When jostled, some people get the 'Christmas spirit'

By MARGARET STEWART
WASHINGTON

Only two more shopping days til Christmas! It's the last minute shopping that wears one out.

Although many will say that is the fun of the whole holiday, it is when you get the spirit when you are jostled and pushed along with the crowds of holiday shoppers.

I personally like to take my time to shop and pick just the right gifts for my loved ones.

While downtown the other day I saw Ada Winfield loaded down with Christmas gifts for her family. She was weary and disgusted.

Looking very pretty in her red coat with black accessories, it seems she had been everywhere trying to find just the right item for her husband. But no luck. I made several suggestions to her and none of them seemed to fit.

So she wearily trudged along to another department store in the hopes of finding that certain gift. Ada is typical of all last minute shoppers for even though she was disgusted, she was happy.

JUST THE opposite was Janye Trumbull. Janye finished her shopping while in New York this past summer. She said things are much cheaper during the summer than near the holdays.

However, she admits that she does not have the Christmas spirit now because all of her shopping is over.

Believe it or not, she actually wrapped her gifts last month, which leaves hardly anything to do for the holidays.

The spirit of giving to our loved ones is most important and is the real Christmas spirit. Christmas is a time of joy, of songs and other festivities, as well as religious ceremonies.

The integration of religious and family celebration makes Christmas the most impressive festival of the year.

The most poular question this time of year is, what do you want for Christmas? It is asked of every member of the family and of good friends.

WHAT DO I want for Christmas? I have been asked countless times and I have hesitated equally as many times, for one's wants and wishes are many. However, I have made a list.

So here is what I want for Christmas:

For all needy children, a wonderful Christmas. The wish that Santa Claus brings each of them at least one of the gifts they want so badly. That everyone helps to bring a real Christmas to these unfortunate children.

For the Continentals, a larger treasury to enable them to adopt and support another girl's cottage in Junior Village.

For the Baker's Dozen, a constant flow of contributions to help them with their Youth Center that has been so helpful to both children and parents in our area.

For Cecelia Penny Scott, a growing patronage for "Cecelia's."

For the National Council of Negro Women, an increased membership to further their forthright stand for our women.

For Dr. Margaret Just Butcher, a complete sell out of her excellent book, "The Negro in American Culture."

For the Capitol Press Club, active participation of all its active members to strengthen our influence in the journalistic world.

For Dr. Mordecai Johnson, more appropriations for Howard University.

For the Sappy Sues, another wonderful and successful dance in 1957 as they have had during past years.

For all fraternities and sororities, a strengthening of their leadership in our community.

For all civic organizations, more cooperation from everyone.

For Dr. Martin Luther King, a continuance of his leadership in Alabama to lead the colored people to complete victory.

For Belford Lawson, all the happiness he deserves.

For Barrington Parker, a successful administration as president of the D.C. Federation of Civic Associations.

For the Democratic Party, a victory in 1960—both in the Presidency and in Congress.

For Tex Founteneau, the personality-plus manager of the Hollywood Grill, a wife.

For our men serving in the armed forces overseas, Christmas leaves.

For the unemployed, work.

For the sick, health.

For the lonely brown babies overseas, more adoptions in American homes.

For the Young Men and Women Christian Associations, determination to continue their fight with more vigor than ever to help all mankind.

For the world, peace and goodwill toward all men.

For the residents of the District of Columbia, Home Rule.

For Colored people everywhere, an end to the filibuster and the beginning of first—class citizenship.

For Lawrence Hunt, executive secretary; YMCA, a much needed swimming pool.

For the NAACP, more support to aid the organization to continue their struggle for the Four Freedoms of mankind.

For everyone, a Merry, Merry Christmas!

My list is long; my wants are deep-rooted. If Santa will take care of them, I will be forever grateful and, I, too, will have a Merry Christmas.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY — Davy Lewis Alexander, 2700 Elsinor Ave., was recently feted with a party for his ninth birthday. The party was given by his father, David L. Nottage. Guests were: Ellis Wright, Michael Chandler, Abraham Riley 3rd, Yvette Riley, Laura Smith, Cookie, Sissy and Butch Chandler, Francis Moore and Miriam Riley. Davy, a third grade pupil at Windsor Hills School 87, can now, at 9, realize a long 'ambition—to be a member of the YMCA.

