Little Things

By JESSE H. WALKER

For three weeks tiny Gloria Lockerman was the hottest thing on television since Davy Crockett (what happened to him anyway?) and everybody since has been trying to crash her act.

But little Mrs. Webster — or, I mean Lockerman — continues calmly and merrily on her normal way and enjoys herself in child-like fashion, unspoiled and the attention her popularity has brought her.

I'll bet many a kid — and grownup too — threw away his comic books the week and bought himself a Graham's Spot.

Mr. Walker

Course there was nothing like "The $64,000 Question" show when I was Gloria's age. Heck, there wasn't even any television then.

So with no incentive then I'm no great shakes at this time.

But I'm willing to learn; and these past few days I've made my move: I've actually read such paper back thrillers as "Lover's Passion." I'm loaded with dictionaries. If I'm called I'll at least be ready.

THE WHOLE country was excited and proud of Gloria's accomplishment and Baltimore especially enjoyed her feat. And I don't doubt that some of our juveniles stopped being delinquents at least during the time Gloria was on the either wave.

New Gloria will have about $11,600 after Federal and State (hah) taxes are taken out of all she won. They're putting most of the loot in a trust fund for the future education of Baltimore's Mighty Mite.

They don't need to do that though. They can save it for her dowry. Gloria will probably win a few hundred admirers by some high toned school like Vassar or Radcliffe which will take her through all her college years.

* * *

BY THE WAY, did you know that Gloria means "an ascription of praise." It means to glorify, say, and Glorious Gloria has had her hour of glory.

You can tell I've already been reading my dictionaries.

Oh well, now Gloria can relax with what Uncle Sammy leaves her of her 16 grand and I can digest my dinners once again on Tuesdays.

But that child continues to amaze me: so cool, so calm, so loaded.

* * *

LOCAL MADNESS — At least one parent has become disenchanted with the Enchanted Forest, Baltimore's answer to Disneyland.

This father, a minister, took his daughters to see the fun but, alas, was brought up short when every rest room he approached was marked "White."

* * *

MORE MADNESS — Are all these groups formed in the counties to study the "problem" of school desegregation really organized to do same, or do they actually intend to "study" methods of getting around the Supreme Court's ruling?

Incidently, take a look at the argument the Montgomery County parents gave the State Board of Education on Wednesday in voicing their objections to mixed schools:

"We have nothing against colored folks," they argued. "We love them. We have nice nice homes in our area. Can't you keep them away from there?"

Now if someone will please explain to me how children attending mixed schools is going to affect the conditions of the homes in the area I'll be quietly.

They don't have classes in the neighboring homes in Montgomery County do they?

* * *

FIRE PREVENTION — I note with interest in the Vital Statistics of this edition that of six fires reported three were caused by pots of meat being left on stoves unattended.

It could be that somebody is careless. It could be, too, that somebody just didn't want to eat what was cooking.

* * *

FASHION NOTE — I hear there's a new fashion in Hollywood of men wearing their pocket handkerchiefs with a smudge of lipstick on them.

Now this has wonderful possibilities. They should bring it East. It would be an emancipation for many a husband.

Just think, men, when you'd come home after "a night with the boys," and your wife seized the lipstick on your handkerchief she'd just smile proudly in the knowledge that her husband was well dressed.

Course if you should have happened to let your style slip down to your shirt collar, my advice is duck.

And as much as I like this new fashion of lipstick on handkerchiefs I'm sorry to say I can't adopt it.

My wife said No. She's old fashioned.

DON'T PAY FRIGHTFUL PRICE ON LABOR DAY

Motoring Americans pay a frightful price in highway slaughter in the name of amusement and relaxation on holidays. Every holiday tends to be more disastrous than the last.

WORK BENCH:

Not yet the millennium

Even scientists ought to join fight

By CLARENCE MITCHELL

One of the most diligent civic workers in Columbus, O., is Barbee William Durham, pharmacist in the control and reagent laboratory at Ohio State University.

Recently his name appeared in the American Journal of Clinical Pathology in connection with methods by which laboratory techniques may be improved.

