'First Run' Films of The Week in Review

ROYAL THEATRE FEATURES THRILLERS

"It Came from Beneath the Sea," sensational thriller starring Faith Domergue and Kenneth Tobey, now plays the Royal's giant screen for a hold over thru Wed., Sept. 7. It is the story of a monster from the dawn of creation that is routed from its lair by H-Bomb experiments in the Pacific depths to rampage against the world.

Second thriller on this outstanding double bill is "Creature with the Atom Brain," starring Richard Denning and Angela Stevens. This is the astounding story of life through Atomic power, to stalk the streets on a blood-curdling mission.

'THE KENTUCKIAN' STARS BURT LANCASTER AT MET

Burt Lancaster has done a fine thing in his debut as a motion picture director with "The Kentuckian," CinemaScope Technicolor-printed film which is now playing at the Met Theatre through United Artists release. He has taken an action-packed, swashbuckling fragment of frontier history and infused it with a rich, warm story and peopled it with lovable characters. Lancaster himself stars in the film as Big Gil, a hunter who with his son, little Eli, finds Kentucky too confined and tame for him, and heads for Texas — "where a man has room to move about."

LANCASTER'S FEMININE

co-stars are two extremely attractive young women of different types. The rather demure, conservative schoolteacher of a small frontier town is played by Diana Lynn. She falls in love with Lancaster but realizes he would be cruel to tie him down as a merchant in a little town, and so loses him to the more wild, impulsive backwoods' girl, played by Dianne Foster, whose nature and interests are similar to Eli's.

BETTE DAVIS IN 'THE VIRGIN QUEEN' AT REGENT

Once a generation a great artist of state or screen takes hold of a characterization as to be forever identified with it.

Such is the case of Bette Davis as Queen Elizabeth I in the Twentieth Century-Fox CinemaScope production "The Virgin Queen," now playing the Regent Theatre with Richard Todd, Joan Collins, Jay Robinson, Herbert Marshall and Dan O'Herlihy in co-starring roles.

IN HER PORTRAYAL of the aging but vanity-smitten bachelor Queen, Miss Davis tears and chews at every nuance of her impersonation with a gusto that completely enthralls the viewer. It is not the star's first acquaintance with the mannish mannerisms and piercing perception of the remarkable 16th century monarch, but the actress has adeptly keyed her dramatic values to the older Elizabeth in the current production from the memorable foundation established in the 1939 "Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex."

IN THIS DE LUXE color film, Sir Walter Raleigh takes the stage as her momentary, reciprocated favorite who is abashed that she thinks, after his obvious gallantries, including the famed cape episode, that he wishes to have an affair with her. He is a Devon man and shabbers enough, if short on court sophistication, to bluntly make his position clear that he wants only the favor of three ships to sail to the New World.

HARLEM OFFERS 'THE MARAUDERS' ON SCREEN

Something different in the way of an outdoor Western drama is projected in M-G-M's "The Marauders," now showing at the Harlem Theatre, with Dan Duryea, Jeff Richards, Keenan Wynn and Jarma Lewis in major roles.

THE NEW PICTURE has the historical conflict between Arizona cattle ranchers and the unwelcome "squatters" as its premise, with Jeff Richards playing Corey Everett, a homesteader who has been able to sink a well on his property in the arid cattle country and wise turns his house into a miniature fort in his fight to defend it from burning at the hands of his fanatical enemy, Avery.

It is the latter characterization, played with spine-tingling menace by Dan Duryea, which gives "The Marauders" a dramatic wallop rarely encountered in stories of the early West.

ACTION-PACKED 'LAST COMMAND' AT NEW ALBERT

Powerful, thrilling and deeply moving, Republic's long-awaited epic of the Texas Alamo, "The Last Command," now at the New Albert Theatre, is turning back the pages of history to one of this country's proudest, yet most poignant chapters.

HERE IS a production of vast magnitude and compelling sincerity, beautifully filmed in Truecolor on the rolling plains of Texas and loaded with a tremendous cast of top Hollywood talent under the direction of a three-time Academy Award winner: Frank Lloyd.

Starring Sterling Hayden, Anna Maria Alberghetti, Richard Carlson, Arthur Hunnicutt, Ernest Borgnine and J. Carrol Naish and featuring Ben Cooper, John Russell, Virginia Grey, Jim Davis, Edward Franz, Otto Kruger and Slim Pickens, "The Last Command" brings vividly to life such fabulous heroes as Jim Bowie, Davy Crockett, William Travis, Stephen Austin and Sam Houston — plus the ruthless Mexican general, Lopez de Santa Anna.