A PRINTED PATTERN makes sewing a pleasure. See how little time it takes to make a dress from Pattern No. 4598. This step-in classic is designed especially to flatter the larger figure, and is smart in all three sleever versions and in any season.

This pattern comes in sizes 36, 28, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 takes four yards 35-inch material.

PATTERN NO. 4523 is another printed pattern, but comes in much desired half-sizes.

A few-easy, it has no side opening. Just unbutton shoulders, slip it on. Cut to fit the shorter, fuller figure perfectly, it needs no alterations.

The pattern is in sizes 14½, 16½, 18½, 20½, 22½, and 24½.

DIRECTIONS ARE printed on each tissue pattern part. Easy to use, these patterns are accurate and assure perfect fit.

Send 35 cents in coins for each pattern. Add five cents for each pattern for first-class mailing.

PEARLIE'S PRATTLE

Alpha Wives stage another top social event for D. C.

By PEARLIE C. HARRISON

Topping last week's social events was the Christmas cocktail party, Sunday, at the Willard Hotel, with the Alpha Wives as hostesses.

It's a can't miss treat every year.

A walk through "Peacock Alley" in the big hotel, already dressed with scores of poinsettia blooms; a lift to the South ballroom, and you're greeted oh, so graciously, by the Alpha Wives, Mrs. Enid Tucker Johnson, heads, and little-girl-like in pale blue dress, green lace-trimmed.

Greeting the guests in the early hours were the chairman and co-chairman of the social committee, respectively, Mesdames Laura Scott, a stunner in aqua satin, and Agatha Aiken in shell-pink taffeta. Also a member of the welcoming band was Mrs. Cordella Smith, in a gleaming blue-gray beauty.

Cold beverages and hot hors d'oeuvres beckoned from dainty tables; the bar wasn't far away; and I, for one, didn't need any coaxing at all to step up and get refreshed.

'Twas fun just saying "Hello" to folks.

And seen here and there were Capt. and Mrs. Louis C. Mehlinger who'll do some holidaying in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller (she's the former Yvonne Ewell) who'll spend their Yuletide in Louisiana with Mr. Noller's parents, and then go on to Mexico for further vacationing;

Major and Mrs. Ulysses Lee, now of Morgan College.

Doctors and Mesdames Gorham Fletcher, Walter M. Booker, Fred Perry, Clarence D. Hinton, Benjamin Gray, Merrill Curtis, Paul Cornely, Walter Garvin, Theodore George, J. Francis Dyer, M. D. Wiseman, Coleridge Gill, K. Albert Hardin, Winston Willoughby, Pinyon Cornish, Isaiah Burton, Clarence Greene Whit Bruce, H. C. Beldon, Norris Atkins, Tanner McMahon, Wilbur Jackson, John A. Turner, foot in a cast and all, Mordecai Johnson, Jr., Chauncey Cooper, Dean of the School of Pharmacy, Howard University.

Attorneys and Mesdames R.R. Atkinson, Wayland McClellan, Roy Garvin, Wilbur Sewell, Ed Howard, Richard Thompkins, Emory Smith and Howard Jenkins, assistant to Solicitor, Department of Labor and to the Chief of International Labor Affairs;

Mesdames Ora Spivey, Muriel Alexander, Rosalia Hill, Alta Clark, Audrey Williams; Messrs. and Mesdames C. C. House, Granville Hurley, John F. Davis, James Ewell, Frank F. Davis, (the glamourous Mrs. D. talking of a reunion with her son-in-law and daughter and family, Dr. and Mrs. E. Hale and children.)

Messrs. and Mesdames Herman Barber, Vincent Thomas, Odell Polk, Benjamin Spaulding, Arley Sanford, Ronda Gilliam, Cleveland Chambliss (she's Dr. Harriet Clarke); also Messrs. and Mesdames Welford Jackson, Ernest Eiland, Percy Pitts, Howard Mackey, Jr., Melvin Williams and their guests, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Dudley Lee of Baltimore and other Maryland points.

With the Wilbur Sewells (she's cute Marianna, you know) were Mr. and Mrs. Menelik Jackson of Atlanta.

