till used obscene remarks when addressing her but refused to quote the exact words. She left the impression that to use such words would defile her.

Mrs. Bryant said that on August 24, a colored man entered her store in Money. She said she asked him what he wanted and she got it for him. She never testified, however, just what purchase the colored man wanted.

The wife of one of the men charged with young Till's death, Mrs. Bryant said that when she put her hand out for the money for the purchase, the colored man grabbed her arm and said, "How about a date, Baby?"

THE WOMAN testified that she struggled loose and turned from the colored man but he chased her around the counter and caught her at the cash register.

She said he placed his arms around her hips and then queried the man as asking: "What's the matter, baby? Can't you take it?"

It was at this time Mrs. Bryant was asked to use some of the exact language used by the man but she declined. She even refused to repeat one obscene word used.

"You needn't be afraid of me," Mrs. Bryant quoted the colored man as saying later. She said he then told her: "I've been with white women before."

IT WAS then, according to Mrs. Bryant that another colored fellow entered the store and caught her alleged attacker by the arm and led him out.

She said the first colored man made another obscene remark on the outside where some other colored men were standing and she then went to her car and got her pistol.

--Hicks arrested

one of the white reporters asked me how everything was going. I replied:

"Things are not going well right now. I'm under arrest."

Efforts of the reporters and even the editor of the newspaper to find out why I was being detained were fruitless.

The deputy sheriff repeated obstinately that he could not tell the charge.

FINALLY, AFTER a delegation of white and colored reporters had appeared on the scene, it was decided to get the sheriff to find out just why I was held.

It was then, and only then, that the deputy said I was being held because of a traffic violation.

Everyone breathed a sigh of relief—mine being the heaviest.

It happened that the Justice of Peace was a linotypist at the Sentinel and the man to try my case.

HE WAS TOLD by the law officer that Wednesday morning a report had been made that on my way to court I had passed a parked school bus, a violation of the Mississippi State law.

The justice of the peace shooed all the other reporters out of the building and took me into the back of the newspaper office to try my case.

After reading the state law to me concerning the passing of buses he said he was going to let me go.

I, in turn, apologized for not knowing the state law and admitted my error.

Before I left, the Justice of the Peace asked me if I didn't think he'd been fair.

I agreed.

Gets 1st U.S. marshal post

NEWARK

Steward Jackson, 43, of 232 Warren St., Newark, was sworn in Sept. 12 as the first colored deputy U.S. marshall in New Jersey by U.S. Marshal Joseph F. Job at the federal building in Newark.

He was formerly employed by the Essex County Board of Education, the Department of Motor Vehicles and as a clerk in the Newark Department of Public Welfare.

A native of Augusta, Ga., Mr. Jackson is married and is the father of two grown children.

Mr. Job said of his new deputy:

"Mr. Jackson will make a good deputy. He has a wonderful record on all of his past jobs and is a gentleman. He has been a personal friend of mine for years."

Since the beginning of September we have been removing from our poles all unauthorized signs and similar attachments which have been placed there in

VIOLATION OF THE LAW

Some of these signs may have cost their owners considerable money. And, of course, the job of removing them is an expensive one for us.

Regardless of cost, it is a job that must be done. Today over 50,000 of our poles are so cluttered with signs as to jeopardize the safety of linemen who must climb our poles in all kinds of weather . . . at all hours of the night and day.

We will continue to remove all signs, nails and other hazards as promptly as possible but we need your help in keeping our poles clean. So please . . . DO NOT PASTE, NAIL OR ATTACH, IN ANY WAY, ANY KIND OF SIGN TO A TELEPHONE OR ELECTRIC POWER POLE.

Weddings steal spotlight on Baltimore social calendar with Lula Jones Garrett...

The wedding of Miss Bernadette Anna Ellison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd Ellison, of this city, and Lt. Bernard Edward Madison took place in the Madison Avenue home of the bride, recently.

Lt. Madison is the son of Mrs. Nettie Madison and the late Robert Madison of Cleveland, Ohio.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Marion C. Bascom, and a reception followed.

The bride, who was escorted by her father, wore a gown of white satin, trimmed in lace. Her finger-tip length veil fell from a pearl crown, and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Misses Miriam C. Hughes, gowned in pink lace, and Viola O. Tutman, who wore blue lace, were here attendants. Both carried old-fashioned bouquets. Lt. Bradley was best man, and Lt. Green, usher.

The couple are at home in Washington, where they will live during his tour of duty and while she completes study for her degree at Howard University. Lt. Madison, a Howard graduate, is an engineer.

Prior to the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Ellison entertained at breakfast for out-of-town guests, who included Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Carter, Mr. and Mrs. James Saxton and son, Cornelius and Mrs. Mae Esterling of New York City.

CUTE MARY JANE HODGES reported to work as usual last week, but wearing that significant diamond on the "right" finger of her left hand.

By the-time her co-workers at the Maryland Department of Employment Security recovered from that surprise, she just about bowled them over by quietly announcing that she was well along on plans for an October 1st wedding.

A former WAC corporal, Mary Jane spent 36 months in the Army, 12 of them in Japan. She will exchange vows at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hodges of Barclay St., with Arthur Dunston Jr., a Washingtonian, who is employed at the Pentagon. Only members of the immediate family and a few close friends will witness the ceremony. A reception will follow.

The couple is readying a home in the 800 block of Richwood Avenue.

Miss Faulcon, Calvin Wesley married in St. James Church

Miss Mattie Faulcon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Booker T. Faulcon, became the bride of Calvin H. Wesley, here, Saturday, in a ceremony in St. James Protestant Episcopal Church.

The ceremony was read by Father Cedric Mills, with the wedding music being provided by William Parrott, pianist, and Donald Dixon, soloist.

MISS FAULCON, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory taffeta, made with a yoke of Alencon lace embroidered in sequins and pearls, and the skirt sweeping into a cathedral train. Her veil of illusion was fingertip length and she carried white orchids on a Prayer Book.

Miss Frankie Faulcon was her sister's maid of honor. Attendants included Misses Shirley Boone, Rosemarie Brockington, Phyllis Stokes and Carolyn Collins. Their gowns were of deep turquois and coral crystalette. They wore matching head pieces and carried old-fashioned bouquets of yellow roses.

The flower girl, Eileen W. Faulcon, wore a yellow frock. Ring bearer was Arthur Thompson.

WILLIAM E. ADAMS was best man for Mr. Wesley. Ushers were Francis C. Walker of Philadelphia and Phillip R. Hall, William G. Contee Jr. and Charles McDaniels of this city.

A reception in the Church Guild Hall, given by the bride's parents, followed the ceremony.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Faulcon chose a dress of grey lace over pink taffeta, a hat of pink and white iridescent sequins and a corsage of pink roses. The mother of the bridegroom wore brown lace and taffeta gown over beige. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

For their wedding trip to the Catskill Mountains, Mrs. Wesley selected a sheath dress with matching coat of tangerine velvet and beige accessories.

After Sept. 26, the couple will be at home at 1902 Pulaski St.

The bride is a junior at Morgan State College. Mr. Wesley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Wesley, a graduate of Morgan Colle, is employed at the Federal Reserve Bankin Philadelphia.