In preparing what scientists call Mayer's Albumin Fixative, laboratory workers must cut a large quantity of egg whites. The process of doing this with scissors was tedious and time consuming.

Mr. Durham rated mention in the journal because he devised a method of cutting the egg whites faster and in a manner that made them easier to work with after the cutting.

* * *

THE TIME saving method of Mr. Durham required the placing of two or three double edge razor blades on a glass jar. The jar is attached to what is known as a Sargent Cone Drive Stirrer, using motor. The work, which usually ran into several hours, for quantities of egg whites to be cut, is completed in 20 minutes.

Another Durham report in the journal has to do with obtaining high purity distilled water. In this instance the distillation equipment is arranged to utilize recirculated steam. Impurities are removed through a mechanical filter and what is known as a demineralizer.

* * *

FOR AS LONG as I can remember, Mr. Durham has been one of the foremost NAACP workers in the country. His interest in keeping the wheels of progress moving forward has been so consistent that, despite the fact that he is a young man, one is inclined to think of him as a kind of fixture in the anti-segregation effort.

He is a valuable example for young people who intend to follow a scientific career, but believe that they must devote themselves to their special field and ignore social evils that should be corrected.

It is easy to become submerged in a laboratory and forget that the world in which we live is not yet at the place where a black scientist gets recognition on merit.

A recent series of pictures on atomic energy appeared in a popular weekly magazine. Not one of the bright young men whose faces appeared in the pulls was a colored scientist.

This did not happen because there are no colored scientists in the atomic energy field.

* * *

THOSE WHO talk about the new world of atomic power and take pictures of the men who make this new force still think in terms of the old patterns.

Not only is it tough to get a job in this field, but there is also a definite tendency to play down the participation of those colored scientists who do get in.

Perhaps in another day, when race is no longer a factor in job opportunities, the men and women of science will be able to forget about the social problems confronting colored citizens of United States.

Until that day comes, let us hope that more men of the Barbee Durham type will mix a little interest in community problems with their test tubes and formulas.

Poet's Nook

Disgruntled

All kinds of weather
Whether or not.
Some like it cold
Some like it hot.
One wants it wet
Another prays dry;
Cannot please all
No need to try.
Snow or if raining
Might as well smile;
Do no complaining
Just pick your style.
Take it or leave it
Growl, grunt and groan;
All must receive it
Not you alone.

A dose of sun, healthful to all

As we come to the end of the vacation season, we want one last good dose of sun to carry us into the damp, cool fall ahead. The Labor Day weekend may be the last chance to get a tan, but too many of us ruin those precious days acquiring nothing but a painful sunburn.

In our desperate effort to seize the last golden moments, let's not take leave of our common sense. In the first place, the value of repeated sunning is overrated.

Aside from preventing rickets in children, the physical benefits of lying on the beach and exposing large areas of skin to the sun are unimportant.

* * *

SOME PEOPLE, of course, get a psychological value from sunbathing, a certain sense of well-being, and if in addition they can get a fashionable tan, it may be worth the trouble.

It's important to remember, however, that people vary widely in their skin's tolerance of sun rays, and the burning rays of the sun are just as variable.

What is safe exposure to the sun will differ from time to time, from person to person, and from place to place.

* * *

FOR SAFE sunbathing, expose the skin no more than 10 minutes the first day, then increase the time gradually. Use a sun-screening lotion. Reapply every two hours or whenever the protective film has been washed or rubbed off.

Protect the eyes with cotton pads when lying face up, and wear dark glasses at other times. Cover the head to prevent hair discoloration and brittleness. Lubricate the skin well to prevent drying.

And if you have a naturally fair skin, why not just cover up and keep it that way? Why risk peeling skin and freckles, when your type will be back in fashion next month?

Bishop Walker estate goes to wife, daughter

XENIA, Ohio — Mrs. Eva Walker, widow of Bishop D. Ormande Walker, and her daughter Yvonne will receive the bulk of his $38,000 estate, including a six - suite modern apartment building in Cleveland, according to his will probated here last week.

Included in the estate, in addition to the apartment building on 100th St., in Cleveland, is other real estate in Wilberforce and personal property valued at about $8,000.