Prettiest beige dress in the ball had Mrs. Spencer Roane, a "size seven," in it. In an aqua gown that she made herself, was Mrs. Naomi Cook. Cute Alpha wife, Inetta McCall, wore with her soft blue gown a crisp, cause they're "preparing to proceed to get ready to fix" to learn nursery rhymes were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Henderson.

HAPPY TIMES for Holmeses Glad times these days for Loretta, director of the Rett-Corri Charm School, and her mate.

One of her models, Mrs. Leonard Strothers, won first prize at the Capital Press Club's festival Saturday night, and will reign as "Miss Front Page" at the club's big ball come Feb. 21.

Also gladdening Loretta Holmes's heart was the fact that her husband won a handsome door prize.

On hand to applaud when the Rett-Corri-taught charmer walked off with first prize (nearby two dozen other lovelies among her competitors), was Miss Roberta Barnes, co-director of the Rett-Corri School.

Attracting most attention, outside of the candidates for queen (clothes-wise, I mean) was Mrs. Mitchell of "Leona Fashions."

Looking on at the beauty parade, and style show, and enjoying the hour as guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Sewell, were Mr. and Mrs. El Amin Abdoun of th Sudanese Embassy; Mohamad Adris of Egypt now with the Embassy of Sudan.

In the Sewell party too, were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris, and Lawrence Culkin.

Simeon Booker heads the Press Club. In charge of Saturday's festival was Otis Thompson, D.C. public relations man.

Among the judges asked pick "Miss Front Page" were Scovel Richardson chairman, U.S. Parole Board; Irv Lichenstein, Artie Bell, D.C. teacher and well-known designer, especially of hats. Also, Maurine Brant, popular in D.C. social circles.

THEY'LL SHOW YOU.

That Camera Vacation Club, Maurice B. Lee, president.

Every year they board a train and go to Nova Scotia or some other interesting spot. And when they return they not only tell about their trip, but show pictures a-plenty to prove it.

Only a few years old, the organization is so proud of the happy events in which it has figured that it simply had to celebrate.

Friday, Dec.14 was the night; and the Masonic Temple dining room, the place. And indeed, they did need that dining room. For, on tables, holiday-dressed, were roast turkey and ham, salad, eggnog, coffee and punch, and too many more goodies to name.

But the highlight of the hour was the picture show, president Lee using his own machine and also proving a smart commentator.

'Twas a jolly to-do, 28 Camera Vacation members, plus many friends, joining in the celebration.

Bossing the club this year, in addition to Mr. Lee, are Mesdames Rosetta Foster, Wilma Ross (even Santa Claus knows Mrs. R. is camera-minded, so he'll bring her a so-modern machine to replace her old picture-taker).

Also among the officers are: Misses Catherine Bryant, Agnes Queen; Mesdames Alconia Mason, Mary Mitchell, Anna Hinton, Virginia Stovall, Lavolta Allen; and George Mitchell.

Blind man 67 bluffs guest

"I'm blind, but I can get around as well as a fellow with two good eyes.

That's what Charles Wilson, 67 of the 900 block N. Dallas St., stated Saturday in Northeastern Police Court when given a $10 suspended fine for disorderly conduct.

Asked why he created a disturbance after sending Miss Sadie Hicks 39, of the 900 block McDonogh St., into his home, Mr. Wilson declared:

"I sent her in the house to turn the fire out from under my dinner. She stayed so long until I went in. She was at the table eating."

For eating the dinner without an invitation, Miss Hicks was also given a $10 suspended fine.

HIS 108th CHRISTMAS — Fountain Hughes is 108 years old and this is his 108th Christmas. For Christmas he wanted a box of candy. As you can see, he got it.

—108th Christmas

speaks of a granddaughter in New York, who is a trained nurse.

Mr. Hughes thinks that children weren't as destructive years ago when he was a youngster, as they are now and that people are much less courteous this day and age than they used to be.

He says despairingly, "If you are riding on a bus, now and a lady with a baby gets on, nobody will get up and give her a seat."

TO THE men of this generation, Mr. Hughes offers this fatherly advice: "When you get 50 years old, don't think you are a boy.

"You begin to go back, but if you take good care of yourself, you'll be a long time getting back."

