'I like rock, roll,' says child prodigy

"Sure I like rock and roll and I like Elvis Presley."

With that statement on Monday night Miss Hansonia L. Caldwell put to rest any doubts that as a child prodigy she frowns on the type of music that tickles the fancies of her contemporaries . . . even though some harsher critics insist rock and roll is not music at all.

Hansonia is only 12-years-old but she has already appeared in over a dozen concerts and will appear in another one on Friday, Dec. 14, at 8:30 p.m., when the Bureau of Music presents its winter concert in the auditorium of Douglass High School, Gwynns Falls Parkway and Pulaski St.

* * *

IN ADDITION to being a pianist with a concert repertoire of between 20 and 25 selections, Hansonia is also a seventh grade pupil in the accelerated course at the Pimlico Junior High School.

And yet in spite of this rather formidable background there is not a thing stuffy about Hansonia. She likes popular music, cooking, cats (the four-footed kind), and white and black saddle oxfords which she doesn't want to polish because she says:

"None of the other kids clean their shoes. It's the style."

A cheerful child whose conversation bubbles on and on with a maturity that sometimes seems amazing in a 12-year-old youngster, Hansonia accepts her gifts with an adult sense of balance that leaves no room for false modesty or false pride.

"I don't know which of my concerts has been best," she'll tell you.

"I guess they all have been good," she'll add with a disarming smile and a sparkle in her bright eyes.

* * *

HANSONIA HAD her first music lesson when she was five years old. Her teacher was and still is Mrs. Adah K. Jenkins who while she has taught hundreds of pianists, admits that Hansonia is one of the two true prodigies she has encountered.

Just to show what she means when she calls Hansonia a "prodigy," Mrs. Jenkins has a little trick she plays with evident satisfaction.

She will send the younster out of the room and then strike a note on the piano. Hansonia will promptly call out what note was struck and she is never wrong.

"Perfect pitch" is the technical name for this ability. It is something that only a limited number of persons are born with and Hansonia is one of the lucky few.

* * *

USUALLY Hansonia has a smile on her face but when she sits down before a keyboard a serious expression comes to her face as if she has been transported to another world.

She is a study in concentration as her hands flash across the keys and it is only when she finishes that she allows a smile of satisfaction to steal back on her lips.

"I like to play," she'll say and it's evident that she means it.

"Everyday I practice from one to two hours and I don't mind it at all. At school I play for the glee club and band and I belong to the dramatic club. I was playing badminton but I had to give it up because my schedule was too heavy," she'll relate in a single deep breath.

* * *

A MEMBER of Knox Presbyterian Church, Hansonia belongs to a singing group, the Knox Jewels, and is active in other church work.

Hansonia also finds time to have pets and in fact she has six cats, but she is planning to get rid of some of them.

As far as the future is concerned, Hansonia isn't exactly sure of what she wants to be.

"I have three choices," she says. "First music, second I could be a lawyer or a doctor, and third I might be a movie star. You know I am collecting movie star pictures now."

Needless to say, the people who have heard the youngster play are hoping that she will select music as her career.

* * *

HANSONIA IS the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Hanson Earl Caldwell, 3230 Belmont Ave. Her father is a carpenter and her mother, Mrs. Beulah M. Caldwell, is a teacher at the Phyllis Wheatley School No. 110.

Mrs. Caldwell plays "a little piano," according to her daughter and it was she who arranged the music lessons with Mrs. Jenkins.

In her concerts, Hansonia has appeared at such places as Morgan State College, Bates High School, Pennsylvania Ave. AME Zion Church, the Friends School and Berea Temple.

The concert next Friday night will be Hansonia's first with a full orchestra but this fails to instill any fear in her.

"I'll do my best," she says with one of her patented smiles and when Hansonia does her best, it's something to hear.

END OF THE WALTZ—With a flourish, Hansonia Caldwell comes to the end of Chopin's Waltz in D Flat, Opus 64, No. 1, which she will play next Friday night, Dec. 14, when the Bureau of Music stages its annual winter concert at Douglass High School. The 12-year-old prodigy has already given over a dozen recitals but this will be her first one with a full orchestra.

APRODIGY'S HANDS—These are the hands of Hansonia Caldwell in the midst of a trill, a quick change back and forth between two notes, one tone or semitone apart. Just as difficult to the laymen as it sounds, Hansonia finds no trouble is accomplishing such things. She is only 12 years old but has been playing since she was five.

WHEN THE Martiniques (Club) stepped from those fabulous "P-G" parties into a formal role, this year, their "Champagne Formal" was equally as fabulous.

Nor were the gowns they wore to their Thursday evening dance any less eye-catching than those luscious pajamas they used to don for those hearth - side affairs . . . as demonstrated by the plush red velvet, taller-type creation (Spanish influence) worn by Elizabeth Adams, who completed her monotone theme with a red satin envelope bag . . or the green Sari gown, with its gold borders and medallion, with its own stole as worn by Helen Gattis.

Held in the beautifully decorated Emmanuel Hall on upper Liberty Heights Ave., the more than 200 guests danced to the scintillating music of Jack Sherr's orchestra.

Champagne punch flowed throughout the evening, as did the hundreds of fancy sandwiches.