The size of the estate bears mute testimony to the frugal living which had long been a well known attribute of the bishop during his lifetime. His lifetime friend, George Valentine, was named executor of the estate.

The will — unorthodox like the career of the cyclonic West Indian student who skyrocketed to the senior pastorate of Bishop in the AME Church who wrote it — was typewritten on an ordinary piece of letterhead stationery.

Ford offers new awards for study

NEW YORK — A fellowship program for special advanced training related to international and foreign affairs was announced today by The Ford Foundation.

The program has two major purposes. One is to help persons who are teaching or doing research in international relations to broaden their competence in related fields; the other is to encourage a larger and needed contribution from the social sciences and related fields to the understanding of international and foreign affairs.

* * *

PERSONS NOW STUDYING or teaching international relations will be assisted to undertake graduate training in another social science or in the history, culture and current problems of one or more nations of Asia, the Near East, Africa, or the Soviet and East European area.

Persons already trained in one of the other social sciences or related humanities, or who have specialized foreign area training, will be assisted to undertake graduate work in international relations.

The program will provide fellowships for a few American men and women for an annual promise to take up to two years of training, beginning no later than January 1, 1957.

Application is open to persons who hold the Ph.D. degree or who expect at least to have completed all requirements for the degree, except the dissertation, by February, 1956.

The final date for filing applications is December 15, 1955. Application forms and further information may be obtained from: The Secretary, The Ford Foundation, Att: International Relations Training Fellowships, 477 Madison Ave., New York, 22, N.Y.

—POLITICS— Another Democratic Viewpoint

By ROBERT B. WATTS

Indications are that Phil Goodman, State Senator from the 5th District, will seek that Congressional seat now held by Samuel Friedel.

Both men are Democrats and would battle it out in the primary, and believe you me that would be a "knock down, drag out" affair.

Both of these men have many friends in the Democratic ranks and both men are appealing to the same voters in that both are liberals.

If such a fight does materialize, then you will see many former political allies splitting right down the middle.

SAM FRIEDEL was supported by the Randolph faction, the Dixon faction and Victorine Adams and he had tremendous support in Cherry Hill.

Phil Goodman was also supported by Victorine Adams and her women, and the Randolph and Dixon factions.

Cherry Hill did not figure in the Goodman campaign for it's not in the 5th district.

While a State Senator, Phil has worked closely with Senator Harry A. Cole, and has given him invaluable help. He is a guy you can call on and without hesitation he will go to bat for you.

* * *

THE SAME can be said for Sam Friedel; he, too, is friendly and a man of the people. He knows personally many colored Democratic leaders who have been with him in many campaigns.

The records and backgrounds of both are also similar, both having been in the City Council.

Sam Friedel is some extent, however, has hurt himself, for it is believed he was responsible for the hike in the gas rates in the city.

Whether this will play a very important part in deciding his fate is doubtful at this time.

Having Mr. Friedel as I do, I am sure he will have an explanation to that.

* * *

MANY IN the 5th District remember that Mr. Goodman sponsored the Zoning Bill that permitted Commissioner Tipsey to erect its plant in the heart of one of our best residential districts. This has made a few enemies for Phil Goodman.

Both men are outspoken in their support of legislation in the field of civil rights. Phil was very active in the City Council in support of the FEP bill that came up last year.

You can rest assured that to choose between these equally good men will be a difficult choice and further you can be assured that if they do both run, it will be a battle we will long remember for both men are terrific campaigners.

* * *

ON THE REPUBLICAN side, it appears that Melvin Fine may run for the same office, and if he survives the primary, he will run against the Democratic victor.

Mr. Fine is at present chairman of the State Industrial Accident Commission, and is doing a fine job.

He formerly had offices on Pennsylvania Avenue with his brother and is naturally well known among the colored voters.

He has been active with the 4th District Political organization and you can bet your last dollar they will support him.

He has also been a great help to Senator Cole, for he once was a State Senator from the 4th District.

One thing is certain, and that is that at three men will be attractive to the colored voter and all three are the type of candidate we can support without fear.

There's a Lucky Photo with a bond enclosed in this and every edition of the AFRO worth $5 to the person in it. Look for it, it may be you.