What is his prescription for long life? With a merry chuckle and a stroke of his greying Van Dyke beard, Mr. Hughes says:

"I don't drink whiskey; I don't smoke cigars; I don't chew tobacco; I don't run after women; I'm good to old people and I love all children." He still has a full head of hair, it might be noted.

WHAT WOULD he like for Christmas? When asked this question, Mr. Hughes stood from the spic and span dining room table and said:

"I'd like a few dollars."

"What will you do with the dollars?" he was asked.

"I'd like to get some ice cream, cake and candy."

Mr. Hughes may well have his ice cream, cake and candy for Christmas because both the Women's and the Men's Auxiliaries of the Home are busily working to give each of the 41 guests there, a lovely Christmas present and all the candy they can possibly eat, Mrs. Zella Washington, who handles public relations for the Home, explained.

Besides this, a huge Christmas tree will be placed in the home in time for Santa Claus' annual visit.

CHRISTMAS is only one of the 365 days out of the year the N.M. Carroll Home must be maintained and responsible for its upkeep throughout the year, Mrs. Washington pointed out, are various social groups.

The Golden Cross Society solicits funds to help carry on the Home; Mrs. Edna Rawlings, director; Mrs. Mattie Carter, president. The Women's Auxiliary and Men's Brotherhood of the Home take care of the fuel bill.

Mrs. Washington told the AFRO that the N.M. Carroll Home was founded in 1897 by Rev. Nathaniel M. Carroll, great uncle to the Revs. Julius and Edward Carroll, co-pastors of Sharp St. Methodist Church.

The home was renovated in 1951.

Mrs. Washington smiled as she pointed out that an adjoining building that had "originally been a stable is now a chapel, and it is beautiful, too. Christ was born in a manger."

"ANGELS" of the home are very proud of a sprinkler system installed in 1953 at a cost of $10,000.

Garrett Rawlings, president of the Board of Managers of the Home said that, "We are in the midst of our pantry drive, a drive that has been going on for the last 15 years. It starts in October and lasts until Christmas."

This is a program Mr. Rawlings explained in which "churches have their members bring something for the pantry, canned goods, vegetables, apples, potatoes, or send money."

MR. RAWLINGS said that the value of the property is now $100,000, and that the Home employs two nurses, a cook, a maid and a janitor.

Besides these people, the Rev. Charles S. Harper is superintendent of the Home and Mrs. Montery English is the beloved House Mother.

All the churches of the Washington Conference contribute to the support of the N.M. Carroll Home for the Aged.

THERE'S A LUCKY picture in this and every edition of the AFRO. Look for it. If your head is circled, you can collect $5 cash by calling at 17 W. Pleasant St. Mention the picture when you call.

Justice Harlan heard by local lawyers

Only 14 Chief Justices have served during the 166 years of the existence of the United States Supreme Court.

Throughout its history the bench has maintained a traditional reputation for "immutable objectivity," Associate Justice John Marshall Harlan said Tuesday afternoon.

He was the guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Federal Bar Association for Maryland held in the ballroom at Emerson Hotel.

Speaking of his observations as a newcomer to the Supreme Court bench, Justice Harlan told the 500 lawyers and visitors present that some of the advice which had been given to him by friends had been wrong.

"One bit of advice was that I would be leaving the arena for a position of sheltered life. This advice has proved to be incorrect," he said.

Federal Circuit Judge Simon E. Sobeloff received an Award of Merit at the same meeting. H. Paul Rome, president of the Bar Association of Baltimore City, presented the citation which reads:

"A lawyer of eminence and a citizen of distinction who has earned the gratitude of all the people by his devotion to public service in the honored tradition of the Maryland Free State."

Eli Baer, president of the Federal Bar Association for Maryland, presided at the meeting and Morris A. Soper, judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals was toastmaster.

The Joseph Duvalls end their marriage

Mrs. Hazel Duvall, 2319 Edmondson Ave., a director in the City's Recreational Department, was divorced from Joseph Duvall, this week.

"We had stopped living together as man and wife in August of 1954," the wife said.

"He told me that he didn't want anything more to do with me," she added.

Mrs. Duvall said she, and her husband parted company at that time but she did not move out of their house at 1632 Westwood Ave. until last July.