Dorothea Foster (she's vice president) primed the evening with a pre-dance cocktail party . . . Susie Moore (treasurer) rang down the curtain with a wee-hour breakfast.

The other hostesses include Edith Perry, president; Serena Forehand, recording secretary and business manager; Ruth Fortune,* financial secretary; Alena Lyle Perry, chaplain;

Also Irene Cooper Harris, Justina Chandler, Charlotte Johnson, Victorine Adams, Geraldine Lipscomb, Dorothy Lee Davis, Myrtle Thompson and Beatrice Smith.

There were any number of out-of-towners here for the affairs, including Bernice Craig and Jack Rice of Washington and Charlotte Blake of Cleveland, Ohio.

* * *

AT THE PRE AND PO AFFAIRS, which, incidentally, was jointly hosted by Victorine Adams, were:

Messrs. and Mesdames Kenneth Bass, Lonnie Spruell, Fred Weldon, Wilbert Dyson, Shirley Diggs, Henry Hawkins, A. Morton, Irvin Williams, Rudolph Lowe, James Cilliam, Eugene Tribble;

Messrs. and Mesdames M. Morris, Charles Murray, Walter Brown, Harold Jennifer; Drs. and Mesdames Martin Rodney and Raymond Grey;

Mesdames Mary Jones, Ruby Jenkins, Carol Weldon, Dovie McCann, Ada Smith, Nicki Randolph; Misses Mazie Harbour, Geraldine Lipscombe;

Jack Rice, Linwood Koger, Sr., Jay McRae, E. Brooks, James Shelton and James C. Foster.

THE WOMEN'S DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE had fun at its Christmas party in the York Hotel on Tuesday evening.

As usual, they combined pleasure with good - deeds. Fetched cigarettes, playing cards and cosmetics for patients in mental hospitals; toilet articles, writing paper, stamps and games for boys in Boys' Village . . . and then patted themselves on the back for the magnificent job they did in their Globetrotter project.

You know they packed the Coliseum to the hill . . . and Charm Centre showed the prettest batch of models in the most swellicant gowns seen in ages as a special feature.

Ruth Jackson, Gladys Harbour and Annabelle Coleman were in first, second and third place when it came to ticket selling . . . with the committee's president, Victorine Adams, setting her constituents a fast pace by gathering in some $200 in ads and selling some 300 tickets:

This week they were busy holding wrapping bees—readying their gifts for charity.

INVITATIONS WERE in the mail, this week, to the wedding of Miss Anne E. Calhoun, of this city, and L. Edward Fuller, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fuller of New York City.

Miss Calhoun is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Calhoun of Atlanta, Ga. A graduate of Coppin Teachers College, here, and Howard University, Washington, she is a teacher at School No. 135.

Mr. Fuller graduated from South Carolina State College and is now a student in veterinary medicine at Tuskegee Institute.

The ceremony, a December 22nd event, will take place in St. John's AME Church, here, and a reception will follow in the Me-Be-So Club.

A Christmas wedding is also being planned by Miss Senora Turner and Cornell Muldrow, organist.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Turner, this week, announced the betrothal of their daughter, Mimiam Louise, to Walter Thompson of Washington. He is in the Bureau of Engraving, Washington, and she, with the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital, here. Date of the wedding has not been set.

Mr. and Mrs Richard K. Lamb will entertain at a reception on Dec. 22nd, at the YMCA, in honor of their daughter, Helen Lamb Walters and Gabriel R. Maddox Jr. The reception in the evening will follow an earlier—the afternoon—wedding of Mrs. Walters and Mr. Maddox at the parents' home.

ELOISE BROWN, she's the wife of Dr. George Brown, was hostess to the Maters last week and very proudly introduced her new son to the group. Nothing but delighted "Ooh and Ahs" were heard. He is certainly a fine young man.

During the meeting the Christmas Activities Agenda was formed. The Maters are taking their kiddies on the B. O. excursion to see the lighting of their tree and to hear the B. and O. Glee Club.

Ruby Glover, Mary Carter and Frances Graham are giving time and service to the Children's Ward of Crownsville during the holidays. A gift of a radio and rubber toys will also be sent to that State Mental Institution.

The mothers and children will participate in a program of music and a creative dramatic presentation at St. Elizabeth's orphanage. Gifts will also be given to the children here.

The group is looking forward to a happier Christmas for themselves through entering into the real spirit of this glorious holiday. Helping to make the plans were Helena Wright, Bitsy Nichols, Bernice Parker, Eloise Brown, Mary Carter, Ruby Glover, Frances Graham and Jean Taylor.

LES SYLPHIDES CLUB had a gay pot-luck dinner in the home of Jeanne Mauelshy (each member brought a dish and a guest) and did they have fun!

This week they met and made plans for a Christmas party . . . after electing officers. Newly inducted are Annis Lawson, president; Jeanne Maulsby, vice president; Mary Ann Watts, secretary; Shirley Gilbert, treasurer; Geraldine Shephard, chairman of publicity; Clara Jones, hospitality chairman.

Others in this congenial group are Dorothy Dunston, Lorraine Eason, Thelma Greene, Orenne Gregg and Bertha Goodman.

After the session the group settled down to bridge . . . with cocktails and foods.