"THE LAST COMMAND" encompasses much more than the actual fall of the Alamo. It could be classed as the story of Jim Bowie, certainly one of the greatest and most revered of the heroic little band of volunteers who sacrificed their lives in the futile but glorious defense of the Alamo and for the freedom of Texas.

Police chief asks beach segregation

● But Cape May superior rebukes him

● Tells Philly family bathe at any beach

By LOIS H. CAPEHART

CAPE MAY—Are the beaches here segregated or not?

That's the local "$64,000 question" posed last week by a visiting Philadelphia family that divided city officials and left residents and annual vacationers puzzled.

Police Chief Spencer proclaimed that the beaches are "segregated;" that colored people are only allowed to bathe in an area one block from the Broadway Beach.

BUT SOL NEEDLES, commissioner of public safety, and Cito Commone, chief of the Life Guard, disputed the police chief.

They declared that residents and visitors to this booming resort — thanks to business being diverted here by the extension of the Garden State Parkway — can bathe "anywhere they choose regardless of race, creed or color."

The question of whether the beaches are segregated or not was raised Monday afternoon, Aug. 22, when Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Sharpe, 2427 N. Bouvier St., Philadelphia, accompanied by their son and daughter, parked their car at the Broadway Beach.

THEY DROVE from Stanley's Cottage, 627 W. 4th Ave., West Cape May, where they are guests, with the intention of bathing at the Broadway Beach.

They had put two nickles in the parking meter and were discussing the fact that the meter registered only an hour and a half instead of the two hours due them.

At that moment, Police Chief Spencer drove up and asked the Sharpes what their difficulty was.

They explained about the meter's inaccuracy after which the police chief made several unsuccessful attempts to make the meter work properly.

HE THEN INFORMED the Philadelphians that the local beaches are "segregated," that if they were planning to bathe they would have to go to the "colored beach" which he pointed out to them a block away.

When the Sharpes asked what was to be done about their time paid for on the meter, the police chief offered to fix them a meter at the colored beach and escorted them there.

But on their arrival, Robert Greene, the Life Guard, told the police chief that the beach would not open until 3 p.m. due to the high tide.

MR. SHARPE then explained to the Life Guard that they had stopped at the Broadway Beach Guard's where the tide was lower, but had been ordered to move to the colored beach by the chief of police.

At this point, the chief of police climbed into his car and drove away.

Life Guard Greene then suggested to the Sharpes that they discuss the matter with the Commissioner of Public Safety, Sol Needles.

WHEN CONTACTED, both Mr. Needles and Cito Commone, chief of the Life Guards, denied the police chief's statement that the beaches are segregated.

Residents and visitors are now asking:

What will happen if we ignore the chief of police's edict that the beaches are segregated and follow the instructions to bathe at the Broadway Beach or anywhere else we choose given by the public safety commissioner and the chief of the Life Guard?

TO WHOM I OWE

By CHARLES N. DIGGS (Baltimore, Junior College of Clark College, Atlanta, Ga.)

To whom I owe my life, my all, my soul.
To whom I owe my grief, my toil.
To whom I owe each breath I breathe,
To whom I owe life's purities;
To whom I owe the rain that falls,
• • •
To whom I owe my best, my all.
To whom I owe the flowers that grow,
To whom I owe good seeds I sow.
To whom I owe the food I eat,
To whom I owe the flowers so sweet,
To whom I owe a mother's love,
To whom I owe the heavens above;
When troubles hear or death appear
To God I go, to whom I owe,
O Master, let me always know,
'Tis Thee, the One to whom I owe.

History of Catonsville

In 1932, Ella Beatrice Coates, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ridgeley Coates, was christen on Dec. 4 at Grace Church by the Rev. E. T. Addison. Mrs. Ella Parker of Carroll was Godmother.

Miss Madeline Harris entertained the Grandies Whist Club of Baltimore at her home, 16 Wesley Ave.

Ten Women of Mt. Olivete Church had raised $100 and they were Miss Emily Smith, Jane Foreman, Mamie King Veretta Scott, Josephine Scott, Nellie Williams, Mary Quarles, Sadie Baker, Mary Allen and Betty Grooms. The Rev. N. B. Carrington, Pastor.

Miss Dora King and Louise Hardy were inseparable friends in those days.

The Rev. C. E. Johnson was pastor of Mt. Zion Church in Ellicott City. He was noted for his baseball sermon.

Kingston Pye had an up-to-date restaurant at Winters and Edmondson Ave. featuring Chinese and American dishes.

South Baltimore Notes

By GEORGE W. E. HILL and MARIE LITTLES

A Southside personality and Clean Block winner is Patricia Ann Turner of 1024 Briscoe St.

Miss Turner is a graduate of Harvey Johnson Junior High School and will attend Southern High in September. She is a member of John Wesley ME Church and her hobbies are dancing and caring for children.

Miss Turner was recently crowned "Miss Harvey Johnson." Her greatest ambition is to become a public school teacher.

While visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Rosa Turner, she decided to take up the task of cleaning the block. She was then made aware that she was to honor her as Briscoe Street's winning captain. She promised to keep a year-round clean block.

PAULETTE COLBERT, of 511 W. Cross St., was the Southside's youngest captain. This 8-year-old captain, has co-workers and supervisors did an excellent job.

Paulette is a pupil at School No. 162 in Class 4-B. She hopes to become a secretary and is a member of Ebenezer AME Church.

Paulette, with the aid of Mrs. Emma Murphy and others, has promised they will keep their block pretty the year round.

A VERY excellent Clean Block celebration was held Saturday by Captain Barbara Cooper and workers of the 600 block Lee St. The repast was superb. Everyone had an enjoyable time.

Captain Lucy Walker and her staff of the 600 block Barre St. also held their first annual celebration on Saturday, August 20.

At this time, I wish to take time out to commend the eight South Baltimore blocks which participated in the Clean Block Campaign. Each of these blocks had splendidly decorated blocks and play lots.

That was what was once called Baltimore's "Most Forgotten Area" is now called a beautiful place. All this work was done without the aid of the city or state.

THE CITIZENS of South Baltimore are organizing a club to carry on this work the year around with the aid of our Governor, a former South Baltimorean; Mayor D'Alesandro, the City Health Department and the Housing Authority. Let us join in and have a No. 1 clean city.

Briscoe St. and Cross St. will have their Clean Block parties on Saturday.

The entire Southside wishes to thank Mrs. M. Francis Mackay, the Judges and Mr. Carl Murphy for the great interest taken in the South Baltimore area.

Many former residents remarked that never in the 65 years has South Baltimore made greater history.

FAMILY AND Friends Day will be observed at Star of Bethlehem AME Church, Sunday, Sept. 11, at 11 a.m. and at 3 p.m.

All Clean Block captains, workers and supervisors are invited. We want everybody to know of these great workers.

The Baltimore Singers will resume their rehearsals for their fall concert in early November. The group will rehearse on the lawn of the president, George W. E. Hill, 2528 Huron St. on Sunday, Sept. 11 at 4 p.m.

The officers are as follows: Gerald Burks Wilson, conductor; G. Bernard Young, business manager; James Campbell, president of the Baltimore chapter; Bethat Stevenson and Richard Campbell, secretaries.

SIMPSON ANDERSON, a life long resident of South Baltimore, died Monday, August 29, at University Hospital. Survivors are five sons and one daughter.

They are Luther Anderson, Johnny Anderson, Paul Anderson, Willie Anderson, T. J. Anderson, and Mrs. Eva Carville, all residents of South Baltimore. The funeral was held on Thursday.

The Trustee's Aid of the Star of Bethlehem AME Church will give their annual bus trip to Sparrow's Beach on Labor Day. Busses leave 2320 Huron St. on Monday at 9:30 a.m.

The officers are William Polk, president; Ernestine Christian, secretary, and the Rev. W. R. Chew, pastor.

WILLIAM POLK, of 2636 Huron St., left for Ohio to join his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Polk, who has been at the bedside of her sister, Josephine, for quite some months. Her sister died on Sunday.

All parents of the South Baltimore area are urged to have their children registered for school. Children who will become five years old by December 31 must be vaccinated and ready for enrollment for the kindergarten. For the first grade the child must be vaccinated and six years old by December 31.

All children can be vaccinated at University Hospital at 12 noon each Wednesday.

Davis Memorial Choir is holding its annual block carnival beginning August 29 through September 3. Mrs. Amelia Stanburry is chairman; Mrs. Cora Parker, Mrs. Janice McFadden, Mrs. Viola Overby, and Mrs. Sylvia Moore are other officers.

SOLDIER TAKES BMOB

COLUMBUS, O. — Pvt. Thomas S. Holmes, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Holmes of Salisbury N.C., and Miss Cornelia Ann Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Brown, Columbus, O., were recently married. Private Holmes is stationed at Fort Bragg.

Sparrow's Beach sets party Saturday night for all employees

An "Employee's Appreciation" night Beach Party, the first of its kind - will be held at Sparrow's Beach on Saturday, from 4 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Lou Donaldson, the late sax sensation, and Frank (Floor Gold) Valley and his combo will be the featured attractions.

Both groups will also be featured at the Amusement Park on Sunday and Monday Labor Day.
